Dear Rabbi Lamm:

I meant to send you a copy of the review of your book, but just didn't get around to it.

"Hedge of Roses" certainly comes up to the high standards you have set in ~~xxxx~~ your literary work. I've just seen a copy of Jewish Life and am looking forward to reading your piece on the New Theology.

I can easily imagine the many demands made on your time, yet I would like to invite you to write for The Observer. Subject matter is up to you, but it is a good idea to let me know what you plan to avoid possible duplication.

Should it not be possible for you to write an article, perhaps you might care to comment on some matter discussed in our publication. We are most anxious to hear from people like yourself, I might say, even more so if you have some critical comments.

Please let me hear from you.

Sincerely,

Yaakov Jacob
