Dear Manno:

I already told you orally how pleased I was with your talk to our Men's Club on Sunday morning.

However, upon reflection I am convinced that it was so splendid and timely and appropriate that it deserves acknowledgment in writing. In every way, from content to the method of handling the theme, it was done with consummate skill. You certainly represented the Rabbinate very well indeed.

My personal thanks and my very best wishes.

Cordially yours,

RABBI NORMAN LAMM
