Dear Norman

May I have the pleasure of coming to see you at your office any Tuesday or Thursday during the next couple of weeks for a half hour or so? There are ~~two~~^{three} things I would like to discuss with you.

First, the book on Hasidism on which you are working. Following up the material I prepared for Bernie Schapfstein last summer, he has asked me to do a fairly comprehensive anthology of ^{creative} adult education offerings around the country which will ^{also} include suggested outlines ^{based on the} ~~for~~ books he is publishing. ~~Secondly~~, I want to over

explore with you the possibility of an outline based on your book which will hopefully lead Rabbis and educators around the country to use ~~your book~~ ^{it} as a text.

Secondly, I wonder if you have in your files copies of adult education courses you've offered through the years or of the bulletins announcing these courses. If so, may I sit in your library ^{at the center} for half an hour and look these over for possible inclusion in the anthology?
Each course used will, of course, be fully credited.

Thirdly, there is a personal matter on which I would welcome your advice. I miss you here in Brooklyn this year. Having more time, I would have welcomed the chance more systematically to listen to your lectures. The ones I heard are still vivid in my mind.

With all good wishes for an enjoyable Chanukah
Sincerely,
Simon
