Dear Rabbi Shure:

Thank you very much for your proposal, so carefully prepared and so convincingly written.

I used this material in broaching your proposal to a friend of mine who I had hoped would lend his support.

Quite unfortunately, and to my great regret, he expressed absolutely no interest in the project.

He was the only one in my congregation who I thought might be interested. Apparently I was unsuccessful, and I am terribly sorry, therefore, to have to return the material to you enclosed.

I am sure there must be people elsewhere who will participate in this wonderful work.

My very best regards and warmest wishes for success.

Sincerely yours,

RABBI NORMAN LAMM
