Dear Fabian:

As you had requested, I am returning to you the enclosed copy of Siegman's report on the two consultations.

I hope you do not mind that I made some penciled comments in the margins. With one or two exceptions they should prove legible and relevant.

In short, while I had a number of criticisms on this report, and a number of inaccuracies, I do not find anything in it that would get me excited about violations of the standards we had set for such dialogues.

All my best.

Cordially,

Norman.
