Dear Morris:

I have just returned from India as you know and as requested, I kept my open for items that you may be able to use.

The object of my visit, as I am sure you understand, was "business" and not pleasure, and my time was, therefore, very much restricted. However, I do expect to have some pictures, taken by myself and some taken by professional photographers, and as soon as these are received I shall let you have those that I think you would find of interest for your publication.

Meanwhile, the enclosed poem was written by a young lady, Bebe Daniel from Poona -- as exotic a place as you could want. She is very interested in having it published in the United States. Do you think you can use it? Whether you do or not, please let me know, and please return the copy of the poem to me. The young lady's name and address appear on the back of the manuscript.

All good wishes.

Sincerely yours,

Rabbi Norman Lamm
