

Indiana Communities with World-Famous Names

There are many towns and communities in Indiana that are named after countries and foreign cities. Despite being named after very large places, most of these communities are tiny. For example, Paris, IN is a village-like community with a population of less than 3,000. Compare that to more than 2 million people living in Paris in France!

See if you can find these towns in this word search. Good luck and have fun!
