2002 LSU BASEBALL

Game 8: LSU at Centenary—Tuesday, Feb. 19, 7 p.m., Shreveport

LSU Sports Information • (225) 578-8226 • (225) 578-1861 • P.O. Box 25095 • Baton Rouge, LA 70894-5095

LSU hits the road for the first time under Smoke Laval when the Tigers visit Centenary tonight in Shreveport.

- The Tigers will visit northwest Louisiana on the heels of a three-game sweep of Mercer.
- LSU set season highs for runs and hits in its 17-1 victory over the Bears on Sunday.
- LSU senior catcher Chris Phillips makes his homecoming tonight, as Phillips prepped at Captain Shreve High.

Scouting the Gents: Centenary comes into tonight's game at 4-6 after dropping three to Kansas.

- Centenary is after its first winning season since 1991.
- The Gents have been an independent for the past three seasons after leaving the Trans America Athletic Conference (now the Atlantic Sun).
- Centenary's last win was a 5-4 decision last Wednesday at Lamar.

About the series: LSU has won 19 consecutive games from the Gents and holds a 23-7-1 all-time lead.

- LSU won 6-3 on Mar. 28, 2000 at Fair Grounds Field in the last meeting between the schools.
- The Tigers won 21-1 in 1999 in the teams' last meeting at Alex Box Stadium.
- LSU coach Skip Bertman was 18-0 against Centenary from 1984-2000, good for the highest winning percentage against any foe with at least five meetings.
- The series was not played from 1958-1983, when Bertman revived it.
- The Gents' last victory in the series was a 2-1 triumph in 1956.
- The series is one of only three that dates back to before 1900, as the teams first met in 1895. The others are against Tulane (1893) and Texas (1899).

Vaught returns: Junior right-hander Chad Vaught gets the call against the Gents.

- The junior from Ferriday had a good outing against Southeastern Louisiana in his first start last Tuesday, striking out eight and giving up one run on five hits in 6.0 innings.

On the road again

After seven games of home cooking, LSU gets to hit the road for the first time this week with tonight's game at Centenary and a three-game trip over the weekend to Houston.

The Tigers were 13-11-1 on the road last year, but lost five of their last six on enemy fields. LSU was 3-4 against Louisiana foes on the road in 2001, including a 1-3 mark against Tulane. LSU's best road season under Skip Bertman was a 16-6 mark during the 2000 national championship campaign.

The Tigers are going on the road much earlier than they did last year, as the Tigers played their first 12 games at Alex Box Stadium before going to Arizona St. to begin March. In fact, this will be LSU's earliest trip out of Louisiana since 1998, when the Tigers visited Texas in the season's second weekend.

LSU traditionally opens its season at home, and hasn't left Louisiana to begin a year since the ABCA Tournament in Orlando to begin 1990. The last time the Tigers opened on an opponents' field was in 1985 at Central Florida.

Freshman invasion

When he made out his lineup card for Sunday's game, Smoke Laval decided that youth would be served. The new Tiger skipper inserted five freshmen into the starting lineup: Dustin Hahn (LF), J.C. Holt (2B), Jason Vargas (DH), Blake Gill (1B) and Rocky Scelfo (SS). It's believed to be the first time that the Tigers have ever had that many freshmen in the lineup at one time.

Led by a 4-for-4 effort by Blake Gill, LSU's freshmen collected 10 of the Tigers' 14 hits in the 17-1 victory, as every youngster who played had at least one hit. The biggest hit may have been by Clay Harris, who made his second career plate appearance a memorable one by launching a seventh inning grand slam.

Vargas also saw his first action on the mound, pitching 1.1 innings of perfect relief.

A total of eight freshmen have seen action so far this year, and seven of those played on Sunday. The only freshman who didn't see action against Mercer was left-handed pitcher Jason Determann. Determann hasn't pitched since a four-inning relief stint against Birmingham-Southern on Feb. 9.

The Tigers played a total of five freshmen the past two years combined—Wally Pontiff, Mike Fontenot and Brad David in 2000, and Aaron Hill and Lane Mestepey last year. Gill and Scelfo were redshirts on the 2001 team.

Gill roasts goose egg

Maybe an 0-for-16 slump gets forgotten in April. But when you're 0-for-16 to start a season and your career, it's going to wear on you.

But thanks to a big day Sunday, Tiger infielder Blake Gill no longer has that stigma. The Florida native went 4-for-4 with three runs scored in the series finale with Mercer, making him just the second LSU player to have four hits in a game this year, as Sean Barker did so in the season opener.

Gill's big day brought his average from zero to .200 in just two and a half hours.

2002 LSU BASEBALL

Pitcher Power

In his 18 years as coach, Skip Bertman had only one player who both pitched and hit with any regularity, and that was Will Hunt, an Oklahoma native who saw time as a left-handed reliever and DH on the 1992 and 1993 teams.

With Smoke Laval now in charge, the days of the two-way player at LSU may be dawning, especially after the turn of events this past weekend.

With the bases loaded and LSU looking to overtake Mercer on Saturday, the Tigers turned to true freshman southpaw Jason Vargas, who hit a full-count pitch for a pinch-hit grand slam, giving the Tigers their only lead of the game in a 9-6 triumph.

Vargas' blast made a winner out of another true freshman hurler, Clay Harris, who went 5.1 innings in relief of Lane Mestepey.

On Sunday, Harris and Vargas reversed their roles somewhat. Vargas started as the Tigers' designated hitter and went 2-for-5, then went to the mound to replace the injured Jake Tompkins and retired four batters in succession.

Harris, meanwhile, made the most of his second plate appearance, launching the first pitch into the left field bleachers for a grand slam, making him the first LSU player to hit a grand slam on his first career pitch. Harris then played the final two innings of the 17-1 victory at third base.

The two pinch hit home runs represent an improvement over 2001, as the Tigers had only one pinch-hit home run last year, and that was by Sean Barker on Apr. 13 against Ole Miss. The last time LSU had more than one pinch-hit home run in a season was in 1998 when the Tigers had four.

Bullpen comes through

LSU's oft-maligned bullpen came through in style against Mercer after blowing three save opportunities in the first four games. In the three-game series, Tiger relievers allowed just one run over nine innings of work and struck out six.

The weekend allowed LSU's bullpen to lower its season ERA from 6.91 prior to the Mercer series to a respectable 4.63.

Barker on RBI binge

LSU right fielder Sean Barker may have gone hitless in two of the three games against Mercer, but he continues to collect RBIs at a fast pace.

Barker has collected at least 2 RBI in six of the Tigers' seven games so far this year, missing only in the second game on Feb. 9 against Birmingham Southern. If Barker stays on his current pace, he will break the LSU single-season RBI record of 118 set by Brandon Larson in 1997, a record it took Larson 70 games to achieve. Barker is on pace for 120 RBI in the 56-game regular season schedule.

Barker has found other ways to drive in runs. On Saturday, he became the 14th player to collect two sacrifice flies in one game, giving him four on the year and leaving him on pace to shatter the LSU record in a season of 10 set in 1990 by Wes Grisham.

Barker leads the Tigers with a .464 batting average and a .607 slugging percentage, and is second on the team with a .472 on-base percentage.

Tigers proving clutch

LSU didn't get off to such a good start with runners in scoring position, going 6-for-35 in the first two games against Birmingham-Southern.

LSU has certainly pulled those numbers up since the first two games, and after a .367 weekend (11-for-30) with RISP against Mercer, the Tigers are inching toward the .300 mark, standing at .292 (26-for-89) heading into tonight's game with Centenary.

Sean Barker continues to pace LSU with a .444 RISP mark, with David Raymer (.429) and Dustin Hahn (.400) also thriving in those situations.

And if LSU has the chance to drive in a run with less than two out, the Tigers will do it. LSU was 16-for-16 against Mercer with a runner on third and less than two out, and on the year, they have missed only one of 31 opportunities.

It's 0 to 6 for No. 6

LSU outfielder Matt Heath came into Sunday's game just 3-for-17 (.176) and had not driven in a run in the first six games of the year.

The Florida transfer certainly broke out of his slump in a big way on Sunday, as he went 3-for-4, scored three runs and drove in a career-high six runs as the Tigers claimed a 17-1 victory.

Heath's binge started in the fourth inning when he blasted a triple to left to lead off the fifth, then he added a two-run single in the sixth and a three-run double in the seventh to go along with a sacrifice fly in the second.

The six RBI broke Heath's career high of five set last Mar. 2 at Arizona St., and became the first LSU player to drive in six or more runs in a game since Bryan Moore drove in seven last Mar. 3 at ASU.

This year is a mirror inversion for Heath, the Tigers' lone switch-hitter. Heath is batting .364 (4-for-11) as a left-handed batter, but only .200 (2-for-10) as a right-handed hitter. In 2001, Heath was 64 points higher (.333-.269) from the right side, which is Heath's natural side.

Tigers stay in top five

For the second consecutive week, LSU is the only SEC team to be ranked in the top five of all three polls.

LSU is ranked third in both the ESPN/ Baseball Weekly and Collegiate Baseball polls, while coming in fifth in the Baseball America survey. LSU dropped one spot in the Baseball Weekly poll and held steady in the other two polls.

The drop can be explained more by what Florida St. did than what LSU didn't do. The Seminoles swept Arizona St. at home to leapfrog LSU and Stanford to the top spot, while Stanford is first in the other two polls.

OUCH!

It is certainly the most painful way to get on base. But for LSU players this season, the sound of a baseball hitting skin or a batting helmet or some other part of the uniform has been good news.

Through seven games this year, LSU players have been hit by pitches 13 times, or an average of nearly two per contest. Eight of those HBPs were collected in the Mercer series, as Bear pitchers hit three Tiger batters on Friday and Sunday and two more on Saturday. Mercer was fortunate that none of the five batters who were hit scored in the first two games, but all three players who were plunked on Sunday scored in a 17-1 victory.

David Raymer has been hit by a pitch five times in 31 plate appearances, a big reason for his .586 on-base percentage. Rocky Scelfo has been hit three times, with five other players reaching once each.

If this keeps up, the Tigers are going to reach base on a hit-by-pitch 104 times during the regular season, compared to 81 batters who reached the hard way in 67 games in 2001. LSU does not keep records for most HBPs in a season, but the record is believed to be 110 during 2000. The individual record is believed to be held by Brad Cresse, who was plunked 41 times during his four-year career (1997-2000), including 20 times as a senior.

Stacking it up

Here's how LSU stacks up at the 1/8 pole this year compared to seven games of 2001:
