

Early on the morning after leading LSU to the 2007 BCS National Championship, coach Les Miles spoke passionately about the unique nature of the Fighting Tigers.

"They understand what being pinned down means," said Miles, who saw his team on four occasions erase fourth-quarter deficits to earn victories during its 12-2 season. "They understand what it takes to come back and fight and overcome hurdles."

When top-ranked LSU lost its '07 regular-season finale to Arkansas, it appeared the Tigers' chances for a national title had been extinguished. Though disappointed, LSU quickly turned its attention to the SEC Championship Game in Atlanta, where the Tigers – playing without starting quarterback Matt Flynn and suffering from a rash of injuries – overcame a fourth-quarter Tennessee lead to post a 21-14 victory over the Vols.

Ecstatic about winning LSU's third conference title this decade, yet frustrated about apparently falling short of a BCS title game berth, the Tigers flew home to Baton Rouge expecting to receive a Sugar Bowl invitation. However, losses that evening by Missouri and West Virginia gave LSU – which ascended to No. 2 in the BCS rankings – the cherished opportunity to meet No. 1 Ohio State in the BCS National Championship Game.

Before a raucous crowd of 79,651 in the Louisiana Superdome, the Tigers overcame an early 10-0 Ohio State lead with a 31-0 barrage in a 24-minute stretch to storm past the Buckeyes, 38-24.

LSU, which had won its first BCS title in 2003, became the first two-time national champion in the 10-season BCS era.

Miles, who owns a magnificent 34-6 record in three seasons at LSU, identified the Tigers' unyielding spirit as the characteristic that defined his squad.

"There may be more talented teams," Miles said. "But I can promise you this: this, by far and away, is the finest football team this year."

One Down, One to Go

LSU coach Les Miles and All-America defensive tackle Glenn Dorsey hoist the SEC Championship trophy after the Tigers' 21-14 win over Tennessee at the Georgia Dome in Atlanta. The next day, the Tigers watch the BCS Selection Show and learn they will play Ohio State in the BCS National Championship Game.

Let's Talk

Glenn Dorsey, the 2007 recipient of the Outland, Lott, Nagurski and Lombardi Awards, speaks to the media in the Louisiana Superdome two days prior to the Tigers' matchup with Ohio State. Defensive back Jai Eugene (4) provides additional entertainment during Media Day activities.

Digging Deep

Members of the LSU squad help to construct two new baseball fields at the Rosenwald Boys and Girls Club in New Orleans one day prior to the National Championship Game. Mascots Mike the Tiger and Brutus the Buckeye also participate in the project, which brings new life to a playground that was destroyed by Hurricane Katrina.

Championship Moments

Featured are images capturing the essence of a remarkable year as LSU became the first school to claim two national championships in the BCS era, which began with the 1998 season.

Title Tour

Les Miles displays the BCS Coaches' Trophy from the Royal Sonesta Hotel in New Orleans after leading LSU to a 38-24 victory over Ohio State in the National Championship Game. Miles also paid a postgame visit to ESPN's GameDay set in the Superdome, and participated in a press conference the next morning at the Marriott Convention Center.

High Profile

The 2007 National Championship flag is raised above the North end of Tiger Stadium on Jan. 19, 2008, as thousands of LSU fans braved frigid conditions to honor the Fighting Tigers. The national championship aftermath also includes a ceremony with Louisiana Governor Bobby Jindal in Baton Rouge and Mardi Gras parades in New Orleans featuring LSU players and coaches as special guests. Les Miles participates in the filming of an ESPN SportsCenter commercial and the design of the Tigers' 18-wheel equipment truck is updated to include LSU's 2007 title next to its 2003 and 1958 national crowns.

"It's good to welcome you back. Proud you're here. Nothing like being called, 'National Champs.' LSU has the honor of being the first school to win two BCS titles. This year there is no split." - President George W. Bush • April 7, 2008

Hail to the Tigers

LSU's tour of the nation's capital features visits to several landmarks, including the White House, the Lincoln Memorial, the Washington Monument, the Jefferson Memorial, the Pentagon, and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The National Champions arrived in Washington, D.C. on April 7, 2008, to meet with President George W. Bush at the White House. The Tigers presented him with an LSU jersey and a football signed by the team captains.

The LSU Defense

For the first time in the Les Miles era, the Tigers will open a season with a new defensive coordinator, as Doug Mallory and Bradley Dale Peveto have been promoted to co-defensive coordinators for 2008. Mallory, who will continue to coach the secondary; and Peveto, who will still oversee the linebackers, take over an LSU defense that returns five starters, including preseason All-America selection Tyson Jackson and linebacker Darry Beckwith. The Tigers have ranked among the top five in the nation in total defense in each of the past three seasons. Despite the loss of All-Everything defensive tackle Glenn Dorsey, the strength of the LSU defense will be up front. Joining Jackson up front for the Tigers will be tackle Ricky Jean-Francois, the defensive MOP of the BCS National Championship Game; and sixth-year senior Kirston Pittman. The Tigers will have a pair of first-time starters at cornerback due to the departure of Chevis Jackson and Jonathan Zenon.

Defensive Line

Senior defensive end Tyson Jackson (36 tackles, 3.5 sacks in 2007) headlines the list of starters up front for the Tigers. Joining Jackson on the Tiger defensive line are tackles Charles Alexander (6 tackles in 3 games in 2007) and Ricky Jean-Francois (9 tackles, 1.5 TFL in 2 games in 2007) and defensive end Kirston Pittman (68 tackles, 8 sacks in 2007). Alexander will return to the lineup after missing the final 11 games a year ago with a knee injury. Jean-Francois played in just the final two games in 2007 after being academically ineligible for the first four months of the season. Senior Marlon Favorite (28 tackles in 2007), junior Al Woods (22 tackles in 2007), and junior Rahim Alem (8 tackles, 2 sacks in 2007) will also be among the rotation on the defensive line in 2008.

Linebackers

The LSU linebacking corps will revolve around Darry Beckwith, who will occupy the middle for the Tigers. A second-team All-SEC pick in 2007, Beckwith had 65 tackles and 6.5 tackles for loss last year. Perry Riley and Kelvin Sheppard emerged from spring practice as the starters at the outside linebacker positions, taking the place of departed seniors Luke Sanders and Ali Highsmith.

Secondary

The Tigers will have to fill three spots in the secondary due to the departure of All-America safety Craig Steltz and cornerbacks Chevis Jackson and Jonathan Zenon. Free safety Curtis Taylor (54 tackles, 3 interceptions in 2007) is the lone returning starter in the secondary for the Tigers. Sophomore Chad Jones (34 tackles, 2 sacks), junior Harry Coleman (18 tackles) and junior Danny McCray (64 tackles, 3 sacks) are all competing for the other safety spot. All three players will play in LSU's sub-packages. Junior Chris Hawkins and sophomore Jai Eugene emerged from spring practice as the starters at cornerback.

The LSU Offense

The LSU offense is stacked once again as the Tigers return eight starters, including four offensive linemen, from a squad that set school records for total yards and points per game during the 2007 National Championship season. Perhaps the two biggest losses on the offensive side of the football from a year ago are that of quarterback Matt Flynn and running back Jacob Hester. In the absence of Flynn, the Tigers will turn to a pair of young quarterbacks in junior Andrew Hatch and redshirt freshman Jarrett Lee. Hatch is a transfer from Harvard who saw action in two games last year, while Lee spent his rookie season with the Tigers handling scout team duties. The strength of the Tiger offense will be up front as senior Brett Helms (center), senior Herman Johnson (left guard) and junior Ciron Black (left tackle) anchor an offensive line that could be considered among the best in the SEC. The Tigers will employ a running back-by-committee approach in the backfield, while Demetrius Byrd and Brandon LaFell highlight a group of talented wide receivers.

Quarterback

The quarterback position will be the least experienced position on the offensive side of the football for the Tigers in 2008. Gone is senior Matt Flynn, who directed the Tigers to a total of 10 offensive school records in 2007. In his place will be junior Andrew Hatch or redshirt freshman Jarrett Lee. Hatch, a transfer from Harvard, is the only quarterback on the LSU roster that has taken a collegiate snap. Hatch saw action in two games a year ago, while Lee spent the season serving as the scout team quarterback. True freshman Jordan Jefferson joins the Tigers in 2008 after a sensational prep career.

QB	12	Jarrett Lee	6-2	190	Fr.-RS
-or-	14	Andrew Hatch	6-3	214	So.
	9	Jordan Jefferson	6-4	210	Fr.

Tailback

Despite losing Jacob Hester, who rushed for over 1,000 yards a year ago, to the NFL, the Tigers are loaded at tailback with the return of three juniors in Keiland Williams (478 yards, 6 TDs in 2007), Charles Scott (324 yards, 5 TDs in 2007) and speedster Trindon Holliday (364 yards, 2 TDs in 2007), along with sophomore Richard Murphy (230 yards, 2 TDs in 2007). Williams and Scott are the most experienced of the bunch, however, Murphy showed flashes of brilliance last year in his first season on the field with the Tigers. Holliday is one of the fastest players in college football and can change the complexion of a game anytime he touches the football.

-or-	5	Keiland Williams	6-0	226	Jr.
-or-	8	Trindon Holliday	5-5	160	Jr.

Fullback

Senior Quinn Johnson returns as LSU's starting fullback after playing in 14 games with five starts a year ago. A converted linebacker, Johnson is a punishing blocker who the Tigers rely on during short-yardage situations. Redshirt freshman Stevan Ridley will see action as well.

FB	45	Quinn Johnson	6-2	238	Sr.
	34	Stevan Ridley	5-11	209	Fr.-RS

Tight End

Richard Dickson returns as LSU's starting tight end after tying a school record for TD receptions by a tight end with five last year. Dickson also caught 32 passes in 2007, which ranks as the third-highest total in school history. Redshirt freshman Mitch Joseph, along with senior Caleb Angelle, will serve as the backup tight end to Dickson.

TE	82	Richard Dickson	6-3	235	Jr.
	83	Mitch Joseph	6-5	243	Fr.-RS
	40	Caleb Angelle	6-4	245	Sr.

Wide Receiver

The Tigers return two of their top three receivers from a year ago in junior Brandon LaFell and senior Demetrius Byrd. A year ago, LaFell and Byrd combined for 85 catches and over 1,200 with Byrd leading the squad with seven touchdowns and LaFell adding four. Other players in the mix to contribute at receiver this year include junior Jared Mitchell (13 rec., 143 yards in 2007), junior R. J. Jackson, sophomore Terrance Toliver (10 rec., 249 yards, 3 TDs in 2007), and junior Chris Mitchell (5 rec., 56 yards in 2007).

Offensive Line

The strength of the Tiger offense will be up front as LSU returns four starters, including All-SEC selection Herman Johnson at left guard. Brett Helms, one of the most productive linemen in school history, returns for his third season as LSU's starting center, while Ciron Black, a second-team All-SEC pick in 2007, holds down the left tackle spot. Junior Lyle Hitt, a former defensive lineman, will start at right guard for the second-straight season, while a pair of sophomores, Joseph Barksdale and Jarvis Jones, will compete for the right tackle spot.

Special Teams

Under Les Miles' watch, the LSU special teams has been one of the strengths of the team and that should continue in 2008 with the return of All-SEC place kicker Colt David and return specialist Trindon Holliday. David set both LSU and SEC records a year ago with 147 total points, which included kicking a school-record 26 field goals. Holliday will continue to return kickoffs for the Tigers after a 26.2 yards per return average a year ago. In two years, Holliday has returned two kickoffs for touchdowns. One change for the Tigers this year is that of Joe Robinson, who joined the staff during the spring and will handle special teams coordinator responsibilities. The Tigers will have a first-time punter for the second-straight year with the departure of Patrick Fisher. Brady Dalfrey and Josh Jasper go into fall camp competing for punting duties for the Tigers.
