MICHAEL ROMANELLI

Price Sheet

Michael Romanelli is an artist based in Arnold, Missouri. Born in Brooklyn, NY, he spent the early 2000s painting and selling his work on the NYC streets and in an NYC gallery he co-owned with two other artists.

Romanelli paints psychologically charged worlds inhabited by brightly painted people and creatures caught in heightened states of excitement, anxiety, malaise, or melancholy. His neo-expressionist compositions are densely layered with cryptic text and iconography.

His work refuses tidy narratives. Familiar scenes slowly curdle into something stranger. The longer you look, the more the paintings seem to look back.

Every inch of the surface is considered, layered, built up over time. He works the paintings progressively so the layers of color, stenciling, text, iconography, and even faces become like layers of thought. It's that slow accumulation that contributes to the slow reveal of the work. Viewers comment that over an extended period of time with one painting they keep finding something new.
