POST GRADUATE PROGRAM IN INFECTIOUS DISEASES

The Post Graduate Program in Infectious Diseases is one of the most sought after programs in healthcare education, further elevated due to the pandemic. This program helps physicians and healthcare professionals understand the core of contagious diseases, their pathophysiology, lasting effects on the community, and more.

Accredited by the University of New South Wales, Australia and jointly certified by the School of Public Health & Community Medicine along with Medvarsity Online Limited, this course has been created under the guidance of Course Faculties, Prof. Raina MacIntyre, Dr. James Wood, Dr. Holly Seale, Dr. Anita Heywood, Dr. Patrick Rawstorne, Dr. Padmanesan Narshimhan, Dr. Heather Gidding, Dr. Mohamud Sheik & Prof. Nick Zwar.

The 12-month course includes webinars with global faculty, virtual classes, and various case studies that will give you a holistic approach to infectious diseases, their cure and prevention.
