

Centennial Dog Bite Lawyer FAQ

Answers to common questions about dog bite incidents in Centennial, Colorado.

Based on Centennial Dog Bite Lawyer by McCormick and Murphy

Q: What should I do immediately after a dog bite?

A: Seek medical attention right away, even if the wound seems minor. A doctor will clean the wound, assess infection risk, administer necessary shots, and document the injury.

Q: What information should I try to get from the dog owner?

A: Get the dog owner's contact information and verify the dog's rabies vaccination status.

Q: Should I photograph my injuries?

A: Yes, you should photograph your injuries and the location of the attack to document the incident.

Q: Who should I report the dog bite to?

A: Report the bite to Arapahoe County Animal Control.

Q: What kind of documentation should I keep?

A: Keep all medical records, bills, and any documentation of missed work or school.

Q: Why is it important to see a doctor even for a minor bite?

A: A doctor will clean the wound, assess the risk of infection, administer necessary shots like tetanus or rabies, and create an official record of your injury.

Q: What if the dog owner refuses to give me their information?

A: While the article emphasizes getting the owner's information, if they are uncooperative, focus on seeking medical attention and reporting the incident to animal control.

Q: Is rabies vaccination status important?

A: Yes, verifying the dog's rabies vaccination status is important for assessing potential health risks and for documentation purposes.

Q: How can photos help my case?

A: Photographs of your injuries and the attack location serve as crucial evidence to document the severity and circumstances of the dog bite.

Q: What is the role of Arapahoe County Animal Control?

A: Arapahoe County Animal Control is the official body to whom dog bites should be reported. They handle investigations and enforce relevant regulations.

Q: Why should I keep records of missed work or school?

A: Documentation of missed work or school demonstrates the impact of the injury on your livelihood and daily activities, which can be important for compensation claims.

Q: What if I can't get the dog owner's contact information?

A: Prioritize seeking immediate medical care and reporting the incident to Arapahoe County Animal Control. They may be able to assist in identifying the owner.
