

Greeley Dog Bite FAQ

Answers to common questions about dog bite incidents in Greeley.

Based on Greeley Dog Bite Lawyer by McCormick and Murphy

Q: What should I do immediately after a dog bite?

A: Seek medical attention right away, even if the bite seems minor. Get the dog owner's contact information and find out if the dog is vaccinated against rabies. Take photos of your injuries, the location, and any torn clothing.

Q: Why is seeing a doctor important after a dog bite?

A: Dog bites can become infected quickly. A doctor visit creates a medical record of your injury, which is important for any potential claim.

Q: Should I get the dog owner's information?

A: Yes, it is important to get the dog owner's contact information. You should also find out if the dog is vaccinated against rabies.

Q: What kind of photos should I take after a dog bite?

A: Take photos of your injuries, the location where the bite occurred, and any torn clothing. These photos can serve as important evidence.

Q: Who should I report the dog bite to?

A: You should report the bite to Greeley Animal Control. This action creates an official record of the incident.

Q: What if the dog owner's insurance company contacts me?

A: Do not give a statement to the dog owner's insurance company without speaking to a lawyer first. They may try to minimize your claim.

Q: Can I get compensation for a dog bite injury?

A: Yes, if negligence led to your injury, you may be able to seek compensation for medical bills, lost wages, and pain and suffering.

Q: What is considered negligence in a dog bite case?

A: Negligence can include the owner failing to control their dog, not restraining a known aggressive dog, or violating leash laws.

Q: How long do I have to file a dog bite lawsuit in Colorado?

A: Colorado has a statute of limitations for personal injury cases, typically three years from the date of the injury, but it's best to consult a lawyer promptly.

Q: Do I need a lawyer if the bite seems minor?

A: Even if the bite seems minor, it's wise to consult a lawyer. Infections can develop, and understanding your rights early is crucial.

Q: What if the dog owner is a friend or family member?

A: You can still pursue a claim even if the dog owner is someone you know. A lawyer can help navigate these sensitive situations while protecting your rights.

Q: What evidence is important in a dog bite case?

A: Key evidence includes medical records, photographs of the injury and scene, witness statements, and any official reports filed with animal control.
