Based on Westminster Dog Bite Lawyer by McCormick and Murphy

Q: What should I do immediately after a dog bite?

A: Seek medical attention right away, even if the wound seems minor, as dog bites carry a high risk of infection. After getting care, identify the dog and its owner, document your injuries with photos, and collect witness information if available.

Q: Is it important to see a doctor even for a small bite?

A: Yes, it is crucial to seek medical attention immediately. Dog bites have a high risk of infection and other complications, so even seemingly minor wounds should be evaluated by a medical professional.

Q: What information should I gather after a dog bite?

A: You should identify the dog and its owner, document your injuries with photos, and collect witness information if anyone saw the attack. Reporting the bite to Westminster Animal Control is also recommended.

Q: Who should I report a dog bite to?

A: You should report the dog bite to Westminster Animal Control. This is an important step after seeking medical attention and gathering initial information.

Q: Should I talk to the dog owner's insurance company?

A: No, you should not speak to the dog owner's insurance company before consulting with a lawyer. This is to protect your rights and ensure you receive fair compensation.

Q: When should I contact a lawyer after a dog bite?

A: It is advisable to contact a lawyer before speaking with the dog owner's insurance company. A lawyer can provide guidance on protecting your rights and navigating the claims process.

Q: What are the risks associated with dog bites?

A: Dog bites carry a high risk of infection and other complications. Prompt medical attention is essential to manage these risks effectively.

Q: What if the dog bite seems minor?

A: Even if a dog bite wound appears minor, it is essential to seek medical attention immediately. There is a high risk of infection and complications that may not be immediately apparent.

Q: What is the role of Westminster Animal Control?

A: Westminster Animal Control should be informed about the dog bite incident. Reporting the bite is part of the necessary steps to take after an attack.

Q: How can a lawyer help with a dog bite case?

A: A lawyer can provide guidance on protecting your rights after a dog bite. They can help you understand your legal options and advise you on how to deal with insurance companies.

Q: What is the first priority after being bitten by a dog?

A: The first priority after a dog bite is to seek medical attention immediately, regardless of how minor the wound may seem, due to the high risk of infection.
