

Elections

✓ Most Reverend Cletus O'Donnell
Auxiliary Bishop -
Bishop-Designate - Harold Perry

REMARKS

Your Excellency - Bishop Cody
The Rt Rev Msgr
Frederick Steuerman
Rt Reverend
Msgr Kelly
Youth -

VICE PRESIDENT HUBERT HUMPHREY

CYO CONVENTION

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

NOVEMBER 13, 1965

Bishop Cody
your challenger
Bishop O'Donnell
Bishop Perry
Msgr Steuerman
Msgr Kelly

Mayor Daley

Your Excellency, Monsignor, Reverend Clergy, Sisters, Brothers

and my friends of the CYO:

I am deeply honored to receive this award,
"For God and Youth." ^{I'm favor both - I hope I may be} ^{favor both} ~~favor both~~ ^{blessed by their favor}

~~The~~ You young people of CYO exemplify what is right with the youth of America. You are our builders of the future. You will ^{do} uphold our nation's best traditions and practice good citizenship and civic responsibility.

not what!
so wrong!

✓ Greeting my colleague - Eugene Mc Carthy (X)
✓ I follow illustrious speakers
JFK + J. Edgar Hoover
Robert Kennedy - Harry Truman + Richard Nixon

Pope

↳ You are working, in the words of Pope Paul, to "create a world that is more humane by promoting the common good for all."

Young country

↳ We are a young country. And we are getting younger all the time. The average age of the signers of the Declaration of Independence was 45. And that includes Ben Franklin, who was 70 at the time. Thomas Jefferson was only 33 when he drafted the Declaration.

↳ Today the average age of a United States Senator is less than 58. The average Representative is about 50. And the average newcomer to the Congress is 44.
The youngest Senator is 32; the youngest Representative, 25.

↳ Today more than half of the electorate is less than 35. And by 1980, more than half of our population will be less than 25.

J. F. K. President

In House - & Senate

HH - 32 Major
Deaper Brigade

Johnson

Our own President held his first Presidential appointment at 27 and his first political office at 29.

In America, more than in any other place in the world, a young person can rise as rapidly as his talents and energies allow him. Youth is no barrier.

Eight days before the terrible tragedy of November 22nd, 1963, President Kennedy addressed your convention in New York and urged you to "give the best you have to the United States because upon our people rests the burden of caring for our own as well as for millions of others around the world who look to the United States."

Today's young people -- as students and as citizens -- are meeting their responsibilities in carrying that burden.

↳ A poll in a national news magazine recently asked American students how far they would go -- beyond mere talk -- to support a cause in which they believed. Some 93 per cent said they would sign a petition -- 72 per cent had already done so. ↳ Some 87 per cent said they would contribute money -- 58 per cent had already done so. Forty-three per cent were even ready to go to jail. — Volunteer Generation

↳ More than 10,000 young volunteers are now serving in the Peace Corps. Another 3,000 have already returned after tours of duty. But most significant, more than 100,000 have asked to take part in the bold and imaginative experiment.

↳ When VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America -- the domestic Peace Corps) was launched, more than 3,000 inquiries were received from young people on the first day of business.

↳ No fewer than one-quarter of the members of our armed services are under twenty years old.

Teenagers Fight & win our wars.

But. ↳ Young Americans today live in a world that has the capacity to destroy itself. And they know that the detonators are in the hands of the older generation.

↳ Yet they have responded not by turning selfishly inward, but by personal involvement in the world around them.

↳ They have, far better than the older generation, grasped the facts of our time.

You know that We no longer live safe in our continental refuge.

↳ There is no place to hide. There is no security in isolation.

↳ While our nation enjoys the greatest prosperity in history, and possesses unequaled power, we also live in mounting danger and uncertainty.

↳ The world is filled with disorder, violent change, yes, revolution.

↳ We must face the fact that there are modern weapons which can destroy the civilized world in a half-hour's time.

↳ We must face the fact that two-thirds of the world is poor, hungry, and sick, -- and the gap between the rich nations and the poor nations widens each year.

↳ These restless, poor and yet proud people demand, by whatever means, something better. ↳ This two-thirds of the world is the target for those who promise quick and easy solution to old and complex problems.

The globe is exploding with people.

↳ We are engulfed in great waves of scientific and technological change which we do not fully understand and which can overcome us or save us. Space!

↳ We must master science and technology so that it may serve man.

↳ We must learn the techniques of defeating the new tactics of aggression.

↳ But we must also learn this truth: The mere existence of deep poverty in the world is not only unjust -- it is an invitation to freedom's destruction.

↳ And we must realize that this gigantic task of helping others to help themselves, of resisting aggression and protecting freedom can only be sustained if America, the leader of free nations, is powerful and united.

Pope John

↳ I know that the vast majority of American young people are united in support of this nation's policies of commitment to the world -- and, specifically, our present role in Vietnam.

↳ I am proud that CYO has endorsed them.

↳ Others disagree.

↳ Criticism and debate are vital to a democracy.

Nobody denies anyone the right to take issue with the policies of his government.

↳ But the right to be heard does not automatically include the right to be taken seriously. The latter depends upon what is being said.

↳ I salute those young people who not only dissent, but who by the logic and substance of their argument have compelled the citizens of America to pay attention to their views -- to take them seriously.

*Parent, Relate
Disagree
Discussion*

↳ I am also here to say, frankly and critically, that the behavior of some young Americans in recent weeks is not deserving of such attention.

Dissent
Debate
Discuss Decide

↳ The right of dissent is a vital factor in the health of our democratic order. But there exists an equal obligation for those with responsibility to decide -- to act -- to choose among conflicting opinions and available options. And these decisions demand a precious combination of courage and common sense.

↳ Humanity's plea is for peace. Pope Paul dramatized this plea during his historic pilgrimage to the United Nations. And he spoke for all mankind when he told the UN delegates: "War never again . . . If you wish to be brothers let the arms fall from your hands."

↳ President Johnson has said the most important word in the world is "peace," We must pursue peace to the end of the earth or face the end of the earth.

↳ But, my friends, we cannot have peace by retreating from our commitments and obligations, ↳ We cannot obtain peace by delivering up the people of small or weak nations to tyranny and terror. ↳ We cannot have peace by walking away from communist threats or acts of aggression.

↳ Certainly, by now, we should have learned the lessons of the past. My generation witnessed the sacrifice of whole countries in an effort to satisfy totalitarian appetite -- and only succeeded in whetting that appetite. ↳ The result was that war was not averted -- it was made certain.

↳ I believe that peace can be realized in the world.

↳ I think that nations can come together to settle their differences around a conference table rather than a battlefield. ↳ But the way to peace -- the way to avoid the awful alternative of nuclear destruction -- can never be to placate aggressors or fail to live up to our commitments.

↳ The pursuit of peace is an act of courage and resistance to aggression is the duty of free men.

↳ I have faith in you and in your future. You are not complacent. You do not seek your own security. You are filled with a spirit that says: Change what is wrong by doing what is right . . . give of yourself . . . be involved . . . be committed . . . do not be satisfied with mediocrity . . . take part in life.

ALL Excellence

President Johnson has said: "We are grateful for the progress that we ourselves have achieved.

↳ We are pleased and we are determined to press forward -- not for our gain and greatness alone, but rather for the gain and the good of all mankind everywhere."

↳ It is in this spirit that I call on you today: Have no little dreams. Make no little plans. Reach for the stars. Do not be satisfied with things as they are.

↳ Be remembered, ^{Toynebee} ~~as Toynebee~~ says, not for crimes or even astonishing inventions, but as the first generation to dare to make the benefits of civilization available to all mankind.

↳ And, finally, be firm . . . be perserving . . . be devoted to the goal of peace for all men, for all time.

"Civilization is a race between Education + Catastrophe"

"You can't be both free + ignorant"

↳ For the pursuit of peace resembles the building of a great cathedral. It is the work of generations.
In concept it requires a master architect; in execution, the labors of many. Make the pursuit of peace the work of your generation.

↳ Do these things with faith and labor -- so that men in future generations may live as free men facing days ahead of peace and promise.

####

- The building blocks are a just and free America - strong today + tomorrow - to sustain our efforts for years to come -
- ↳ Food - Books - plants + Nonprofits - Science -
 - ↳ A War on hunger - Illiteracy - Disease -
 - ↳ Support + strengthen the U.N -
 - ↳ Develop + expand international institutions like the World Bank -
 - ↳ Foreign Aid + Technical Assist
 - ↳ Voluntary Agencies
 - ↳ Human Rts - Civil Rts -

REMARKS OF VICE PRESIDENT HUBERT H. HUMPHREY, AT THE CYO CONVENTION, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, NOVEMBER 13, 1965

Your Excellency, Monsignor, Reverend Clergy, and my friends of the CYO:

I am deeply honored to receive this ward, "For God and Youth."

You young people of CYO exemplify what is right with the youth of America. You are our builders of the future. You will uphold our nation's best traditions and practice good citizenship and civic responsibility.

You are working, in the words of Pope Paul, to "create a world that is more humane by promoting the common good for all."

We are a young country. And we are getting younger all the time. The average age of the signers of the Declaration of Independence was 45. And that includes Ben Franklin, who was 70 at the time. Thomas Jefferson was only 33 when he drafted the Declaration.

Today the average age of a United States Senator is less than 58. The average Representative is about 50. And the average newcomer to the Congress is 44. The youngest Senator is 32; the youngest Representative, 25.

Today more than half of the electorate is less than 35. And by 1966, more than half of our population will be less than 25.

Our own President held his first Presidential appointment at 27 and his first political office at 29.

In America, more than in any other place in the world, a young person can rise as rapidly as his talents and energies allow him. Youth is no barrier.

Eight days before the terrible tragedy of November 22nd, 1963, President Kennedy addressed your convention in New York and urged you to "give the best you have to the United States because upon our people rests the burden of caring for our own as well as for millions of others around the world who look to the United States."

Today's young people -- as students and as citizens -- are meeting their responsibilities in carrying that burden.

A poll in a national news magazine recently asked American students how far they would go -- beyond mere talk -- to support a cause in which they believed. Some 93 per cent said they would sign a petition -- 72 per cent had already done so. Some 87 per cent said they would contribute money -- 58 per cent had already done so. Forty-three per cent were even ready to go to jail.

More than 10,000 young volunteers are now serving in the Peace Corps. Another 3,000 have already returned after tours of duty. But most significant, more than 100,000 have asked to take part in the bold and imaginative experiment.

When VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America -- the domestic Peace Corps) was launched, more than 3,000 inquiries were received from young people on the first day of business.

No fewer than one-quarter of the members of our armed services are under twenty years old.

Young Americans today live in a world that has the capacity to destroy itself. And they know that the detonators are in the hands of the older generation. Yet they have responded not by turning selfishly inward, but by personal involvement in the world around them. They have, far better than the older generation, grasped the facts of our time.

We no longer live safe in our continental refuge. There is no place to hide. There is no security in isolation.

While our nation enjoys the greatest prosperity in history, and possesses unequalled power, we also live in mounting danger and uncertainty.

The world is filled with disorder, violent change, yes, revolution.

We must face the fact that there are modern weapons which can destroy the civilized world in a half-hour's time.

We must face the fact that two-thirds of the world is poor, hungry, and sick, -- and the gap between the rich nations and the poor nations widens each year. These restless, poor and yet proud people demand, by whatever means, something better. This two-thirds of the world is the target for those who promise quick and easy solution to old and complex problems.

We are engulfed in great waves of scientific and technological change which we do not fully understand and which can overcome us or save us.

We must master science and technology so that it may serve man.

We must learn the techniques of defeating the new tactics of aggression.

But we must also learn this truth: The mere existence of deep poverty in the world is not only unjust -- it is an invitation to freedom's destruction.

And we must realize that this gigantic task of helping others to help themselves, of resisting aggression and protecting freedom can only be sustained if America, the leader of free nations, is powerful and united.

I know that the vast majority of American young people are united in support of this nation's policies of commitment to the world -- and, specifically, our present role in Vietnam.

I am proud that CYO has endorsed them.

Others disagree.

Criticism and debate are vital to a democracy. Nobody denies anyone the right to take issue with the policies of his government

But the right to be heard does not automatically include the right to be taken seriously. The latter depends upon what is being said.

I salute those young people who not only dissent, but who by the logic and substance of their argument have compelled the citizens of America to pay attention to their views -- to take them seriously.

I am also here to say, frankly and critically, that the behavior of some young Americans in recent weeks is not deserving of such attention.

The right of dissent is a vital factor in the health of our democratic order. But there exists an equal obligation for those with responsibility to decide -- to act -- to choose among conflicting opinions and available options. And these decisions demand a precious combination of courage and common sense.

Humanity's plea is for peace. Pope Paul dramatized this plea during his historic pilgrimage to the United Nations. And he spoke for all mankind when he told the UN delegates: "War never again . . . If you wish to be brothers let the arms fall from your hands."

President Johnson has said the most important word in the world is "peace." We must pursue peace to the end of the earth or face the end of the earth.

But, my friends, we cannot have peace by retreating from our commitments and obligations. We cannot obtain peace by delivering up the people of small or weak nations to tyranny and terror.

We cannot have peace by walking away from communist threats or acts of aggression. Certainly, by now, we should have learned the lessons of the past. My generation witnessed the sacrifice of whole countries in an effort to satisfy totalitarian appetite -- and only succeeded in whetting that appetite. The result was that war was not averted -- it was made certain.

I believe that peace can be realized in the world. I think that nations can come together to settle their differences around a conference table rather than a battlefield. But the way to peace -- the way to avoid the awful alternative of nuclear destruction -- can never be to placate aggressors or fail to live up to our commitments.

The pursuit of peace is an act of courage and resistance to aggression is the duty of free men.

I have faith in you and in your future. You are not complacent. You do not seek your own security. You are filled with a spirit that says: Change what is wrong by doing what is right. . . . give of yourself . . . be involved . . . be committed . . . do not be satisfied with mediocrity . . . take part in life.

President Johnson has said: "We are grateful for the progress that we ourselves have achieved. We are pleased and we are determined to press forward -- not for our gain and greatness alone, but rather for the gain and the good of all mankind everywhere."

It is in this spirit that I call on you today: Have no little dreams. Make no little plans. Reach for the stars. Do not be satisfied with things as they are.

Be remembered, as Toynbee says, not for crimes or even astonishing inventions, but as the first generation to dare to make the benefits of civilization available to all mankind.

And, finally, be firm . . . be preserving . . . be devoted to the goal of peace for all men, for all time.

For the pursuit of peace resembles the building of a great cathedral. It is the work of generations. In concept it requires a master architect; in execution, the labors of many. Make the pursuit of peace the work of your generation.

Do these things with faith and labor -- so that men in future generations may live as free men facing days ahead of peace and promise.

Minnesota Historical Society

Copyright in this digital version belongs to the Minnesota Historical Society and its content may not be copied without the copyright holder's express written permission. Users may print, download, link to, or email content, however, for individual use.

To request permission for commercial or educational use, please contact the Minnesota Historical Society.

www.mnhs.org