

REMARKS

VICE PRESIDENT HUBERT HUMPHREY

DEMOCRATIC FUND RAISING DINNER

PHOENIX, ARIZONA

APRIL 16, 1966

As we Democrats meet tonight we look to the future. That's what makes us Democrats. We look forward to new challenges and new opportunities -- we know that the world is filled with them. We look forward.

Look to the future

21 yrs ago this week

21 yrs Twenty-one years ago this week our nation lost the man who gave this country ~~forward motion~~ inspiration when we needed it most . . . the man who helped us take our place in the world as responsible international citizens
. . . the man who preserved our democratic system at a time when there were those who would have destroyed it.

1. The only limit to our realization of tomorrow will be our doubts of Today. Let us move forward with a strong and active faith."

↳ Twenty-one years ago this week we lost President Franklin Roosevelt.

↳ The work we do today was the work he began. The world we seek -- the world of Freedom & Peace -- in common with other free nations -- is the one that Franklin Roosevelt ~~looked toward~~ <sup>worked for - died for.</sup> more ~~than twenty five years ago:~~

FDR

"In the future days, which we seek to make secure, we look forward to a world founded upon four essential human freedoms.

4 freedoms

①

"The first is freedom of speech and expression -- everywhere in the world.

②

"The second is freedom of every person to worship God in his own way -- everywhere in the world.

③

"The third is freedom from want -- which, translated into world terms means economic understandings which will secure every nation a healthy peacetime life for its inhabitants -- everywhere in the world.

freedom ④ from fear.

"The fourth is freedom from fear -- which, translated into world terms, means a worldwide reduction of armaments to such a point and in such a thorough fashion that no nation will be in a position to commit an act of physical aggression against any neighbor -- anywhere in the world."

FDR - Prophet

Franklin Roosevelt saw a world in which the old coercions . . . the old oppressions . . . the old injustices might be pushed aside. He saw a world in which man might emerge into an age of enlightenment and understanding.

and

Franklin Roosevelt's vision of yesterday is our goal of today. We work so that it may be the reality of tomorrow.

LBJ
vision
&
Hope

~~Franklin Roosevelt often said that the only whole men were free men.~~

Today our task at home is to create a society of ~~whole~~ and free men where every American citizen -- no matter where he lives . . . no matter what his skin color . . . no matter where he worships . . . no matter where he comes from -- may be a full productive participant in America. <sup>go,</sup> To build a better and freer world we need a better ~~and freer~~ America. Our land, our factories, our cities, our water, our roads, our people -- these are the things which must be fully developed if our ~~dreams~~ <sup>hopes</sup> ~~are to exceed our reach.~~ and dreams are to be fulfilled.

~~We are creating a change of propositions~~ <sup>It used</sup> to be that America was the land of freedom and opportunity if you had the right last name or went to the right church or worked in the right place or if your <sup>skin</sup> ~~face~~ happened to be the right shade. But today we are changing things. America can and will be the land of freedom and opportunity when each child entering life can look forward to an equal chance to make the most of himself . . . to climb to the limit of his abilities . . . to stand right up and claim his place in life without regard for superficial and ~~any irrelevant mark of the surface.~~

Better America

In the last session of the Congress, under President Johnson's leadership -- and the leadership of Senator Carl Hayden of Arizona, -- we made into law the hopes and ideas of our generation and the generation before: Voting Rights, Immigration, Education, Medicare, Housing and Urban Development, Arts and Humanities.

We made laws to make war on poverty.

Moldahl
Duke Seamer

∟ We made laws to turn American agriculture ~~into~~ into a new and fruitful direction.

∟ These laws are nothing more than investments -- many of them deferred for far too long. They are investments in the better and stronger America -- an America of "first class citizens" that must be built if we are to carry our burdens at home and in the world.

and ∟ Those burdens will not be small burdens. There are, of course, the challenges we face at home.

∟ In four years, 211 million people will live here. Half of them will be under age 25. Within ten years we will need, each year, over 2 million new homes . . .
thousands of schools . . . transportation systems to move goods and people . . . fresh air and light and open space . . . ~~years~~ and art, music, literature, theatre --

Wah

the things that make life more than a constant struggle for material goods.

↳ But those tasks are nothing compared to the tasks
we face in the world around us.

✓ | ↳ Can the four freedoms be realized not only in America but in the world? Skeptics might say that the odds are against us.

Today two-thirds of mankind lives in the same darkness and ignorance it has known for centuries -- and the gap between the rich nations and the poor nations widens each year. At the same time these disinherited of the earth are exposed to modern communication which makes it all too clear that they are not sharing in the benefits we enjoy as a matter of course. These people are the targets of the stirrers-of-trouble and makers-of-violent revolution.

We live in a world in which there are weapons that could wipe out the Northern Hemisphere in less than a half-hour's time.

We live in a world in which large and strong nations have made it their doctrine that democratic institutions must be destroyed and small nations brought to heel with brute force.

Nuclear

Communist

↳ How, in this environment, will the four freedoms ever be achieved?

We know the answer.

↳ It is true that America is the last, best hope of earth. (Louch)

↳ It is up to us to lead the way toward the time when the threat of nuclear destruction does not hover above the earth.

↳ It is up to us to help the small and weak nations build the fabric of strong, stable -- and free -- societies, in face of subversion and totalitarian threat.

↳ We know that it is up to us to provide the leadership
-- yes, often to provide the material resources -- to stimulate the strong nations of the West to a greater sharing of these tasks.

And I'm afraid,
~~I have news for you:~~ There will be no time ahead to relax. There will be no breathing space. No oceans can protect us. There will be no way to avoid "entangling alliances." foreign involvement.

We are the leaders. And the responsibilities of leadership are ours to bear.

↳ The tides of history are moving fast. We can be engulfed by those tides. Or we can use their powerful generative force. ↳ We can harness those tides to the cause of mankind -- if we have the courage, if we have the perseverance, if we build the strong united ~~cohesive~~ American society that we will need.

↳ Will the four freedoms be achieved?

The answer was given by Franklin Roosevelt in the last words he ever wrote -- words he had no chance to use in his Jefferson Day address which would have been delivered twenty-one years ago this week.

Franklin Roosevelt wrote: "The only limit to our realization of tomorrow will be our doubts of today. Let us move forward with strong and active faith."

My fellow Democrats: Let us move forward.

# # # #

REMARKS OF VICE PRESIDENT HUBERT H. HUMPHREY AT THE DEMOCRATIC FUND RAISING DINNER, PHOENIX, ARIZONA,
APRIL 16, 1966

As we Democrats meet tonight we look to the future. That's what makes us Democrats. We look forward to new challenges and new opportunities -- we know that the world is filled with them. We look forward.

Twenty-one years ago this week our nation lost the man who gave this country forward motion when we needed it most . . . the man who helped us take our place in the world as responsible international citizens . . . the man who preserved our democratic system at a time when there were those who would have destroyed it.

Twenty-one years ago this week we lost President Franklin Roosevelt.

The work we do today was the work he began. The world we seek -- in common with other free nations -- is the one that Franklin Roosevelt looked toward more than twenty-five years ago:

"In the future days, which we seek to make secure, we look forward to a world founded upon four essential human freedoms .

"The first is freedom of speech and expression -- everywhere in the world.

"The second is freedom of every person to worship God in his own way -- everywhere in the world.

"The third is freedom from want -- which, translated into world terms means economic understandings which will secure every nation a healthy peacetime life for its inhabitants -- everywhere in the world.

"The fourth is freedom from fear -- which, translated into world terms, means a worldwide reduction of armaments to such a point and in such a thorough fashion that no nation will be in a position to commit an act of physical aggression against any neighbor -- anywhere in the world."

Franklin Roosevelt saw a world in which the old coercions . . . the old oppressions . . . the old injustices might be pushed aside. He saw a world in which man might emerge into an age of enlightenment and understanding.

Franklin Roosevelt's vision of yesterday is our goal of today. We work so that it may be the reality of tomorrow.

Franklin Roosevelt often said that the only whole men were free men.

Today our task at home is to create a society of whole and free men where every American citizen -- no matter where he lives . . . no matter what his skin color . . . no matter where he worships . . . no matter where he comes from -- may be a full productive participant in America. To build a better and freer world we need a better and freer America. Our land, our factories, our cities, our water, our roads, our people -- these are the things which must be fully developed if our dream is not to exceed our reach.

We are creating a change of prepositions. It used to be that America was the land of freedom and opportunity if you had the right last name or went to the right church or worked in the right place or if your face happened to be the right shade. But today we are changing things. America can and will be the land of freedom and opportunity when each child entering life can look forward to an equal chance to make the most of himself . . . to climb to the limit of his abilities . . . to stand right up and claim his place in life without regard for any irrelevant mark of the surface.

In the last session of the Congress, under President Johnson's leadership -- and the leadership of Senator Carl Hayden of Arizona -- we made into law the hopes and ideas of our generation and the generation before: Voting Rights, Immigration, Education, Medicare, Housing and Urban Development, Arts and Humanities.

We made laws to make war on poverty.

We made laws to turn American agriculture in a new and fruitful direction.

These laws are nothing more than investments -- many of them deferred for far too long. They are investments in the better and stronger America -- an America of "whole men" -- that must be built if we are to carry our burdens at home and in the world.

Those burdens will not be small burdens. There are, of course, the challenges we face at home.

In four years, 211 million people will live here. Half of them will be under age 25. Within ten years we will need, each year, over 2 million new homes . . . thousands of schools . . . transportation systems to move goods and people . . . fresh air and light and open space . . . and art, music, literature, theatre -- the things that make life more than a constant struggle for material goods.

But those tasks are nothing compared to the tasks we face in the world around us.

Can the four freedoms be realized not only in America but in the world? Skeptics might say that the odds are against us.

Today two-thirds of mankind lives in the same darkness and ignorance it has known for centuries -- and the gap between the rich nations and the poor nations widens each year. At the same time these disinherited of the earth are exposed to modern communication which makes it all too clear that they are not sharing in the benefits we enjoy as a matter of course. These people are the targets of the stirrers-of-trouble and makers-of-violent revolution.

We live in a world in which there are weapons that could wipe out the Northern Hemisphere in less than a half-hour's time.

We live in a world in which large and strong nations have made it their doctrine that democratic institutions must be destroyed and small nations brought to heel with brute force.

How, in this environment, will the four freedoms ever be achieved?

We know the answer.

It is true that America is the last, best hope of earth.

It is up to us to lead the way toward the time when the threat of nuclear destruction does not hover above the earth.

It is up to us to help the small and weak nations build the fabric of strong, stable, -- and free -- societies, in face of subversion and totalitarian threat.

We know that it is up to us to provide the leadership -- yes, often to provide the material resources -- to stimulate the strong nations of the West to a greater sharing of these tasks.

I have news for you: There will be no time ahead to relax. There will be no breathing space. No oceans can protect us. There will be no way to avoid "entangling alliances."

We are the leaders. And the responsibilities of leadership are ours to bear.

The tides of history are moving fast. We can be engulfed by those tides. Or we can use their powerful generative force. We can harness those tides to the cause of mankind -- if we have the courage, if we have the perserverance, if we build the strong cohesive American society that we will need.

Will the four freedoms be achieved?

The answer was given by Franklin Roosevelt in the last words he ever wrote -- words he had no chance to use in his Jefferson Day address which would have been delivered twenty-one years ago this week.

Franklin Roosevelt wrote: "The only limit to our realization of tomorrow will be our doubts of today. Let us move forward with strong and active faith."

My fellow Democrats: Let us move forward.

Minnesota Historical Society

Copyright in this digital version belongs to the Minnesota Historical Society and its content may not be copied without the copyright holder's express written permission. Users may print, download, link to, or email content, however, for individual use.

To request permission for commercial or educational use, please contact the Minnesota Historical Society.

www.mnhs.org