

The Prairie Rose Bud

Edited by

Sam S. Huggins

Vol. 1.

No. 1.

Cansu Paha June 13.

1854.

Anger

We must not get angry because it is wrong to get angry. Jesus was on the earth he never got angry he was always gentle and we should be like him. It is very ugly to get angry some people are weak and gentle so the other people love them when the people get angry the other people don't love them they don't train their children right some time the people get angry they kill each other the Bible teaches us not to be angry we ought to learn to be kind and gentle while we are young.

Think before you speak, by W. W. Wood

I

Many persons open their mouths and set their tongues a going like the clapper of a windmill as though the object was to see how many words could be uttered in a given time without regard to their quality whether sense or nonsense whether good, bad or indifferent. A tongue trained up in this way will never be governed and must become a source of great mischief. But accustom yourself before you speak to consider whether what you are going to say is worth saying or whether it can do any mischief. If you cultivate this habit your mind will speedily acquire an activity that will enable you to make this consideration without waiting so long as to be observed and it will impose a salutary restraint upon your loquacity for you will find others often taking the lead of conversation instead of yourself by seizing upon the pause that is made by your consideration. This will be an advantage to you in two ways it will give you something better to say and diminish the quantity. You will soon perceive that though you say less than some of your companions your words will have more weight.

The rainbow

The rainbow is a beautiful thing we ought to be very thankful to god for giving us such a beautiful thing. he gave it as a sign he told Noah that was a sign that there never will be another flood again. it is in genesis chapter 9 and verse 11 and 12. It has many colors red orange yellow green blue indigo and violet. and when we are so placed that our backs are toward the sun and cloud is before us then we see the rain bow.

The colors appear brighter when the clouds behind the rainbow is dark and the drops of rain fall thick and fast. from a reader of the rose bud.

The strawberry one of the best kind of berry is the strawberry. it is ripe in June it has a small ~~red~~ white flower and grows at a little stalk in the grass or small bushes when it is ripe it is not large but is a very pretty little red berry it is then very good to eat for supper with cream & on and ~~they~~ ^{they} are some times cooked in sugar and ~~it~~ ^{they} is preserved and

The lost-child continued from the last.

Mr. I drove rapidly towards the city while Mrs. I. and Panny watched him with anxious hearts till he was gone from their sight. Mrs. I. and Panny did not sleep much that night - for their thoughts were busy with thoughts of their absent one. Panny's grief showed its self in sighs, tears and lamentations. "O the darling - the darling, she is lost - me done it. the darling-child. in this way Panny cried most of the time that - she was not asleep that night - the mother's anxiety was intense but - more than my child may now be in the hands of cruel strangers, who do not care for her even enough to try to find her parents. or she might - have been stolen by some wicked person. or may be it - is a mistake that she was left at the city finding no friends for her, they might - have sent her on to a more distant place. these and other imaginations floated across the mind of Mrs. I. as she thought of her only child, in spite of her efforts of hopefulness. It was late at night before Mr. I. reached the hotel. she inquired for his child and was told she was there but was taken away in the afternoon by a strange gentleman who he was or where from they knew not. Mr. I. then went to the houses of one and another of his friends and acquaintances, but they had seen or heard nothing of her. what should he do next - what plan could he adopted as the best method of finding her. he was sadly puzzled. then he thought of a cousin that he had there, that he had not seen yet. he hastened to the house and was led into the room where to his great joy he saw the sleeping form of little Ella the tears stood on her face and her countenance more an expres-^{sion} of trouble she had cried her self to sleep calling papa mama and would not be comforted because they were not. it was then past midnight and Mr D laid down to take that repose he so much needed. early in the morning he started home where his wife was anxiously looking for his return. how happy must have been that mother to see her child. Panny appeared nearly frantic with the joy. she covered ~~her~~ ^{Ella's} face with kisses and hugging like a bear exclaimed O the darlint-the darlint.

Ella had been in the great city of Cincinnati and a dangerous place for a little child with out friends it was. but it has taught her many a lesson for she is not now so ready to say "yessem yessem" if she is asked if she understands ~~the~~ ^{The} Geography is very good book to learn it is very interesting study in and it tells about the world and we ought to know about this world and it tells how big this world and tells all the names of countries and states and city towns and ocean sea and gulfs bays, capes islands lakes and other more it says the world is like a ball I had it any more room to write so soon.

The Camel

the camel is a mild beast and can be guided by a child the camel is used to carry burdens through deserts and the deserts would probably be untracked regions if it were not for the camel the camel can go longer without drinking water than any other animal and as there is very little water in deserts horses or oxen would die for want of water camels can smell water at a great distance they have one large and one small hump on their backs the camel will kneel to have his load taken off or put on the camel has several sacks put on each side and fastened over his back at night he kneels down ~~down~~ and they are loosed and left in the morning he kneels between them and they are tied

For the Prairie Rose Bud May 30. (1854)

A place for every thing and every thing in its own place is a good maxim If we could or would all live up to this rule it would save us much time and much trouble Let us all try and keep our pen and ink and paper in the proper place and at the proper time let us write the proper amount of the proper stuff for the prairie rose bud

From the collections of the Minnesota Historical Society: Alexander G. Huggins and Family Papers.

Copyright in this digital version belongs to the Minnesota Historical Society, and its content may not be copied without the copyright holder's express written permission. Users may print, download, link to, or email content, however, for individual use.

To request permission for commercial or educational use, please contact the Minnesota Historical Society.

www.mnhs.org