Dear Harry,

I enjoyed your recent comments and I hope you're right.

As you can imagine the meetings at Camp David were long and often grueling. They represented many hours of hard work under difficult circumstances.

In spite of this the spirit and ~~dedication~~ ^{find} finding a mutually acceptable solution kept us all going. It wasn't easy but we're on the right track.

Thanks for your support. I depend on it.

Warmest personal regards.

Sincerely,

Walter F. Mondale

Dear Fritz:

Along with everyone else I am really pleased with the results of the Camp David Conference. I only hope that a lasting peace will follow.

Regardless of what might happen now, I think these results are a credit to all of you and I hope, and believe, that it signals a change in the public standing and fortunes of the Carter Administration.

Keep up the good work.

Fritz - I've been telling people for months that to count Carter out so early in the term was the dumbest damn thing I ever heard. I'm sure there will be plenty of ups and downs in the future, but as an old friend of mine used to say, keep your eye on the big picture.

Regards

Dear Stu,

Your recent note reached my desk as we began preparations for the Summit talks at Camp David. I was reminded of our recent trip and know you share my sincere hope for lasting peace in the Middle East.

As we proceed with these delicate discussions, it is messages such as yours which continue to offer encouragement and give me strength.

Thanks very much for taking the time to write. I am grateful for your support.

Jim Note

Dear Fritz,

We have just returned from an extensive trip to Europe where we had a great time, but realized rather quickly that the best buy in the world today, with few exceptions, is the United States. The dollar certainly does not go very far--particularly in France and Switzerland.

During this trip, I had a chance to reflect at some length about our trip of a couple of months ago to Israel, and I wanted to write to you immediately upon my return to tell you how thankful I am that you invited me, how superb you were in all of the dealings which I observed, and particularly how much good I felt your going as the Vice President of the United States did in calming what was potentially a deterioration of Israeli-United States relations. If only more people in the Administration had your ability in style and content, we would never find ourselves in some of the predicaments that have occurred in the last couple of years.

I hope you have not forgotten your comment about getting the group together in Washington to meet with yourself and the President so that we might inform the President first-hand of our impressions during and after the trip, and also that our group may be kept informed of what is currently happening. The timing of such a meeting would be perfect after the Camp David meeting.

I would like to add that I think all the guests were impressed with the Administration's sincerity in dealing in an even-handed way with all parties. And I know that prior to our trip, the majority of us were concerned that the Administration might try to force Begin out of office, or might try to use the threat of lessening aid in order to get Israel to change certain positions. Since our trip, I do not feel this way at all; in fact, the head of our Israel Bond Office in San Francisco just returned from Israel and called to tell me that they are still talking about your trip, how impressive you were, and the renewed faith they now have since then of a peaceful settlement. The Israelis are even saying that the Camp David meeting was arranged during your trip. Everyone was very impressed by your ability and sincerity, and I was delighted to have accompanied you.

Sincerely,
