11. 30 [1896]

Sunday Evg

ALBEMARLE HOTEL,
MADISON SQUARE, WEST,
NEW YORK.
O. B. LIBBEY, PROP'R.

Dear Mr Hill: I am sorry not to have seen you. I called particularly to point out what seems to me a great opportunity for President Cleveland to allay much of the existing fear which has seized the financial centers and threatens financial strangulation to commerce, transportation interests.

Let the President announce his Commission at once and publish his letter of instructions putting into that document, for the information of all, such statements as he may think best calculated to allay fear of precipitate decision upon the course of the Nation towards England.

It is a natural method and if done immediately will save millions to the people of this country. Do you have

James J. Hill Papers
Minnesota Historical Society

recently talked with the President, as I understood you upon this subject, it seemed to me that if you favored the idea and recognized the necessity of some panacea, you might be in the best position of anyone here to convey the thought to him, directly or indirectly, through one of your friends in the Cabinet, by letter or telegram.

Sincerely yours.

Edward D. Adams.

James J. Hill Papers Minnesota Historical Society