

ALBEMARLE HOTEL,

Junction of Broadway, Fifth Avenue & 24th St.,

MADISON SQUARE.

L. H. JANVIN, Props.
HENRY WALTER,

New York,

7.22.1893
6-0
Mr. 10th 1893.

My dear Mr. Hill,

Pardon me for intruding on you with a matter, which I found out since is impracticable for you to do. The institutions here who are doing these kind of business have their men to watch the buildings go up, to see that their money is really invested in the building. I thank you very much for the privilege of coming before you in this business and regard myself under another obligation to you, besides the many I am already under, for your long patronage in this house.

I hope when the new house will be erected I will have the honor again of having you & your family as guests again. There will be a dozen suites of rooms that will make you comfortable.

With best regards believe me,

Your most obedient servant

Henry Walter

James J. Hill Papers
Minnesota Historical Society