THE FERGUS FALLS JOURNAL

Elmer E. Adams,
Editor.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Feb. 8 1893.

Mr. Samuel Hill,

St. Paul,

My dear sir:-

I have always regarded Mr. Chapin highly as a newspaper man. He is a good writer, energetic, careful and well poised. I think he is trustworthy under all circumstances. He possesses tact and will get along in all most any place without causing friction which is one of the essential qualifications for running a paper in a small city. There is nothing superficial about him. I think his experience has been in the editorial department. Whether he will ^{be} fertile in schemes for the business department, I cannot say but one thing is certain, he will do whatever he does cautiously.

Very respectfully,

(signed) Elmer E. Adams.
