Steps to Success

Goal setting for sponsors

Hazy goals produce hazy results. Clearly define your goals. Write them down, make a plan for achieving them, set a deadline, visualize the results and go after them. Wishing will not bring success, but planning, persistence, and burning desire will. Success is an attitude, get yours right. It is astonishing how short a time it takes for very wonderful things to happen. —Barbara Smallwood

Meeting Place and Schedule:

- What resources do you have available either with your organization or in your community? i.e., schools, libraries, community centers, churches, businesses, etc. _____
- Whom can you contact? _____
- Preferred location, day of week, time of day: _____
- Our organization will secure (number) _____ meeting spaces and dates for 5 community circle sessions by (date) _____
- Keep these things in mind: the participants may need childcare and transportation. How are you preparing for this? Is the location able to accommodate hospitality needs?

Recruiting and Publicity:

- Where is your sphere of influence? How can you make this project known, i.e. newspapers, bulletins, personal contacts, other organizations, etc _____
- How can you achieve diversity? Race, ethnicity, age, gender, income, political ideology, etc _____
- Do you need pairing with another organization; if so, what other organizations could you pair with? _____
- Our organization will recruit (number) _____ participants by (date) _____

Administrative:

- Who is your “go to” person? Overseeing details of: registration, troubleshooting, contact with EHEP, coordinating of details, etc? _____

Star Tribune Editorial

Our perspective

Community circles

Support talks on housing, education

In many cultures, most notably Native American, the circle is an important symbol. It can stand for beginning and ending; it can represent the cycle of birth, life and death. Or it can simply be the way people organize themselves to discuss issues, solve problems or protect one another.

That symbolism is at the heart of a local effort to get folks thinking and talking about education, race and housing. A coalition of more than 20 Twin Cities partners, the Community Circle Collaborative, is wisely promoting a metrowide series of small group discussions on this question: How does racial and economic segregation of housing affect educational achievement and life opportunities?

The idea is to get at least 200 people (five to 15 at a time) actively involved in study circles. Ideally, each group will be as diverse as possible across racial, ethnic, economic, age and political lines. They will be urban and suburban, work from a common discussion/information guide and will meet several times for two to three hours. Sessions will take place early next year.

Among the organizing partner groups are the Minneapolis Initiative Against Racism, the Minnesota Minority Education Partnership, the Minneapolis, Edina and St. Louis Park public schools, the Institute on Race & Poverty and the Minnesota Fair Housing Center.

Do the organizers have an agenda? You bet. They start from the basic belief that racism and segregation hurt everyone. They know that many students who perform poorly in school come from deep pockets of segregated, low-income housing. And they rightly agree these housing, family and economic questions must be addressed to help improve educational outcomes.

The Collaborative has a direction, but it doesn't have all the answers. And so, the small circles are designed to get civil, informed dialogue and analysis bubbling up from citizens. The questions and solutions will then be used to guide policies and practices of government, school boards, non-profits, foundations, businesses and grass-roots groups. Community circles have been used successfully in other cities around the country to help form public policy and build public awareness and consensus.

All metro-area residents are huge stakeholders in this issue. Parents and singles alike pay for public schools, police, courts and prisons. Both the young and the old want safe neighborhoods and good housing. Whether you are black or white, rich or poor, well-educated children eventually help fuel a stronger economy and higher quality of life for everyone.

With help from the Bush and Bremer foundations, the Collaborative will provide recorders and train facilitators for each circle. For more details, attend the kick-off/information session on Tuesday, 9-11:30 a.m., at the St. Louis Park City Council Chambers, 5005 Minnetonka Blvd. Or call Dick Little, at the Education & Housing Equity Project, 871-8980.

Join the circle of those who want better housing and education opportunities in the Twin Cities.

Education, Housing & Race in the Twin Cities

The First Unitarian Society is acting as a co-sponsor with the Education Housing and Equity Project (EHEP), the Metropolitan Interfaith Council on Affordable Housing (MICAH) and many others in the metropolitan-wide Conversations at the Crossroads.

Participation in a Community Circle will offer you:

- A chance to deeply listen to beliefs and experiences different from your own
- An opportunity to examine your own beliefs and attitudes
- An occasion to meet new people and find common ground for action on issues of importance to you and your community

Community Circles will be held through out the metropolitan area and two circles will be meeting at the First Unitarian Society. You can participate where it is most convenient for you. Each circle will meet for five sessions of two hours each. Information about meeting locations and times will be included with the registration form.
