HEADQUARTERS THIRD INFANTRY

General Orders
No. 2

Camp Eagle Pass, Texas, March 8, 1920.

1. During the Mexican War the Third United States Infantry participated in the assault, siege and capture of Monterey, on the 21st, 22nd, and 23rd of September, 1846. On the 21st, the regiment formed part of the assaulting column upon the eastern defenses of the city, which was gallantly carried, with a loss, however, to the regiment, of six of its most gallant and valuable officers and sixteen enlisted men killed or mortally wounded, and one officer and twenty-nine men wounded. A total loss of fifty-two out of an effective strength of fourteen officers and two hundred and forty-eight enlisted men.

2. Some years ago the anniversary of the above date was chosen from among the many on which the regiment had distinguished itself upon which its officers should assemble for its proper observance. This occasion has been for years one upon which the officers have gotten together in so far as exigencies of the service permitted for its appropriate observance.

3. The 21st day of September each year is hereby selected and set aside and designated as "Organization Day" for this regiment. This day, or, should it fall upon a Sunday, the day following will be observed as a holiday throughout the Regiment and will be celebrated with appropriate military ceremony and such further features as will impress upon all the glorious part the Third United States Infantry has played in the Military history of our country.

By order of COLONEL GIDDINGS:

HOMER C. BROWN, Capt. 3d. Inf., Adjutant.

INVITATION - PROGRAM

Regimental Organization Day

Celebration of the
Eighty First Anniversary of the Battle of Monterey

by the Third
United States Infantry

We were not many, we who stood
Before the iron sleet that day:
But many a gallant spirit would
Give half his years if he but could
Have been with us—at Monterey.

—Charles Fenno Hoffman.

COLONEL W. E. WELSH
Commanding Third Infantry

GREETINGS FROM THE COMMANDING OFFICER

It is with pleasure that I, on behalf of the officers and men of the Third Infantry, extend a hearty welcome to our guests on this, our Regimental fete day.

An especial greeting is extended to the former members of the "Old Guard." We, the present members of the Third Infantry, acknowledge the debt of gratitude we owe to those who have preceded us; to those whose deeds of valor, whose deeds of courage, whose loyalty, and whose never-failing devotion to duty have given to us a history and heritage of which we are justly proud.

W. E. Welsh

THE THIRD INFANTRY THROUGH THE YEARS

THE HISTORY of the Third Infantry runs like a silver thread through all the colorful fabric of the history of the nation itself. Older than the Constitution, the Regiment has borne on its rolls the names of men who fought with Washington at Valley Forge and Yorktown. It has served on every frontier and in every war that the nation has waged. It has furnished the country with one president and many statesmen and military leaders. Always ready to fight, for nearly a century and a half the Third Infantry has done its full share in preserving the peace of the nation and in furthering the cause of civilization at home and abroad. As "The Old Guard" it is known and honored throughout the Army.

The Third Infantry traces its descent from the Pennsylvania Regiment of Infantry organized under authority of Congress in 1784, as a measure of protection for the young nation following the demobilization of the Revolutionary Army. It was composed chiefly of officers and men who had seen service in the Revolution and for many years afterward its rank and file had among them many Revolutionary soldiers. In 1789 Congress made its first provision for a national army and the Pennsylvania Regiment became the First Regiment. Through various changes of designation such as "the Infantry of the Legion" regimental history is traced to 1815 when the present Third Infantry was organized by the consolidation of the First, Fifth, Seventeenth, Nineteenth and Twenty-eighth Regiments. Each of these organizations had taken a prominent part in the War of 1812.

For the next eleven years the regiment was stationed along the Great Lakes garrisoning at different times the posts of Detroit, Mackinac, Fort Howard, Wis., Dearborn, Ill.; Knox, Harrison and Wayne, Ind., and Fort Crawford, Wis. Late in 1826, the Regiment was concentrated at "Camp Miller, Missouri" where it erected the post which has since become known as Jefferson Barracks. The following year the Regiment moved up the Missouri and constructed a new post which still exists as Fort Leavenworth, named in honor of the Third's Commanding Officer.

The next thirteen years brought frontier duty in what are now the states of Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas. In 1840, the Third Infantry joined the army in Florida where it saw arduous service in the Creek and Seminole Wars. In 1843 it returned to Jefferson Barracks. Two years later it was again on active duty in Texas as a part of the Army of Observation, under command of its former major, now General Zachary Taylor. Then followed the war with Mexico, in which the part taken by the Third was not exceeded in brilliance by any other regiment. With Taylor in Northern Mexico and with Scott at the capture of Mexico City, the Third won honor and glory at the cost of exceedingly high casualties among both officers and men.

On the triumphant entry of the American Army into Mexico City, the Third Infantry, because of its gallant conduct throughout the campaign, had the honor of heading the column. As the Regiment passed in review before the army commander at the gate of the city, General Scott turned to his staff and said: "Take off your hats, Gentlemen, to the Old Guard of the Army." The name of Old Guard has clung to the Third since that day. The Regiment also possesses a baton carved from the flagstaff which surmounted the Citadel of Mexico City and trimmed in native silver which was presented to it by its brigade commander, General Persifer Smith, in recognition of its heroic service under his command.

From Mexico the Third went back to frontier warfare, first in Texas and then in New Mexico. For ten years there was more arduous work against the Apache and Navajo Indians. Back in Texas in 1860, the Regiment prepared for return to the North when the clouds of Civil War lowered in 1861. From Texas to New York, the Regiment traveled by transport and arrived in time to participate with the Army of the Potomac in the First Battle of Bull Run. The Regiment, according to General McDowell, "by its gallant conduct, unflinching steadiness and perfect order in covering the flight of the panic-stricken Army, saved the Union."

The Third Infantry took part in every battle of the Army of the Potomac and although reduced in strength to about two hundred men and officers, was present at the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox. During the war it lost in killed 139 and in wounded 135.

Scarcely had the Civil War ended when the Third was again on the frontier, in Kansas, where the Indian tribes had taken advantage of the war to commit depredations. From 1874 to 1877, it was on duty in Missouri and in Pennsylvania in connection with riots against the civil government. And then came ten more years of Indian warfare, this time on the Montana frontier. Many members of the Veterans' Association have vivid memories of those strenuous days of frontier activity.

By 1888, it appeared that the civil authority was strong enough all through the West to handle the situation and the Third Infantry was ordered to Fort Snelling for home station. Thus began the association with Fort Snelling and the Twin Cities which has continued to the present time. Ten years of comparative quiet were ended in 1898 by the outbreak of the war with Spain, and as the Third, despite its years of rest, was always ready to fight, it was one of the first regiments ordered to Cuba. In the Cuban campaign it took an active part, participating in every important engagement. It returned to Fort Snelling in September of 1898.

The Third Infantry took part in its last Indian warfare in October, 1898, when the last Indian battle in the United States was fought at Leech Lake, Minnesota, where Major Melville Carey Wilkinson and five enlisted men were killed.

In January, 1899, the Third Infantry again left Fort Snelling enroute to the Philippine Islands by way of New York. For three years it saw strenuous service in the pacification of the Islands and added new laurels and new battle streamers to its colors. After two years of duty at Fort Thomas and other stations in the mid-west the Regiment was once again enroute upon the high seas in June, 1904, this time to station in Alaska. Two years of service and arduous labor followed as the Third played its part in opening up the northern territory by building roads and telegraph lines.

When the Regiment returned to the States in 1906 it was stationed at Fort George Wright and other stations in the vicinity until 1909 when it was again sent to the Philippines. Although on the second three year tour in the Far East, the Third saw less of fighting than on its previous tour, there was, nevertheless, no lack of hard and necessary duty. Detachments of the Regiment explored many sections of the Islands not before visited by white men, making roads, marking trails and doing other peaceful work which have had their influence in bringing civilization to the Islands.

Orders to return to the States were received in 1912 and the Third settled down for four years of duty at Madison Barracks and Fort Ontario, N. Y. In 1916, the Third was ordered to the Mexican Border. Here, although it gained little glory, it performed necessary duties during the Border troubles and during the World War. In 1920, it left Texas for Camp Sherman, Ohio, and in July of the following year left Camp Sherman enroute for its old home station at Fort Snelling by way of Camp Perry, Ohio, where a halt was made for duty in connection with the national rifle matches. The march from Camp Sherman to Fort Snelling was more than 1,100 miles in length, one of the longest ever made by any regiment. Fort Snelling was reached in November, 1921, in the midst of an early season snowstorm. The cold was forgotten, however, in the warm welcome extended by old friends.

Upon arrival at Fort Snelling the Forty-Ninth Infantry, then at this station, was consolidated with the Third, bringing to the Regiment many of its present enlisted men and efficient non-commissioned officers. For five years now the Third has remained at Fort Snelling and in the midst of friends of long standing. It is engaged in carrying out the work of the new army, especially in training each summer large contingents of civilian personnel, but it is also maintaining its old standard of "always ready to fight."

THE THIRD IN BATTLE

The Regimental Colors carry sixteen streamers indicating participation by a major portion of the Regiment in the following wars and campaigns:

War of 1812: Canada 1813 (old Fifth and Seventeenth Infantries), Canada 1814 (old First, Fifth Seventeenth, Nineteenth and Twenty-eighth Infantries), Florida 1814 (old Third Infantry), Chippewa (old Nineteenth Infantry), and Lundy's Lane (old First Infantry). Indian Wars: Miami (First Sub-legion), and New Mexico 1856, 1857, 1859. Mexican War: Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma, Monterey, Vera Cruz, Cerro Gordo, Contreras, Churubusco, and Chapultepec. Civil War: Bull Run, Peninsula, Manassas, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Virginia 1863, and Appomattox. Spanish-American War: Santiago. THE COAT OF ARMS

Heraldry

ARMS. Within a bordure of the United States, a hill vert crowned with battlements gules on a field argent. On a chief azure three crosses patee of the field. Encircling the escutcheon an infantry officers' full dress belt, (paragraph 2, Special Regulations 42, 1917) with plate in chief proper, inscribed with the motto "Noli me Tangere" in base, and in chief "Third Infantry, 1784" all sable. The escutcheon and belt to be displayed in front of an old pattern bayonet and drum major's baton from Mexican War crossed in saltire proper.

CREST. On a wreath argent and azure an infantry officer's cocked hat of 1784 with white plume proper.

Description

This regiment has a continuous history since 1784. The charge on the shield symbolizes the distinguished service rendered by the regiment during the Mexican War. At Cerro Gordo the 3rd and the 7th Infantry carried the heights of Telegrafo Hill, crowned with strong defenses, the key-note of the enemy's position. At Churubusco the 3rd Infantry was in the column which assaulted the citadel and General Scott's report states "the white flags (of surrender) were not exhibited until the moment when the 3rd Infantry under Captain Alexander, had cleared the way by fire and bayonet and had entered the work." Captain Alexander then planted the colors of the regiment on the balcony.

The regiment also took part in the attack on the citadel of Chapultepec and was one of the first to enter the city of Mexico. It will be noted that the hill, battlements and field are in the Mexican colors.

The Chief commemorates the Civil War where the regiment served in Sykes' Division, the badge of which was a white maltese cross; three of these are used in allusion to the regiment's numerical designation.

The baton used as one of the supporters was made from the flag-staff of the Capitol Building in the City of Mexico at the time of its capture and is still in the possession of the regiment. The remainder of the arms are self-explanatory.

COLORS AND DISTINCTIVE INSIGNE

The Colors

The Third Infantry's colors are those given to the Infantry of the Third Sub-Legion in 1792 when the army was serving under General (Mad Anthony) Wayne against the Indians in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

In a General Order issued September 11, 1792, from his headquarters at Pittsburgh, General Wayne prescribed distinctive colors for each unit of the army. The colors assigned the Infantry of the Third Sub-Legion was "yellow bindings to their caps, yellow plumes and black hair (wigs). The yellow used by the soldiers of the regiment at that time was a dark shade or "buff." Thus, the accepted colors of the Third Infantry are "Buff and Black."

The Knapsack Strap

It is further related that the soldiers of the Third Sub-Legion, being proud of their distinctive colors, took every occasion to display them and so to mark out their members from members of other units of the army. One of the methods was to weave strips of raw-hide (natural buff color) into the broad black shoulder straps of the knapsack which formed part of the equipment at that time.

ORIGIN OF POPULAR NAMES

"The Old Guard"

Because of its gallant and vital part in the campaign which resulted in the capture of Mexico City in the War With Mexico, the Third Infantry was given the honor of marching at the head of the column when the victorious army made its triumphal entry into the city. General Winfield Scott, Commander of the Army in Mexico, with his staff, reviewed the troops as they passed through the ancient gates of the city. Regimental tradition says that, as the Third Infantry approached, General Scott removed his hat and turning to the members of his staff, said: "Gentlemen, take off your hats to the Old Guard of the Army."

"The Buff Sticks"

The Third Infantry has been known throughout the Service as "The Buff Sticks" from a period prior to the War with Mexico. In those early days soldiers used "buff sticks" (a strip of wood with a piece of leather or other buffing material fastened to it) to polish the buttons on their uniforms. The name was originally applied to individual soldiers whose equipment was in exceptionally bright and excellent condition. According to tradition the name came gradually to be applied to the Third Infantry because its members always turned out with their equipment in such faultless condition.

REGIMENTAL TROPHIES

The Baton

When the United States Army entered the City of Mexico after its capture, September 13, 1847, it was found that the flagstaff which had stood in front of the Cathedral in the Grand Plaza, and from which the Mexican flag had been flown throughout the siege, had been cut down. A temporary staff was erected from which the Stars and Stripes were displayed and the original staff was converted into mementoes of the war.

The Third Infantry Baton is a part of the original staff. The head and ferrule are native Mexican silver. The baton was presented to the Third Infantry by Brigadier General Persifer Smith who commanded the division of regular troops in which the Third Infantry served during the siege and final assault on the city.

The baton is now placed on a shield and, known as "The Buff Sticks," is the trophy which is awarded to that company which, at periodical inspections, presents the smartest and most soldierly appearance of its members.

Winners of the trophy during the last year are as follows:

December 18, '26	Co. C	April 9, '27	Co. G
January 29, '27	Co. G	May 28, '27	Co. G

The Banner Blue

The Banner Blue is the coveted trophy awarded at periodical inspections to the company of the regiment whose barracks and grounds present the neatest and most military appearance. This trophy was inaugurated in 1921 by Brigadier General A. W. Bjornstad, then colonel commanding the regiment.

Winners of this trophy for the past year are:

October 30, '26	Co. D	February 26, '27	Co. F
January 8, '27	Co. A	April 30, '27	Co. F

The Commanding Officer
COLONEL W. C. SWEENEY
Third Infantry

GREETINGS FROM THE COMMANDING OFFICER

I am very glad personally, as well as on behalf of the officers and men of the Third Infantry, to extend a cordial and hearty welcome to our guests on this annual Third Infantry Day.

It is most gratifying to me to extend special greetings to former members of the Old Guard Regiment. The customs and traditions established by our predecessors and their example of loyalty, valor and courage have set the standard which all members of the present regiment are endeavoring to reach and maintain.

W. C. Sweeney

Colonel, Third Infantry,
Commanding.

NOTES

Veterans are invited to take a position in the reviewing line with the commanding officer during the parade of their old regiment.

Veterans and their families are expected to be the guests of the veteran's former company at dinner and supper. Other guests of the day will be divided in approximately equal numbers between the several messes for these meals. Guides and transportation will be in readiness near the flag pole at 11:50 A. M. and 4:50 P. M.

Due to the shortage of quarters on the post, arrangements cannot be made to care for veterans' families, but sleeping accommodations and meals will be provided in their former companies for any veterans coming from a distance.

THE THIRD INFANTRY THROUGH THE YEARS

THE HISTORY of the Third Infantry runs like a silver thread through all the colorful fabric of the history of the nation itself. Older than the Constitution, the Regiment has borne on its rolls the names of men who fought with Washington at Valley Forge and Yorktown. It has served on every frontier and in every war that the nation has waged. It has furnished the country with one president and many statesmen and military leaders. Always ready to fight, for nearly a century and a half the Third Infantry has done its full share in preserving the peace of the nation and in furthering the cause of civilization at home and abroad. As "The Old Guard" it is known and honored throughout the Army.

The Third Infantry traces its descent from the Pennsylvania Regiment of Infantry organized under authority of Congress in 1784, as a measure of protection for the young nation following the demobilization of the Revolutionary Army. It was composed chiefly of officers and men who had seen service in the Revolution and for many years afterward its rank and file had among them many Revolutionary soldiers. In 1789 Congress made its first provision for a national army and the Pennsylvania Regiment became the First Regiment. Through various changes of designation such as "the Infantry of the Legion" regimental history is traced to 1815 when the present Third Infantry was organized by the consolidation of the First, Fifth, Seventeenth, Nineteenth and Twenty-eighth Regiments. Each of these organizations had taken a prominent part in the War of 1812.

For the next eleven years the regiment was stationed along the Great Lakes garrisoning at different times the posts of Detroit, Mackinac, Fort Howard, Wis.; Dearborn, Ill.; Knox, Harrison and Wayne, Ind., and Fort Crawford, Wis. Late in 1826, the Regiment was concentrated at "Camp Miller, Missouri" where it erected the post which has since become known as Jefferson Barracks. The following year the Regiment moved up the Missouri and constructed a new post which still exists as Fort Leavenworth, named in honor of the Third's Commanding Officer.

The next thirteen years brought frontier duty in what are now the states of Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas. In 1840, the Third Infantry joined the army in Florida where it saw arduous service in the Creek and Seminole Wars. In 1843 it returned to Jefferson Barracks. Two years later it was again on active duty in Texas as a part of the Army of Observation, under command of its former major, now General Zachary Taylor. Then followed the war with Mexico, in which the part taken by the Third was not exceeded in brilliance by any other regiment.

With Taylor in Northern Mexico the Third participated in the battles of Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma and the three day action at Monterey. Late in the year the Third, with most of the other regular troops serving under Taylor, was ordered to Vera Cruz, to join the army of Major General Winfield Scott. The Third assisted in the capture of Vera Cruz and a few weeks later was one of the first regiments to leave that place on the brilliant march to Mexico City. It took part in the battles at Cerro Gordo, Telegrafo Hill, Contreras and Churubusco, driving the Mexican army back to the very gates of the city.

It was at Churubusco that the Third had the distinction of winning the admiration of both friend and foe. General Scott in his report says: "Finally at the end of a desperate conflict of two hours and a half the citadel of the strong line of defenses along the rivulet of Churubusco yielded to Twigg's division and threw out on all sides the signals of surrender. The white flags were not exhibited, however, until the moment when the Third Infantry, under Captain Alexander, had cleared the way by fire and bayonet and had entered the works."

In his report of the battle the Mexican officer in command said: "The first to present himself upon the parapet was the valiant Captain James M. Smith of the Third Infantry, who gave an example of valor to many following him, and no less magnanimous than daring, scarcely had he ascertained that now, on our part, no resistance was made, than he showed a white flag."

At the attack on the fortress of Chapultepec the Third won new laurels and when the triumphant army finally entered Mexico City on September 14 the Third was given the place of honor at the head of the column.

During the war the Third had lost 52 killed in action, including six officers, and 140 wounded, including 7 officers. At no time did the strength of the regiment present exceed 15 officers and 300 enlisted men.

From Mexico the Third went back to frontier warfare, first in Texas and then in New Mexico. For ten years there was more arduous work against the Apache and Navajo Indians. Back in Texas in 1860, the Regiment prepared for return to the North when the clouds of Civil War lowered in 1861. From Texas to New York, the Regiment traveled by transport and arrived in time to participate with the Army of the Potomac in the First Battle of Bull Run. The Regiment, according to General McDowell, "by its gallant conduct, unflinching steadiness and perfect order in covering the flight of the panic-stricken Army, saved the Union."

The Third Infantry took part in every battle of the Army of the Potomac and although reduced in strength to about two hundred men and officers, was present at the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox. During the war it lost in killed 139 and in wounded 135.

Scarcely had the Civil War ended when the Third was again on the frontier, in Kansas, where the Indian tribes had taken advantage of the war to commit depredations. From 1874 to 1877, it was on duty in Missouri and in Pennsylvania in connection with riots against the civil government. And then came ten more years of Indian warfare, this time on the Montana frontier. Many members of the Veterans' Association have vivid memories of those strenuous days of frontier activity.

By 1888, it appeared that the civil authority was strong enough all through the West to handle the situation and the Third Infantry was ordered to Fort Snelling for home station. Thus began the association with the Twin Cities which has continued to the present time. Ten years of comparative quiet were ended in 1898 by the outbreak of the war with Spain, and as the Third, despite its years of rest, was always ready to fight, it was one of the first regiments ordered to Cuba. In the Cuban campaign it took an active part, participating in every important engagement. It returned to Fort Snelling in September of 1898.

The Third Infantry took part in its last Indian warfare in October, 1898, when the last Indian battle in the United States was fought at Leech Lake, Minnesota, where Major Melville Carey Wilkinson and five enlisted men were killed.

In January, 1899, the Third Infantry again left Fort Snelling enroute to the Philippine Islands by way of New York. For three years it saw strenuous service in the pacification of the Islands and added new battle streamers to its colors. After two years of duty at Fort Thomas and other stations in the mid-west the Regiment was once again enroute upon the high seas in June, 1904, this time to station in Alaska. Two years of service and arduous labor followed as the Third played its part in opening up the northern territory by building roads and telegraph lines.

When the Regiment returned to the States in 1906 it was stationed at Fort George Wright and other stations in the vicinity until 1909 when it was again sent to the Philippines. Although on the second three year tour in the Far East, the Third saw less of fighting than on its previous tour, there was, nevertheless, no lack of hard and necessary duty. Detachments of the Regiment explored many sections of the Islands not before visited by white men, making roads, marking trails and doing other peaceful work which have had their influence in bringing civilization to the Islands.

Orders to return to the States were received in 1912 and the Third settled down for four years of duty at Madison Barracks and Fort Ontario, N. Y. In 1916, the Third was ordered to the Mexican Border. Here, although it gained little glory, it performed necessary duties during the Border troubles and during the World War. In 1920, it left Texas for Camp Sherman, Ohio, and in July of the following year left Camp Sherman enroute for its old home station at Fort Snelling by way of Camp Perry, Ohio, where a halt was made for duty in connection with the national rifle matches. The march from Camp Sherman to Fort Snelling was more than 1,100 miles in length, one of the longest ever made by any regiment. Fort Snelling was reached in November, 1921, in the midst of an early season snowstorm. The cold was forgotten, however, in the warm welcome extended by old friends.

Upon arrival at Fort Snelling the Forty-ninth Infantry, then at this station, was consolidated with the Third. For nearly seven years the Third has remained at Fort Snelling among old friends in the Northwest and a large share of its personnel, both officers and men, is drawn from this section of the country so that it may well be known as "Minnesota's Own."

One of the chief missions of the Third at present is the training of the other components of the army of the United States and large contingents of civilians in the annual summer training camps. Since 1921 it has actively participated in the training of some 15,000 boys and young men as students in the Citizens Military Training Camps, more than 3,000 college students as members of the Reserve Officers Training Corps and some 10,000 officers and enlisted men of the Organized Reserves and the National Guard of Minnesota.

But in thus carrying out the work assigned to it under the plan of National Defense adopted by the people of the United States, the "Old Guard" regiment has still found time to maintain its standard of a century and a half of service under the flag and is "always ready to fight."

REGIMENTAL COMMANDERS

THIRD INFANTRY DAY

Early in the War with Mexico the Third Infantry participated in the assault, siege and capture of Monterey on the 21st, 22nd and 23rd of September, 1846. On the first day of the battle the regiment, under command of Major William Lear, formed a part of an assaulting column on the eastern defenses of the city. The enemy was strongly posted behind barricades in the streets, stone walls and earthen redoubts, while riflemen sheltered behind adobe walls poured down a terrible fire from the roofs of the houses.

The Third Infantry assaulted the position so impetuously that the defenses were soon carried but at the cost of six officers and sixteen enlisted men killed or mortally wounded, and one officer and twenty-nine enlisted men wounded. Among the mortally wounded was the regimental commander, Major Lear. The list of killed included:

Captain Lewis N. Morris
 Captain George P. Fields
 Captain Philip N. Barbour
 1st Lieut. Douglas S. Irwin
 2nd Lieut. Robt. S. Hazlett
 Sgt. Thomas S. Babb, Co. D
 Sgt. William Brown, Co. F
 Pvt. Joseph Newman, Co. D
 Pvt. Nicholas Farrelly, Co. C
 Pvt. William Patrick, Co. D
 Pvt. Constantine Torskey, Co. D

Pvt. Jacob Young, Co. D
 Pvt. John Harper, Co. F
 Pvt. William S. Meckle, Co. F
 Pvt. John Steibert, Co. H
 Pvt. Charles K. Brown, Co. H
 Pvt. Edward Gormley, Co. I
 Pvt. George O'Brien, Co. I
 Pvt. John Kerns, Co. I
 Pvt. Edgar Gacallette, Co. I
 Pvt. Edward Riley, Co. K

The total loss in killed and wounded was fifty-two out of a strength engaged of 14 officers and 248 enlisted men.

After the Mexican War the custom gradually grew up within the regiment of observing the anniversary of the Battle of Monterey by a gathering of the regimental officers or of as many of them as the exigencies of the service would permit. In G. O. No. 2 Hdqrs. 3rd Infantry, Camp Eagle Pass, Texas, March 8, 1920, the custom which had grown up was officially recognized. Colonel Paul Giddings, who then commanded the regiment, in this order, set aside the twenty-first of September as a holiday to be celebrated annually by the entire regiment "with appropriate military ceremony and such further features as will impress upon all the glorious part the Third United States Infantry has played in the military history of our country."

THE COAT OF ARMS

Heraldry

ARMS. Within a bordure of the United States, a hill vert crowned with battlements gules on a field argent. On a chief azure three crosses patees of the field. Encircling the escutcheon an infantry officer's full dress belt, (paragraph 2, Special Regulations 42, 1917) with plate in chief proper, inscribed with the motto "Noli me Tangere" in base, and in chief "Third Infantry, 1784" all sable. The escutcheon and belt to be displayed in front of an old pattern bayonet and drum major's baton from Mexican War crossed in saltire proper.

CREST. On a wreath argent and azure an infantry officer's cocked hat of 1784 with white plume proper.

Description

This regiment has a continuous history since 1784. The charge on the shield symbolizes the distinguished service rendered by the regiment during the Mexican War. At Cerro Gordo the 3rd and the 7th Infantry carried the heights of Telegrafo Hill, crowned with strong defenses, the key-note of the enemy's position. At Churubusco the 3rd Infantry was in the column which assaulted the citadel and General Scott's report states "the white flags (of surrender) were not exhibited until the moment when the 3rd Infantry under Captain Alexander, had cleared the way by fire and bayonet and had entered the work." Captain Alexander then planted the colors of the regiment on the balcony.

The regiment also took part in the attack on the citadel of Chapultepec and was one of the first to enter the city of Mexico. It will be noted that the hill, battlements and field are in the Mexican colors.

The Chief commemorates the Civil War where the regiment served in Sykes' Division, the badge of which was a white maltese cross; three of these are used in allusion to the regiment's numerical designation.

The baton used as one of the supporters was made from the flag-staff of the Capitol Building in the City of Mexico at the time of its capture and is still in the possession of the regiment. The remainder of the arms are self-explanatory.

The Colors

The Third Infantry's colors are those given to the Infantry of the Third Sub-Legion in 1792 when the army was serving under General (Mad Anthony) Wayne against the Indians in Pennsylvania and Ohio.

In a General Order issued September 11, 1792, from his headquarters at Pittsburgh, General Wayne prescribed distinctive colors for each unit of the army. The colors assigned the Infantry of the Third Sub-Legion was "yellow bindings to their caps, yellow plumes and black hair (wigs). The yellow used by the soldiers of the regiment at that time was a dark shade or "buff." Thus, the accepted colors of the Third Infantry are "Buff and Black."

The Knapsack Strap

It is further related that the soldiers of the Third Sub-Legion, being proud of their distinctive colors, took every occasion to display them and so to mark out their members from members of other units of the army. One of the methods was to weave strips of raw-hide (natural buff color) into the broad black shoulder straps of the knapsack which formed part of the equipment at that time.

The present distinctive insignie of the Third Infantry, the "knapsack strap" worn at the point of the left shoulder of the uniform blouse, is a direct descendent of that old custom of the members of the Infantry of the Third Sub-Legion. This insignie is a strip of black leather one-half inch in width with a strip of buff leather one-fourth inch in width woven into it in such a manner that two lengths of the buff leather, each one and three-fourths inches long, shall appear in front of the shoulder and three such lengths in the rear of the shoulder when the knapsack strap is fastened to the blouse so that its outer edge coincides with the seam by which the left sleeve is joined to the blouse. The strap passes under the arm fitting snugly and is fastened under the shoulder loop.

THE CONTINENTAL UNIFORM

and honorable history of the regiment, dating as it does, from a period which followed closely upon the Revolutionary War.

WHY WE MARCH IN REVIEW WITH BAYONETS FIXED

On March 18, 1847, the Third Infantry, leading the army under General Winfield Scott, on the march from Vera Cruz to Mexico City, came in sight of the enemy strongly posted on the heights of Cerro Gordo. The Third Infantry under command of Captain Alexander, with the Seventh Infantry on its left and the First Field Artillery in support, was detailed to capture the position. It was carried by a brilliant charge of which General Scott made special mention.

"The style of execution which I had the pleasure to witness was most brilliant and decisive," he said. "The brigade ascended the long and difficult slope without shelter and under the tremendous fire of artillery and muskets, with the utmost steadiness, reaching the breast-work, drove the enemy from there, planted the colors of the Third and Seventh Infantry and the First Artillery—the enemy's flag still flying—and after some minutes of sharp firing finished the conquest with the bayonet."

ORIGIN OF POPULAR NAMES

"The Old Guard"

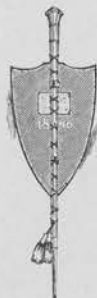

Because of its gallant and vital part in the campaign which resulted in the capture of Mexico City in the War With Mexico, the Third Infantry was given the honor of marching at the head of the column when the victorious army made its triumphal entry into the city. General Winfield Scott, Commander of the Army in Mexico, with his staff, reviewed the troops as they passed through the ancient gates of the city. Regimental tradition says that, as the Third Infantry approached, General Scott removed his hat and turning to the members of his staff, said: "Gentlemen, take off your hats to the Old Guard of the Army."

"The Buff Sticks"

The Third Infantry has been known throughout the Service as "The Buff Sticks" from a period shortly after the War of 1812. In those early days soldiers used "buff sticks" (a strip of wood with a piece of leather or other buffing material fastened to it) to polish the buttons on their uniforms. The name was originally applied to individual soldiers whose equipment was in exceptionally bright and excellent condition. Gradually this designation came to be universally applied to the entire regiment because of its clean, soldierly appearance at all times.

REGIMENTAL TROPHIES

The Chapultepec Baton

When the Army entered the City of Mexico September 14, 1847, it was found that the flagstaff which had stood in front of the Cathedral in the Grand Plaza, and from which the Mexican flag had flown throughout the siege, had been cut down. A temporary staff was erected from which the Stars and Stripes were displayed and the original staff was converted into mementoes of the war.

The Chapultepec Baton is a part of the original staff. The head and ferrule are formed of native Mexican silver. The Baton was presented to the Third Infantry by Brigadier-General Persifer Smith, who commanded the division of regular troops, of which the Third Infantry formed a part, during the siege and final assault on the city. It was intended to commemorate the part taken by the Third Infantry in the capture of the city and more especially the assault which it made upon the Fortress of Chapultepec.

The custody of the Chapultepec Baton is awarded to the company which at the "buff sticks" inspections presents the smartest and most soldierly appearance of its members.

The Banner Blue

The Banner Blue is the coveted trophy awarded at periodical inspections to the company whose barracks and grounds present the neatest and most military appearance. The Banner Blue inspections were inaugurated in 1921 by Brigadier-General A. W. Bjornstad, then colonel, commanding the regiment.

Fennesy Memorial Trophy

The Fennesy Memorial Trophy was presented to the Third Infantry by the Range officers and Competitors in the National and International Matches held at Camp Perry, Ohio, in 1913, in memory of Corporal Mike Fennesy, Co. M., 3rd Infantry. Corporal Fennesy was killed in the line of duty while scoring on the range at Camp Perry.

The trophy is annually awarded to the rifle company which makes the highest average individual score in the Qualification course, record, known distance firing with the service rifle.

MONTEREY

Charles Fenno Hoffman

We were not many we who stood
Before the iron sleet that day
But many a gallant spirit would
Give half his years if he but could
Have been with us at Monterey.

Now here, now there, the shot it hailed
In dreadful drifts of fiery spray,
Yet not a single soldier quailed
When wounded comrades 'round them wailed
Their dying shout at Monterey.

And on, still on, our column kept
Through walls of flame its withering way;
Where fell the dead the living stepped
Still charging on the guns that swept
The slippery streets of Monterey.

The foe himself recoiled at last
When, striking where he strongest lay,
We swooped his flanking batteries past
And braving full their murderous blast
Stormed home the towers of Monterey.

Our banners on those turrets wave.
And there our evening bugles play
And orange boughs upon their grave
Keep green the memory of the brave
Who fought and fell at Monterey.

A Christmas Message From the Quartermaster

As we once more gather around the festive board to celebrate the merriest, the most glorious holiday of civilization, our thoughts revert to Him in whose memory we celebrate. It is appropriate on this happy occasion that we of the Quartermaster Corps give serious thought to the true meaning of "Service" as expressed over 1900 years ago by the Man of Galilee when he said "He that would be greatest among you let him be the servant to all."

As the motto of the Quartermaster Corps is "Service Unexcelled" and as it is our duty to feed, clothe and shelter the Army—a job made possible of accomplishment only through wholehearted co-operation and team work—let us at this time rededicate ourselves to the great task which lies before us, so that the record for the coming year may be even more brilliant than it has been in the past and set a new standard for service in the Quartermaster Corps.

I wish to express to you of the Quartermaster Detachment my hearty appreciation for the fine spirit of loyalty which has characterized your efforts during the past year, and to extend to you my very best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a New Year filled with happiness and prosperity.

Self Control

The hardest thing in the world is self-control. And the saving of money means the exercise of self-control in all directions at once. That is what makes saving so hard for most of us.

If you are trying to save, you must concentrate your will power on that.

You say very often that it is not worth while. Life is short, it is as well to enjoy life now.

But if you fail to show will power in your youth, if you fail now to make the necessary effort to gain independence, later on you will find, when it is too late, that life is long and rather dreary when you combine old age with poverty, a tired mind with dependence and the necessity of obeying some one else's orders.

MESSAGE FROM COMMANDER JOHN C. YOUNG
of the Third Infantry Veterans' Association

“There are events in our lives to which we only give a passing thought, but the memories of our service in the Third United States Infantry, and the stirring events in which we have played a part are indelibly stamped upon our minds. I know of no better means of fostering a love for the regiment and its colors and those who have given of the best years of their lives to its service than to give every encouragement to the Veterans’ Association and the yearly celebration of Organization Day. Though circumstances over which I have no control will prevent my being present this year, my heart and my hand goes out to those who do attend: I am heart and soul with them in every effort to keep the Veterans’ Association in a flourishing condition.

Very sincerely,

JOHN C. YOUNG.

NOTE:—Mr. Young was a First Sergeant and Sergeant Major in the Third Infantry for twenty years. He attained the age of seventy years on the twelfth day of this present month. He is still physically fit and is working every day. His home address is 598 14th Avenue, Wauwatosa, Wisconsin.
