GENERAL ORDERS } POST OF FORT SNELLING.
 NO. 4. } Fort Snelling, Minn., January 24, 1912.

The following arrangements for quartering, working, and messing prisoners at this post are hereby published:

I. Prison-room "A" in the main guardhouse is permanently assigned for use of general prisoners. It will be used as follows:

Cage No. 1 will be occupied by general prisoners serving sentence for common law offenses.

Cage No. 2 will be occupied by general prisoners who have committed purely military offenses.

The solitary cells in prison-room "A" will be used when the cages are inadequate for the prisoners of the proper class, or when required in cases where solitary confinement is ordered.

II. Prison-room "B" in the main guardhouse is permanently assigned for use of all other classes of prisoners, as follows:

Cage No. 1 is permanently assigned for use of all prisoners awaiting trial or awaiting result of trial.

Cage No. 2 will be used by garrison prisoners.

The solitary cells in prison-room "B" will be used when the cages are inadequate for prisoners of the proper class, or when required in cases where solitary confinement is ordered, for prisoners who are not general prisoners.

III. While at work prisoners will be kept separated the same as quartered.

IV. Prisoners will be messed in the prison-mess, and will be kept separated at tables as follows:

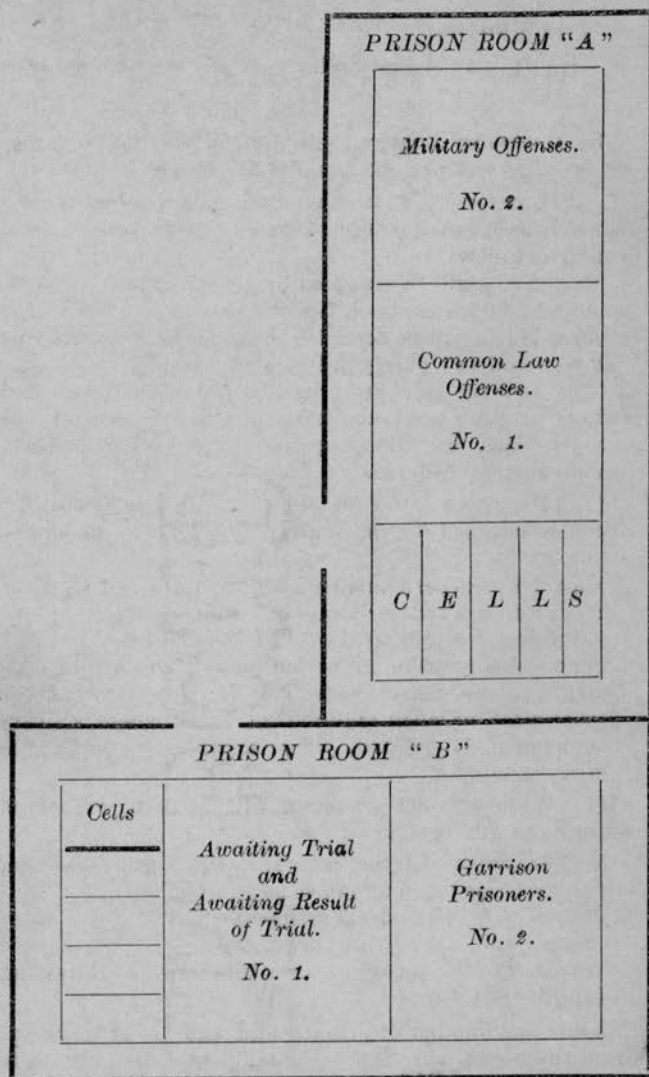

Table "A"—All general prisoners.

Table "B"—All garrison prisoners.

Table "C"—All prisoners awaiting trial or awaiting result of trial.

Should the number of prisoners increase so as to necessitate the use of more tables, assignments will be made by separating the prisoners in accordance with their assignment to quarters.

The diagram herein represents the prison-room and cages in the main guardhouse:

GENERAL ORDERS } POST OF FORT SNELLING.

No. 12. } Fort Snelling, Minn., March 9, 1912

In order to secure uniformity in the administration of discipline, the following methods will be employed in this command in fulfilment of the spirit of paragraph 968 A.R.

1. In cases where derelictions of duty are not serious enough for trial by courts-martial, and where company commanders deem it best to impose extra tours of fatigue in lieu thereof, the right to trial must be made known to the delinquents in every instance.

If extra tours of fatigue are imposed in lieu of a trial they should not be excessive, but in fair proportion to the offense committed.

2. Charges preferred against a soldier who demands trial for an alleged delinquency instead of accepting extra tours of fatigue in lieu thereof will be accompanied by recommendations of the company commander as to which method of discretionary punishment, (described in sub-heads "a", "b" and "c" in paragraph 3 herein), is desired in his case. The action of the Post Commander, should the case not be tried, will be indicated upon the charges when returned, and the responsibility of its execution will devolve upon the company commander.

3. Company commanders are authorized to impose the following disciplinary measures in cases which would not, as a rule, be referred to any court, such as late formations, not in proper uniform, overstaying pass for a short time, etc.

(a) Admonition.

(b) Discontinuance of pass privileges for a period of not to exceed ten days.

(c) Confinement to limits of barracks, when not on duty, for a period not to exceed ten days.

4. "A record will be kept by the company commanders of all punishments awarded in the cases under 1, 2 and 3, and when charges are preferred at any time an extract from such record will accompany such charges.

5. Attention has been recently drawn to the fact that the enlisted men do not seem to know the difference and distinction between an arrest and confinement to barracks. An arrest in case of enlisted men is a temporary confinement in barracks preparatory to a trial, and must not be imposed otherwise.

Leaving barracks while in a status of arrest creates a liability of trial for breach of arrest.

Confinement to barracks is either imposed by sentence of a court or as a disciplinary measure. Leaving barracks while in a status of confinement is not a breach of arrest but merely conduct to the prejudice etc.

Organization commanders will immediately take the necessary measures to see that all members of their commands thoroughly understand this order." (4234, F.S.)

GENERAL ORDERS } POST OF FORT SNELLING.
 No. 35. } Fort Snelling, Minnesota, Oct., 26, 1912.

The following schedule of practical instruction for the year commencing November 1, 1912, having been approved by the Department Commander, is published for the information and guidance of the command:

1. The training for the period above named will conform to that prescribed in General Order No. 7, War Department, 1911.

2. Organization commanders will cause the necessary instructions to be given on Saturdays, throughout the year, in First Aid, and in Signaling with flags, to comply with Paragraphs 1442 and 1584, Army Regulations.

3. Parades and other ceremonies will take place in accordance with existing regulations.

4. Progressive schemes of instruction, covering both the garrison and field training, will be prepared by all organization commanders for their respective commands. Schedules of same will be submitted to the post commander, through intermediate commanders.

5. Organization commanders will be held responsible for the progressive character of their instruction, and will be subject to such practical tests as are deemed advisable by higher commanders in order to test practical efficiency.

6. Preliminary instruction in small arm firing, and gallery practice will immediately precede range firing, due notice of which will be published.

7. Recruit instruction in their respective companies, will be commenced immediately after assignment of recruits.

8. GARRISON TRAINING PERIOD: Nov. 1st, 1912 to Mar. 31st, 1913, inclusive.

(a) For Infantry:

Practical instruction for at least two hours daily, except Saturdays and Sundays.

(c) Officers' School in the garrison and post graduate courses will be conducted as prescribed in GO70WD10.

(d) Schools for non-commissioned officers, Par. 3, GO-70WD10, will be conducted at least twice weekly. Battalion commanders will assemble the non-commissioned officers of their respective battalions once weekly for combined instruction.

9. FIELD TRAINING PERIOD: April 1st to October 31, 1913.

When organizations are not engaged in small arm firing, practice marches, or at maneuver camps the following progressive schedule will be followed:

(a) For Infantry:

Daily, except Saturdays and Sundays.

Month:	Co. Instruction. Days per week	Batt. Instruction. Days per week.	Regimental Instruction. Days per week.
April	4	1	-
May	4	1	-
June	4	1	-
July	2	3	-
August	1	2	2
September	1	1	3
October	1	1	3

The practice marches prescribed in GO7WD11, and small arm firing to take place when ordered.

A brief statement of each day's work in this period will be furnished, by the battalion and company commanders for the unit concerned, to the next higher commander, one day in advance.

War strength organizations for practical exercises in minor tactics may be formed not to exceed two days in each month.

Attention is invited to Par. 6, GO7WD11 which requires that two days in each month in battalion and company instruction be devoted to practical exercises in minor tactics.

(b) For Field Artillery:

Instruction of officers and enlisted men as contemplated in Pars. 5, 17, 19, 20, 23 and 25 GO46WD11.

Practice marches prescribed in GO7WD11, and target practice to take place when ordered. (5100)

Instruction of organizations will be supervised by battalion commanders, and will fulfill the requirements of GO7 WD11, as published in schedule of instruction approved for the garrison of this post. The object to be attained being the results indicated in Memorandum from Headquarters Department of the Lakes, published from this office under date of Nov. 22, 1911.

Headquarters Detachment will follow schedule of instruction prepared by its commander.

Noncommissioned officers' school will be held at such time in the forenoon as designated by battalion commanders; hours not to conflict with provisions of this order.

Battalion Commanders will give personal attention to instruction of noncommissioned officers of their respective battalions; to this end they will, at least once a week, assemble the noncommissioned officers in the gymnasium or other suitable place, and by questions and illustrations with troops, examine and instruct on work done in company school for noncommissioned officers.

A provisional company of three or four squads, will be organized for the purpose of illustrating and instructing. The organization may be formed either from the battalion to which the noncommissioned officers belong or from one of the others, (preferably one of the others), days being so arranged that each battalion will have one day per week, but each a different day. This instruction may very properly be substituted for that of one of the days of company school for noncommissioned officers.

Battalion Commanders will be charged with supervision of attendance at drill and noncommissioned officers' school.

Attention is invited to GO51 Post 1911, the provisions of which will be complied with.

No. 5 / Fort Snelling, Minn., Jan. 23, 1913

During a funeral ceremony yesterday the disturbance, disorder and annoyance caused by dogs was unreasonably beyond decency.

On and after February 1, 1913, all owners of dogs who desire the privilege of keeping them on this military reservation will state in writing that they will take precaution to prevent their dogs from disturbing military ceremonies, drills or other exercises, or from annoying other residents of this post.

Upon the Post Commander's approval of such an application the owner of the dog, thus licensed, will procure a collar with a suitable metal tag or plate bearing the owner's name. This tag or plate will be kept on the dog at all times for the purpose of identification.

The Officer of the Day will be responsible that unlicensed dogs are removed from the reservation.

During ceremonies and drills the Officer of the Day will utilize patrols of the guard to carry out the provisions of this order both as to licensed and unlicensed dogs, reporting violations to this office.

Applications named above will be made in duplicate on blank forms furnished from this office.
