W. S. Mc
Lieut. Col., 28th Inf.
Commanding Officer.

INSTRUCTIONS.

The charges and data, as called for on pages 1 and 2 of this form, will be prepared in duplicate by the officer preferring the charges—one copy for completion as the record of trial, and the other as the copy for the company records, the latter to be certified to be "a true copy" by the commanding officer or adjutant.

Each case will be given a serial number in the order of trial, by the trial officer, and bound in its numerical order in a book of convenient size, each case, when completed, being added to the book by pasting or other method. Paper binding will be sufficient, a good quality of tough paper being used for this purpose.

Charges will be accompanied by the certified copies of previous convictions on file with the company records. If the charges be referred to the summary court for trial, the copies will be returned to the company records immediately after trial. If the charges be referred to a garrison or regimental court-martial (this form being used as a charge sheet), the copies of previous convictions will accompany them, but will be returned to the company records immediately after trial. When the copies of previous convictions accompany charges referred to a general court-martial for trial, they will be returned to the company records immediately after trial, and copies thereof, made and certified by the judge-advocate, will be attached to the record of trial.

If the only officer present with command sits as summary court, no approval of sentence is required, but he will sign the sentence as such officer and affix the date of signature.

This form is printed in copying ink, and when filled in on the typewriter, a copyable ribbon will be used.

Approved Capt 6 1916
GR Green
Capt J M Commanding Officer.

INSTRUCTIONS.

The charges and data, as called for on pages 1 and 2 of this form, will be prepared in duplicate by the officer preferring the charges—one copy for completion as the record of trial, and the other as the copy for the company records, the latter to be certified to be "a true copy" by the commanding officer or adjutant.

A serial number will be given to each case in the order of trial, by the trial officer, the cases to be bound in numerical order in a book of convenient size. Each case, when completed, will be added to the book by pasting or other method. Paper binding will be sufficient, a good quality of tough paper being used for this purpose.

Charges will be accompanied by the certified copies of previous convictions on file with the company records. If the charges be referred to the summary court for trial, the copies will be returned to the company records immediately after trial. If the charges be referred to a garrison or regimental court-martial (this form being used as a charge sheet), the copies of previous convictions will accompany them, but will be returned to the company records immediately after trial. When the copies of previous convictions accompany charges referred to a general court-martial for trial, they will be returned to the company records immediately after trial, and copies thereof, made and certified by the judge advocate, will be attached to the record of trial.

If the only officer present with command sits as summary court, no approval of sentence is required, but he will sign the sentence as such officer and affix the date of signature.

This form is printed in copying ink, and when filled in on the typewriter, a copyable ribbon will be used.

assigned, the cards will be sent by mail.

3. Men who fail to report at a station for assignment within ten days after the receipt thereof of their descriptive and assignment cards, and whose absence has not been accounted for, will be assigned to an organization serving at the station and reported on the records of said organization as "Never joined, deserted en route from",
as of the date they were forwarded therefrom.

4. Erasures of entries on a descriptive and assignment card are prohibited. All changes made in original entries thereon will be duly authenticated by the signature of the officer making the changes. Under no circumstances will slips of paper be pasted or attached to a descriptive and assignment card.

INSTRUCTIONS

1. The name of the person examined and the serial (red ink) number of his registration card will be entered in the spaces for that purpose on page 1 exactly as they appear on his registration card.

2. The questions under the heading "Statement of Person Examined" will be asked by the examining physician and the answers recorded by him before the person to be examined has been stripped. Any answer indicating a possible disqualification will be followed up by searching inquiry and examination and the result noted in the examining physician's report.

3. The physical examination will conform strictly to the requirements of this form and all prescribed regulations and instructions governing physical examinations under the Selective Service Act of May 18, 1917.

4. Deviations from normal, though not cause for finding the person examined physically deficient and not physically qualified for military service, will be noted under the proper headings.

5. The space under the Remarks will be used for continuation of an answer if the allotted space is insufficient, and for any further statement that the examining physician may desire to make.

6. In each case in which, after examination by one examining physician, a reexamination by another is required by regulations, an independent report of the reexamination will be made on this form; and the word "Reexamination" will be entered in red ink under the words "Serial Number" on the first page of the report of the reexamination. After completion of the reexamination the report thereof will be permanently attached to the report of the original examination.

To dismiss the regiment.....	8

1. Scope.—The regiment does not engage in prescribed drills. It may be drilled, however, in forming for ceremonies, street parades, or marches.

2. Formations.—The formations of the regiment (Pl. 1) are—

- a.* Line of battalions in line of close columns.
- b.* Line of battalions in line of close lines.
- c.* Line of battalions in column of close columns.
- d.* Line of battalions in column of close lines.
- e.* Column of squads.
- f.* Column of battalions in line of close columns.
- g.* Column of battalions in line of close lines.
- h.* Column of battalions in column of close columns.
- i.* Column of battalions in column of close lines.

PLATE 1.—Formations of the regiment

DRILL, THE INFANTRY REGIMENT AND BRIGADE

3. Use of formations.—Column of squads is the usual column of march. Column of battalions in column of close columns and column of battalions in column of close lines are formations suitable for street parades and for marching in review. The other formations shown in Plate 1 are suitable for ceremonies and inspections.

4. Rules for formations.—a. In whatever formation the regiment may be, the battalions retain their permanent administrative designations: First, second, and third battalions. For convenience they may be designated, when in line, as right, center, or left battalion; when in column, as leading, center, or rear battalion. These designations apply to the actual positions of the battalions in line or column.

b. For all formations of the regiment, except column of squads, the headquarters company (less the commander of the communications platoon and all mounted enlisted men), the howitzer company, the service company (less the band, the mounted officers and enlisted men of the headquarters platoon, and the transportation platoon), and the attached medical personnel (less those mounted) are combined under command of the machine-gun officer. The combined special units conform to the formations and movements of the battalions and are formed in the following order from right to left, when in line, and from front to rear, when in column: Headquarters company, howitzer company, attached medical personnel, service company.

c. When the regiment is in line, the battalion trains (battalion sections of the transportation platoon, service company) are formed in rear of their respective battalions; when in column, they are formed in rear of the combined special units and in the same order from front to rear as their respective battalions.

d. When the regiment is in line, the combined trains of the special units are formed in rear of the combined special units; when in column, except column of squads, they are formed in rear of the battalion trains.

e. When battalions are in line, trains are formed in line; when in column, except in column of squads, trains are formed in column. When troops are in column of squads, trains are in single column.

f. When the regiment is in column of squads, unless otherwise directed, battalion and special unit combat trains follow their respective battalions or units, and the combat trains of units attached to battalions join the corresponding battalion combat trains.

g. For all formations except column of squads, the regimental commander's staff is augmented by the following: The surgeon, 2 chaplains, 1 first lieutenant (commanding communications platoon, headquarters company), 1 master sergeant (headquarters company), and the following mounted men of the communications platoon, headquarters company: 1 technical sergeant, 1 sergeant (mounted messenger), 1 corporal (mounted messenger), 6 privates (mounted messengers). Their positions with reference to the regimental commander are as shown in Plate 2.

h. When the special units are combined, the following officers and enlisted men form the staff of the machine-gun officer: Assistant machine-gun officer, 2 first lieutenants, and 1 second lieutenant (supply section, headquarters platoon, service company), 2 master sergeants and 1 supply sergeant (supply section, headquarters platoon, service company), and 1 private (mounted messenger, communications platoon, headquarters company). Their positions with reference to the machine-gun officer are as shown in Plate 3.

PLATE 3

i. When the regiment forms in column of squads, the surgeon joins the regimental commander's staff and the attached chaplains join the service company, unless otherwise directed.

j. In all formations of the regiment, except in column of squads, the colors are with the center battalion; when in column of squads the colors are with the service company, unless otherwise ordered.

5. To form the regiment.—a. To assume any formation, except column of squads, the regimental commander prescribes the formation, the hour of forming, the direction in which the regiment will face, the order of battalions from right to left, in line, or from front to rear, in column, and the point of rest.

b. To form the regiment in column of squads, the regimental commander prescribes the formation, the place where the regiment is to form (usually on a road), the direction in which the regiment will face, the hour of forming, the initial point (location of head of column), and the order in column of the headquarters, battalions, special and attached units, and field trains.

c. The regimental commander gives his orders either verbally or in writing, to form the regiment; they may be given directly to the officers concerned or may be communicated to them through staff officers or messengers.

d. Before forming the regiment, the regimental commander may cause the positions, which are to be taken by the larger element, to be indicated by markers.

e. Battalion commanders and commanders of special and attached units move their commands by the most suitable means and routes to the place of formation and dispose them as ordered.

f. Upon arrival at their designated places in the prescribed formation, battalion and special unit commanders report the fact to the regimental commander; if the special units are combined, the commander thereof reports the arrival of the combined special units at their designated place.

g. Battalions and special units stand at rest upon arrival at their designated places, unless otherwise directed.

6. To march.—a. The regiment being in any formation, the regimental commander prescribes the formation in which the regiment will march and the route to be followed, and puts the command in motion by prescribing the hour or by giving the command: 1. Forward, 2. MARCH, or by bugle or signal.

b. If the regiment is in column of squads, the formation in which it will march may be omitted.

c. To march in route column, the regiment is not ordinarily formed and put into march as a unit. Battalion commanders and special and attached unit commanders are usually informed in orders of the destination, route, hour of starting, initial point, order of march, and, if necessary, the distances between elements, and are held responsible for having their commands take their places in the column at the prescribed time and place.

7. To halt.—To halt the regiment, the regimental commander may either prescribe the hour when the column will be halted or he may give the command or signal HALT.

8. To dismiss the regiment.—To dismiss the regiment, the regimental commander orders the battalion and special and attached unit commanders to dismiss their organizations. The order may be given directly to the commanders concerned or it may be communicated to them through staff officers or messengers.

SECTION II

THE BRIGADE

	Paragraph
Drill.....	9
Formations.....	10
To form the brigade.....	11
To march.....	12
To halt.....	13
To dismiss the brigade.....	14

9. Drill.—The brigade does not drill.

10. Formations.—There are no prescribed formations for the brigade.

11. To form the brigade.—a. To assume any formation the brigade commander issues verbal or written orders in which he prescribes the formation and the method of forming. When necessary, such orders are accompanied by march tables.

b. To form the brigade in route column, unit commanders are informed of the destination, the route, the hour of starting, the initial point, the order of march, and, if necessary, the distances between elements. The unit commanders will be responsible for having their commands in readiness to take their places in the column at the prescribed time and place.

c. For formations other than in route column, the brigade commander ordinarily causes the positions of the larger elements to be indicated by markers on the ground where the brigade is to form.

12. To march.—a. If the brigade is in route column, the brigade commander puts it in march by prescribing the hour of starting.

b. If the brigade is in any formation, other than in route column, the brigade commander indicates in orders the formation in which it will march and puts it in march by command, by signal, or by prescribing the hour of starting.

13. To halt.—a. To halt the brigade at any time except hourly, the brigade commander issues the necessary orders or halts the leading unit by command or signal.

b. To halt the brigade for hourly halts, the brigade commander prescribes, in his march order, when and for how long such halts will be made.

14. To dismiss the brigade.—To dismiss the brigade, the brigade commander issues the necessary orders.
