According to one pronunciation his name sounds much like that of the Chippewa Hole-in-the-Day whose son, Joseph Woodbury, says, "The old rascal has stolen my father's name." Pioneer Press, Oct. 7, 1898, p. 1.

I find no evidence anywhere of "Old Bug's" being a relative of Hole-in-the-Day. The latter's Indian name was much the same - Pug-o-na-ghe-zhishk - according to Wis. Hist. Col., 5:381. All references to Hole-in-the-Day are much earlier than 1898; he died in 1867. Of course they were both Chippewa. The Handbook gives Hole-in-the-Day's Indian name as Bagwunagijik.

WHO ARE SUBJECT TO MILITARY TRAINING AT THE UNIVERSITY.

The latest regulations of the War Department with reference to commutation for uniforms make it necessary that all students taking military training should provide themselves with the standard government regulation olive drab, wool, rookie uniform with cap and leggings.

This means that the cadet gray suits used heretofore will not be used hereafter for military purposes. All first-year students who are required to take military training and all other students taking work in the military department will have to provide themselves with the appropriate new uniform before October 20.

The University authorities regret exceedingly that students already in possession of cadet gray suits will not be able to substitute them for the new uniforms now required by the government, but there seems to be no alternative. Under the circumstances it is assumed that the cadet gray suits will be worn as civilian dress at the University.

Obviously the University can purchase the new uniforms at reduced prices. The contract price is $23.65 for the complete outfit, which is much cheaper than the retail price for the same material. Bills for this amount will be furnished students immediately after the opening of college, October 10, and they will be required to pay the sum indicated on or before October 20.

A telegram from the War Department brings the information that students who go on in the junior and senior years in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps will be allowed commutation for uniforms.

TO ALL FORMER UNIVERSITY STUDENTS AND PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS WHO ARE SUBJECT TO MILITARY TRAINING AT THE UNIVERSITY.

The latest regulations of the War Department with reference to commutation for uniforms make it necessary that all students taking military training should provide themselves with the standard government regulation olive drab, wool, rookie uniform with cap and leggings.

This means that the cadet gray suits used heretofore will not be used hereafter for military purposes. All first-year students who are required to take military training and all other students taking work in the military department will have to provide themselves with the appropriate new uniform before October 20.

The University authorities regret exceedingly that students already in possession of cadet gray suits will not be able to substitute them for the new uniforms now required by the government, but there seems to be no alternative. Under the circumstances it is assumed that the cadet gray suits will be worn as civilian dress at the University.

Obviously the University can purchase the new uniforms at reduced prices. The contract price is $23.65 for the complete outfit, which is much cheaper than the retail price for the same material. Bills for this amount will be furnished students immediately after the opening of college, October 10, and they will be required to pay the sum indicated on or before October 20.

A telegram from the War Department brings the information that students who go on in the junior and senior years in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps will be allowed commutation for uniforms.

The University authorities regret exceedingly that students already in possession of cadet gray suits will not be able to substitute them for the new uniforms now required by the government, but there seems to be no alternative. Under the circumstances it is assumed that the cadet gray suits will be worn as civilian dress at the University.

Obviously the University can purchase the new uniforms at reduced prices. The contract price is $23.65 for the complete outfit, which is much cheaper than the retail price for the same material. Bills for this amount will be furnished students immediately after the opening of college, October 10, and they will be required to pay the sum indicated on or before October 20.

A telegram from the War Department brings the information that students who go on in the junior and senior years in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps will be allowed commutation for uniforms.

TO ALL FORMER UNIVERSITY STUDENTS AND PROSPECTIVE STUDENTS WHO ARE SUBJECT TO MILITARY TRAINING AT THE UNIVERSITY.

The latest regulations of the War Department with reference to commutation for uniforms make it necessary that all students taking military training should provide themselves with the standard government regulation olive drab, wool, rookie uniform with cap and leggings.

This means that the cadet gray suits used heretofore will not be used hereafter for military purposes. All first-year students who are required to take military training and all other students taking work in the military department will have to provide themselves with the appropriate new uniform before October 20.

The University authorities regret exceedingly that students already in possession of cadet gray suits will not be able to substitute them for the new uniforms now required by the government, but there seems to be no alternative. Under the circumstances it is assumed that the cadet gray suits will be worn as civilian dress at the University.

Obviously the University can purchase the new uniforms at reduced prices. The contract price is $23.65 for the complete outfit, which is much cheaper than the retail price for the same material. Bills for this amount will be furnished students immediately after the opening of college, October 10, and they will be required to pay the sum indicated on or before October 20.

A telegram from the War Department brings the information that students who go on in the junior and senior years in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps will be allowed commutation for uniforms.
