My dear Mr. Ford:

I am glad to hear from you. The eagle tablecloth is a very interesting item, and I am inclined to believe fairly old. As I understand the matter, the arrows were shifted from the eagle's right claw to his left in 1805, and the olive branch thus made the more readily available for presentation. I should not be surprised to learn that your piece is of about that period.

However, I shall publish it, and see whether any of our readers has any enlightenment to offer.

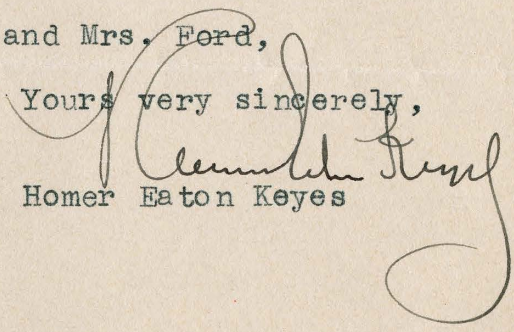

The prices from the Morris Murray sale that you are interested in are as follows:

#157	$575.
236	260.
250	170.
299	320.

I am glad to hear you had such a successful trip abroad, and trust that the "next time" may not be long deferred.

With best wishes to you and Mrs. Ford,

Yours very sincerely,

Homer Eaton Keyes
