My dear Mrs. Whipple.

I thank you very much for the cheque for the curate's salary. You always
send the cheques
at the most convenient times, —
so you must be a mind-reader!

Thank you very much too for the man who is making our grass beautiful. That is very kind too. I have discovered that the English clematis in front of the Deanery is alive almost to the very top of the porch: I had seen no signs of life till I investigated it today; & the sap & the green-ness are creeping up. I hope your vines will have been equally brave against the winter.

Very sincerely Yours
Rachel L. Slattery

Wednesday.

P.S. I am going to let you in to a little secret —

this letter from
D. Hodges. The
degree is to be given on account of the book, & I have accepted it. Of course the matter
is confidential till June fifth. I thought you would be interested.
But don't write me a note: please mind this Edith
