Dear Al:

I hope that you and Mrs. Boese are well and enjoying the holiday season.

As we continually search for funds to support our educational program, it occurred to me that there might be a source for equipment gifts by local companies similar to the help that you have been instrumental in getting us. For example, the 3M Company is now manufacturing tape recorders, as well as copying equipment. If you could help us by providing the names of people we might contact in those specific areas, it would be greatly appreciated. I am attempting as well to contact the appropriate people at Honeywell for slide projectors and cameras. This kind of equipment is expensive for the School to purchase and is, as you well know, very easy for business and industry to provide through the 5% allowable gift category for Corporations.

If you have any other ideas regarding this, I would be happy to hear them. All best wishes.

Sincerely,

Your contribution of $ 200 to the St. Paul Arts and Science fund is acknowledged with sincere thanks.

It is through private support and participation, both corporate and individual, that the city's cultural progress has experienced a true renaissance. It is primarily for this reason that we now have a program which is unique in concept and operation, and one in which we can all take great pride.

Dear Al:

You may have seen the enclosed article in the Wall Street Journal. Apparently, many firms are now helping schools with equipment and materials that they manufacture. I believe that the 3M Printing Products Division has been helping Vocational High School considerably. Perhaps you could suggest someone we may contact regarding such items from that division or from the Photographic Products Division, such as the new Color Key and other fairly expensive printing and photographic equipment that would be useful in the training of our graphic students.

Another equipment item that is marketed by 3M that would be extremely useful to us is the Wollensak tape recorder. We now own one Wollensak, but it is sadly outworn and constantly needs repairs. The School has a remarkable collection of tapes of conversations with artists and designers who have visited the Minneapolis School of Art over the past ten years. We play these frequently for students, but their usefulness is impaired by the lack of good equipment. If you can suggest whom we may contact in that area we would be happy to follow this up and try to persuade them of the benefits in assisting us.

We are very pleased that you are planning a party for Gene Larkin. It should be alot of fun. I hope that you know what you are letting yourself in for when you invite such a large group of artists together in one place. If I can be of any help, don't hesitate to call.

Firms Find Benefits In Giving Old Plants And Gear to Colleges

Schools Also Gain From Gifts,
Which Companies Write Off;
Through History With Sears

By PETER H. PRUGH

Staff Reporter of THE WALL STREET JOURNAL
DES MOINES—Money isn't everything.

At least it isn't for endowment-hungry colleges. They will, and do, take anything. Among other things they have received: Two big factories, a $6 million computer complex, a valuable edition of Darwin's The Origin of the Species, several new Plymouth station wagons, a nine-passenger airplane and microfilm copies of Sears, Roebuck & Co. catalogs dating back to 1888.

In fact, such gifts this year probably will account for about $40 million of the $250 million that corporations will dole out to institutions of higher learning, one fund-raiser estimates. A few years ago, such equipment giving was rare.

Corporations are discovering that such largesse not only builds good will and a bright image but also provides some sound tax benefits. And, since beggars can't be choosers, the colleges will take any morsel tossed their way. The morsels sometimes prove to be gems.

Unloading a Factory

Take, for instance, the handsome, 14-year-old Solar Aircraft plant not far from downtown in this capital city. The plant was only eight years old when Solar, a division of International Harvester Co., decided to consolidate its operations on the West Coast. Harvester was stuck with a 686,000-square-foot plant that nobody wanted—at least nobody wanted at the price Harvester was quoting, said to be $3.5 million to $5.1 million. For five years the plant stood vacant.

Harvester finally decided to give away the plant last year. As recipient, it chose the Iowa State University Foundation at nearby Ames. It is believed to have written off the cost of the gift at the lower end of its asking price. But what could Iowa State do with a big empty factory? Sell it, naturally. So last month it announced the sale of the plant to Massey-Ferguson, Inc., a major competitor of Harvester. The profit, believed to be about $3 million, will be used toward construction of a $12 million cultural center at Iowa State, which will have a central court named Harvester Plaza.

The outcome left everyone happy. Iowa State has $3 million, Harvester has a nice write-off and one less white elephant, Massey-Ferguson has a new plant at a good price, and Des Moines has a new industry that will add some $10.4 million to the economy annually.

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

October 7, 1965

It doesn't take a huge gift to accrue benefits to the giver. A large Midwestern utility saves on real estate taxes by donating to colleges and universities small parcels of unneeded land that were acquired in large purchases for expansion. Erwin D. Tuffill, president of the fund-raising counseling firm of John Price Jones & Co., notes that if a company gives a college equipment that sells for $100,000 the company can write off that amount for income tax purposes, even though the gear cost only $50,000 to make.

Other economic factors are behind some gifts. To save valuable space when it moved its headquarters last year, Appleton-Century-Crofts, a New York division of Des Moines' Meredith Publishing Co., gave 15,000 of its out-of-print books to New York University. Included were many valuable first editions and books dating back to the early 1800s. "If there is a book we need to check, we can go down to the library and get it," explains Allan Fairris, Appleton-Century president.

Computers and Cars

Gifts of equipment "help cement college relations in many cases," says a spokesman for Honeywell, Inc., which has given computers to several colleges in the past five years. It plans to step up such giving. The gifts also aid in job-recruiting at colleges, according to Western Electric Co., the equipment-making arm of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. Western Electric has been giving equipment to colleges since 1928, now lists 2,438 types of items in its 88-page catalog of available free gear. The catalog now goes to 500 institutions.

In addition, many gifts reflect the growing corporate dependence on university research facilities. This summer, International Business Machines Corp. began installing free of charge a $6 million computer complex at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology computation center, which serves MIT and 51 other New England institutions. The computation center, started nine years ago with assistance from IBM, "has played a significant part in some of the most important advances in information processing," says Albert L. Williams, IBM president.

There are obvious campus uses for many gifts, such as the $150,000 of cars, engines and air conditioners being given by Chrysler Corp. this year and the airplanes given to the University of Minnesota by a mining corporation. But the need for others isn't so clear. WJ, for example, cares about looking at Sears catalogs for the past 77 years? Well, at Northwestern University, drama, business and history students beat a steady path to the Sears microfilm. Drama students, says library official Noel Owens, use the catalogs to check period costumes; business students for dissertations on prices and advertising; and history scholars to "get the feel of the period." Sears has given its microfilmed catalogs to about 100 universities and colleges and public libraries.

Some gifts of property or equipment come as the result of company organizational shifts or changes in operations. Earlier this year, Humble Oil & Refining Co., chief U.S. subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), gave the University of Tulsa its $3 million research and production center in Tulsa because the company was consolidating facilities in Houston. The move was an economic blow to Tulsa, but the gift of the seven buildings and 20 acres of land came "just at the right time," says Bill Hays, director of alumni relations. "Now we can have expansion without any additional expenses," he says.

Help for Kalamazoo

Rapidly changing technology, making even fairly modern plants and equipment obsolete, also is a factor in corporate giving, according to William J. Davis, vice president for development at Kalamazoo College in Michigan. Kalamazoo recently received a computer and a $450,000 vacant farm implement and auto parts plant, he says. The college now uses the computer for its own operations and rents out storage space in the old plant, which was given by Borg-Warner Corp. "We were first apprehensive," Mr. Davis says, but the property will bring an additional $20,000 in income to the college this year and $40,000 in 1966.

Despite Mr. Davis' pleasure, some people think this brand of corporate giving has its hazards. Mr. Tuthill of John Price Jones says "potential pitfalls" include the possibility that "overzealous" colleges or their alumni might attempt pressuring a company into giving a gift with the promise of future business for the company.

A company on the other hand, might use promises of such gifts to pressure a school into buying its products or services, he suggests.

An official of Illinois Institute of Technology, which received an estimated $250,000 of equipment from corporations in the 12 months through August, notes that schools still have a need for plain cash. "If all companies just gave us equipment," he says, "we'd have a hard time paying the faculty members that use it, or balancing the budget."

Mr. Al Boese

Dear Al:

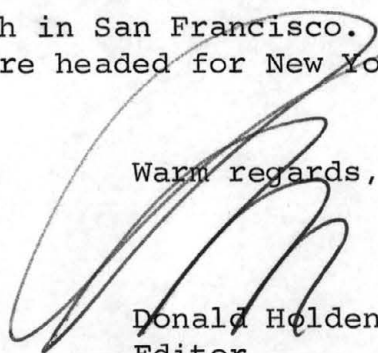

I was absolutely thrilled to receive the press and two batches of Art Fabric at home yesterday. It was terribly generous of you and I'm going to put the press to work as soon as I get back from Europe, where I'm headed in about 10 days.

Compared with the cumbersome, expensive presses I've used in print making workshops, your product is a masterpiece of simplification. In addition to the usual and familiar print making processes, I think the press should be enormously useful for such things as monotypes, Lucite engravings, acetate drypoints, collographs and other collage print making media, and various mixed media applications. I'm going to try some of these and I'll give you a report the next time I see you.

Sorry we weren't able to meet at NAMTA. I dropped by your booth on Monday morning -- the only chance I had to get over to the show -- but you weren't around. I hope you got the message that I'd come by.

Thanks again for that lunch in San Francisco. I hope you'll tell me the next time you're headed for New York so I can return the hospitality.

Warm regards,

Donald Holden

Dear Al:

Just a brief note of thanks for that splendid dinner in San Francisco. I enjoyed our conversation hugely and I learned a great deal. I hope some of my suggestions were useful, too.

I'm looking forward eagerly to receiving your printmaking press and some samples of the plate material. I'd like to show the press and plates to a couple of authors who are working on printmaking books, where these products might be worth mentioning in the text. I'm also looking forward to trying out the press and plates for some printmaking ideas of my own. If any of these ideas pan out, I'll let you know, on the chance that they may be useful.

Hope to see you when you're in New York.

Warm regards,

WOODCOCK SINGING-GROUND SURVEY INSTRUCTIONS
(Revised 1972)

This important survey provides an index to the size of the woodcock breeding population in North America. For emphasis, essential points are listed first.

PLEASE BE SURE TO:

- (A) CHECK INSTRUCTIONS CAREFULLY TO AVOID LOSS OF DATA.
- (B) CONDUCT SURVEY WITHIN DATES SHOWN ON MAP ATTACHED (when spring is behind schedule, routes run up to 5 days later will be accepted).
- (C) TIME OF DAY IS VERY CRITICAL - READ INSTRUCTION 3 CAREFULLY.
- (D) STOPS MUST BE AT EXACTLY 0.4-MILE INTERVALS.
- (E) RECORD FORM MUST BE COMPLETE - INCLUDE ALL REQUESTED INFORMATION.
- (F) COUNTS MUST NOT BE MADE IF TEMPERATURE IS BELOW 40° F, OR IN STRONG WIND.
- (G) CONTACT YOUR LOCAL COORDINATOR PROMPTLY IF UNABLE TO RUN YOUR ROUTE IN THE DESIGNATED TIME, OR DUE TO HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION OR OTHER FACTORS.
- (H) FORMS MUST BE SUBMITTED PROMPTLY AFTER SURVEY TO LOCAL COORDINATOR SHOWN.

LOCAL COORDINATOR:

YOU INDICATED THAT THIS ROUTE SHOULD BE CHANGED. PLEASE SHOW → RETURN TO THIS OFFICE

SURVEY DETAILS

As part of their spring courtship behavior, male woodcock exhibit aerial and vocal displays each morning and evening. Since their behavior is most consistent during the evening, this period is used for survey purposes. Woodcock males usually begin their evening activities by giving a call described as a "peent." From openings called "singing grounds" birds alternately "peent" and make "flight songs." Novice survey participants should spend time afield with an experienced observer in order to become familiar with woodcock sounds and survey procedures.

Originally, survey routes were established in areas where woodcock were known to be present. However, studies suggest that counts along these routes may not accurately represent woodcock population densities. Data from randomly distributed routes are a better measure of both woodcock breeding density and annual fluctuations in the density. Consequently, all new woodcock survey routes are being selected on a random basis to obtain the highest possible degree of accuracy in the survey. PLEASE READ AND FOLLOW INSTRUCTIONS CAREFULLY SO THAT DATA FROM YOUR ROUTE WILL BE OF MAXIMUM VALUE AND RESULTS WILL BE COMPARABLE WITH PAST AND/OR FUTURE SURVEYS.

1. General: It is desirable that the same individual run the same route(s) year after year. When this is impossible, new survey participants must become familiar with survey procedures and local conditions on the route. When observers change, it would be most desirable for both cooperators (previous and new) to make the survey together if possible. Otherwise the route cannot be used in the index that year. Make a trial run of your route(s) to become familiar with location of stops and road conditions. Be as precise as possible in determining stops so their locations will be identical each year. If a bad traffic hazard prevents stopping within 100 feet of the 0.4-mile mark, proceed to the next 0.4-mile mark and note "No stop - hazardous" in the space for the stop omitted. A normal characteristic of random surveys is that some routes will fall in unfavorable habitat, so do not be disheartened if you do not hear birds on your route - your results are still valuable.

2. Time of Year: See attached map for acceptable dates in your area.

3. Time of Day: Male woodcock performances begin from 10 to 30 minutes after sunset, depending upon light intensity. Plan to arrive at the starting point for your route shortly after local "official sunset" time. Since the amount of cloud cover affects light intensity and hence the timing of woodcock activities, begin your route 22 minutes after local official sunset if the sky is clear to 3/4 overcast, and 15 minutes after local official sunset if the sky is more than 3/4 overcast. If personal judgment dictates variation from that timing, as in the case of deep valleys in mountainous country, state the facts under "Remarks." TIMING IS VERY IMPORTANT.

4. Conducting the Routes: Your map of your route shows the starting point (Stop No. 1) and direction of travel. At Stop No. 1 record the time you begin listening. Stop your vehicle's engine and step several feet away before making the count. Listen for 2 minutes and record the number of different woodcock heard "peenting." Then proceed rapidly 0.4 mile to the next stop and repeat Stop No. 1 procedures. Proceed until all 10 stops have been covered.

5. Recording the Counts: Do not record birds you hear performing only the flight song. However, notes such as "One flight song only at Stop #5" in the Remarks section are helpful. When no birds are heard peenting, record "0" in the appropriate column. When disturbances at a particular stop make a count invalid, note the type of disturbance and proceed to the next stop. Upon completion of the route, record the total number of different "peenting" birds heard.

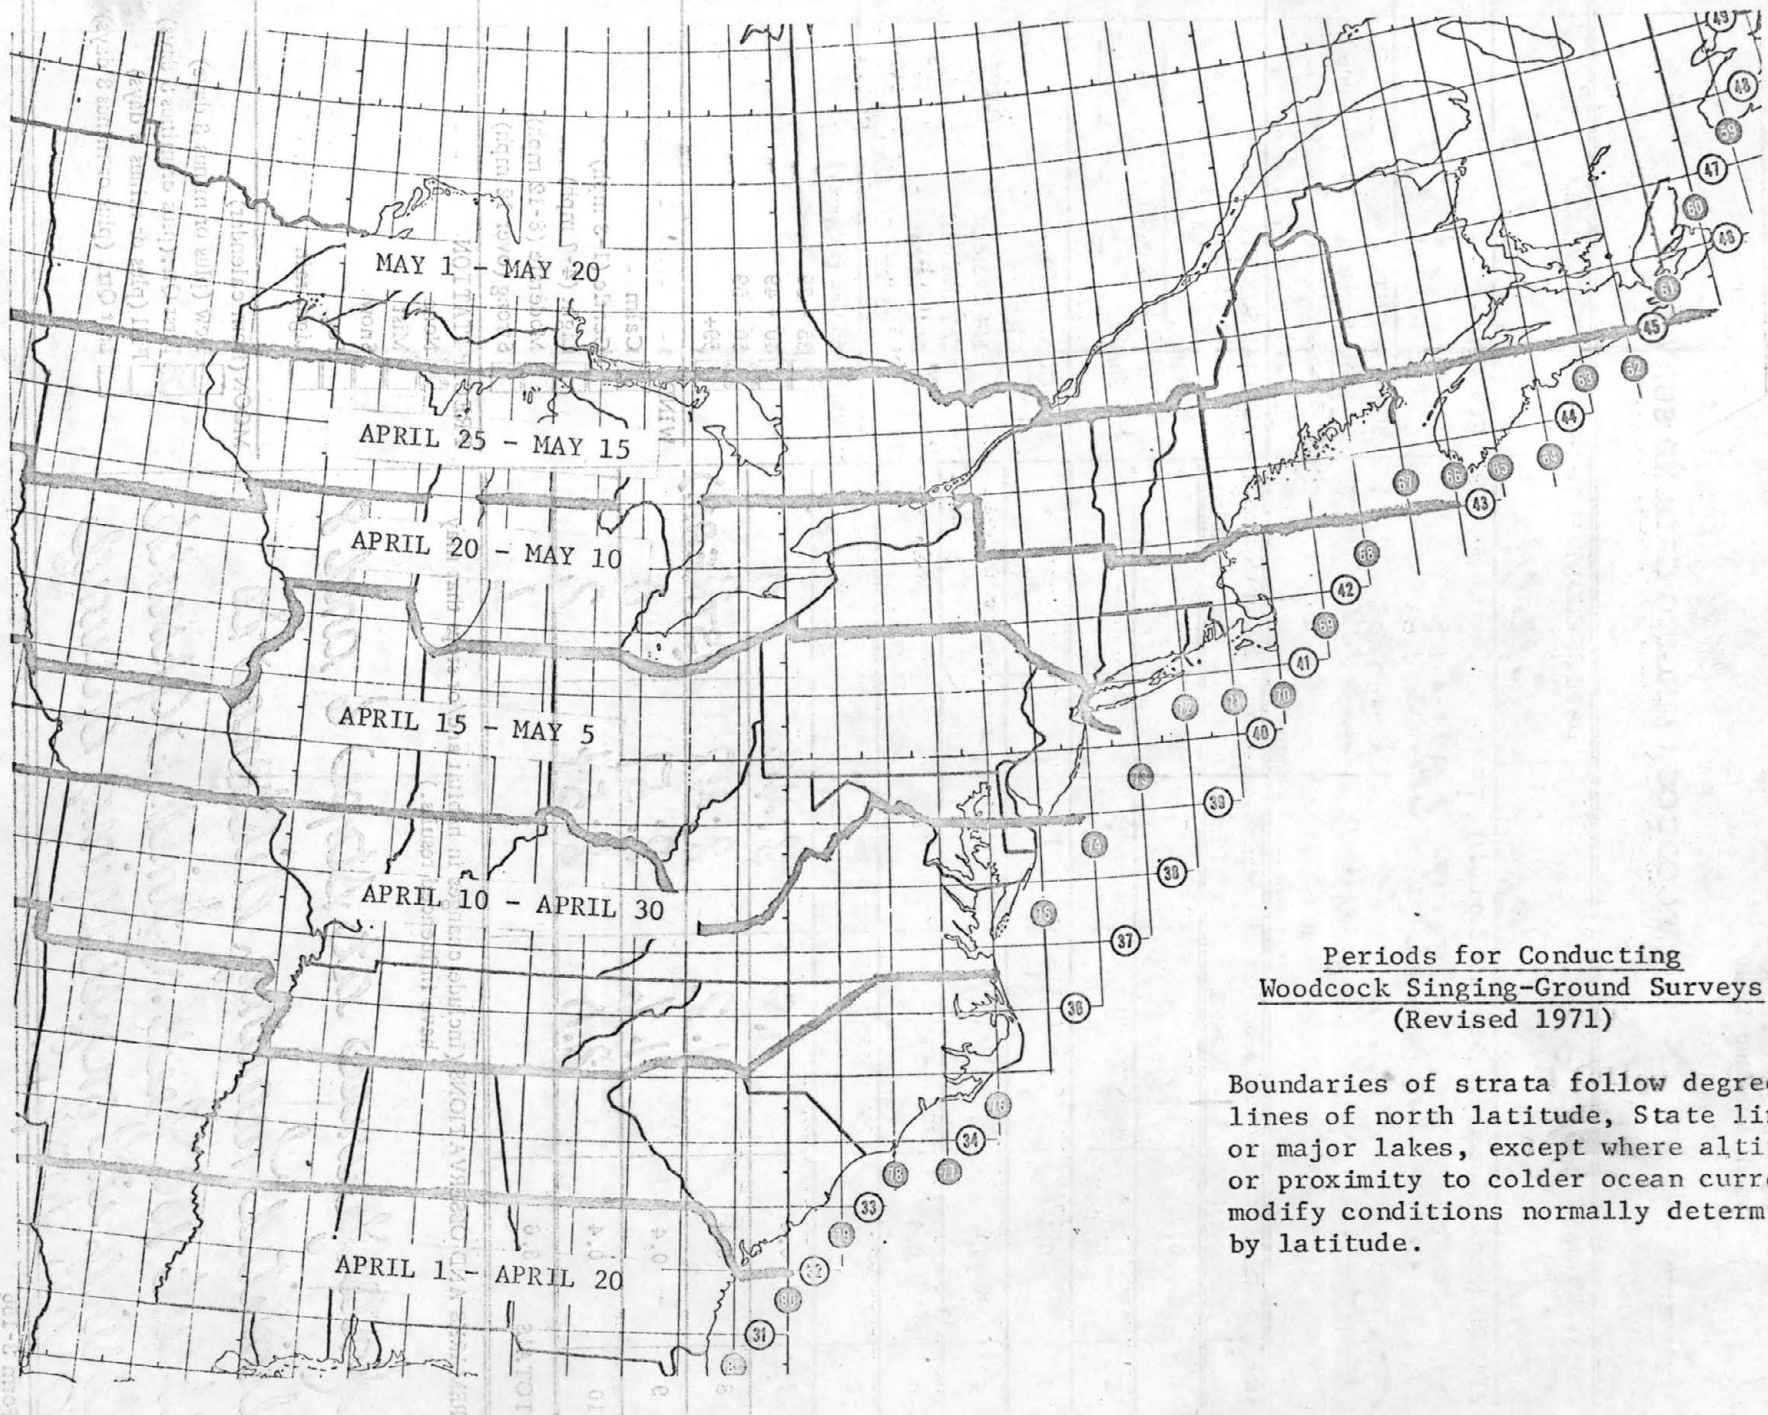

6. Recording Other Data: It is extremely important that the form be completely filled out. To act as a guide, a sample completed form is attached.

7. Things to Avoid: Counts should not be made when the temperature is below 40° F, in heavy rain or snow, or when wind velocity is estimated to be over 12 mph.

8. Number of Times to Count: Normally, conduct each route only once during the specified period. However, if weather or factors such as barking dogs, croaking frogs, or human disturbances cause invalid counts at five or more stops, the route should be rerun on another evening. If disturbances which necessitated rerunning of a particular route persist, it is not necessary to make a third effort, but record the facts under "Remarks" and mail the form to your local coordinator.

9. Forwarding the Results: As soon as you have completed your route(s), mail 3 copies of the completed forms, including the original, to your coordinator shown on page 1. Complete the survey(s) and mail forms as soon as possible. Results should be received at the Bureau's Migratory Bird Populations Station no later than 5 days after your zone's latest date as shown on the map. We sincerely appreciate your participation in this project and will mail you a report of recent woodcock research and management activities (including this survey).

IMPORTANT

1. Keep all original itemized medical bills for yourself and for each of your insured dependents in this envelope.
2. This envelope contains a Medical Expense Diary. If you will follow the instructions on the first page of the Diary it should be helpful to you in keeping a proper record of information necessary to file a claim when you have one.

PROVIDED BY THE GROUP DIVISION
AETNA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY
HARTFORD, CONNECTICUT

Suggestions Regarding Medical Bills and Claims

1. List bills for each person separately in the Medical Expense Diary.
2. Keep all itemized bills and the Diary in this envelope.
3. Your Group Insurance booklet tells you the amount of medical expenses required for an individual to qualify for a claim.
4. When you are ready to file a claim for yourself or one of your covered dependents, complete a claim form.
5. When the claim form has been completed, attach all medical bills of the person listed in your claim. Be sure all bills are dated and bear the name of the patient. Bills or statements from the doctor should show the diagnosis. Bills from a druggist should give the date, prescription number, and the physician who issued the prescription. Each of these statements should indicate clearly the name of the member of your family involved.
6. Turn in these bills or receipts and claim forms and your claim will then be sent to the Insurance Company.
7. Once a claim has been paid for an individual, subsequent bills, incurred for that individual during the remainder of the calendar year, should be submitted every three months, or when they exceed $50.

Employees:

The attached booklet outlines the provisions of our new COMPREHENSIVE HOSPITAL-SURGICAL-MEDICAL Plan. Take it home and discuss it with your family. It is important to them, too.

After you have read the booklet, here are a few additional things you, as a present employee, should know . . .

EACH PERMANENT FULL TIME EMPLOYEE will be covered under the new plan on its effective date or upon completion of three months of continuous service, if the employee is at work on that day. Otherwise, the insurance will become effective for him on the day he returns to full time employment.

DEPENDENT COVERAGE will become effective at the same time except for dependents who are hospitalized. Their coverage will become effective upon release from the hospital.

IF A MEMBER OF THE PLAN has incurred expense this year under the H-S-M Plan which was counted against the deductible, the full area of $300, or the 80% area of reimbursement, such expense will be counted in determining benefits payable during the balance of the year.

THE NEW PLAN covers expense incurred after the effective date, but any H-S-M deductible for this year will be carried over to the new plan. Benefits paid prior to May 1, 1959 will not be counted against the yearly or lifetime maximum.

The effective date is the date on which the plan becomes effective for the employee group of which you are a member.

ANY QUESTIONS YOU MAY HAVE SHOULD BE DIRECTED TO YOUR SUPERVISOR. IF HE DOES NOT HAVE THE ANSWER, HE WILL SECURE IT FOR YOU.

(see back for Special Maternity Information)

MATERNITY INFORMATION

Many employees expressed a desire for additional maternity coverage over the $180 benefit and have indicated a willingness to pay the cost of the additional benefit.

Married employees desiring this additional coverage should proceed as follows:

A request form for the Optional Benefit for employees on the payroll April 30, 1959 must be completed and given to your supervisor prior to May 31, 1959.

If the Request is not completed by that time—such coverage will not be available.

THE OPTIONAL BENEFIT will be applicable to a pregnancy in existence on May 1, 1959 for expense incurred after that date, provided the above procedure is followed and the required waiting periods have been met.

Al can always find time for some reading and with this library who wouldn't smile with pleasure . . . a comfy chair, a pipe and whatever he likes to read right at his finger tips.

WHAT Al Boese, products manager, MISTLON department, did with his opportunities at 3M, is a very good example of the possibilities of progress here at the 3M Company.

Al started with 3M in 1930 as an office boy—carrying and opening mail and running errands, the usual routine of the average office boy. Two years at this job helped him to become acquainted with the people he was to work with later. Then an opportunity presented itself, and Al was transferred to the tape lab, where, as a helper, he ran routine tests and worked on shoe tape under G. B. Gehrenbeck, who headed up rubber resin tapes. From there he became assistant inspector on masking tape backings in No. 2 Maker and later, inspector in the gasket department. In 1937, he went back to the tape lab working on shoe tapes where he continued for three years.

In 1940 came the big break. Under G. S. Merrill, then a new products research engineer, Al began research on new products. He was assigned the problem of finding a new backing for tape and while in the process—discovered MISTLON Plastic Sheeting, a product used for everything from a gift wrap material to curtains in the kitchen—a fantastic discovery, neither paper nor cloth, but a little of both.

Now Al is head of the MISTLON department which is expanding every year.

He is a graduate of Mechanic Arts High school in St. Paul. With his wife, 12-year-old son and five-year-old daughter, he lives in his home in Bellaire at White Bear Lake. Al's hobbies are most unusual. He has quite an extensive library and dotes on the study of archeology, and he also is an amateur cook, although according to his wife, he's no amateur.

And such is success—from office boy to head of a completely new and different industry.

Beginners in the business world—please note!

← Here Al shows some of the patterns and different types of MISTLON, some in ribbon form and others in place mats or in bolts for curtains.

→ Al takes a fond look at familiar names on some of the pigeon holes—familiar because this is what Al did when he first came to 3M.

HE ASKED FOR IT—Several years ago Elvin Boese, 803 Lincoln Av., St. Paul, declared to his wife in an unthinking moment that "all I want for my 50th birthday is to be surrounded by women." When the moment of his 50th

Boss-Dawley Serve Lerner-Loewe Salmon

Harlan Boss and Gene Dawley, hosts Tuesday night at the usual opening night after-theater party in their home, 475 Summit ave., served what they called their Lerner and Loewe salmon as a major attraction of a midnight buffet supper prepared by gourmet chef Alvin Boese.

Donors of the salmon, shipped last summer from Seattle, were the Hugh Dempsters, who enjoyed a similar party when the road company of My Fair Lady visited here. Dempster played Col. Pickering in both the My Fair Lady companies that came to St. Paul.

Several members of the Camelot company are returning to the Auditorium for a second appearance after having been here with other shows. Among these are Pat Drylie, who arranged the dances; George Mozer, Haydon Smith, Joan Koll and her husband, Dugan Miller.

MEDIEVAL-TYPE table appointments and decorations are planned by the Robert Petersons, 1112 Carlton dr., Arden Hills, for their after-Camelot party Friday evening. Guests will be members of a group of Friday night regulars at road show attractions, and a buffet supper will feature roast turkey

"LERNER AND LOEWE SALMON" is sampled at a post-performance Camelot cast party by Patricia Drylie, left, dance captain, and Christopher Cary, center, who plays Mordred. The man behind the dish, almost picked clean before the photographer got there, is Alvin Boese, 803 Lincoln ave.

SAMPLING other delicacies are, from left, Mrs. John B. Hilton, 385 Portland ave.; Gerald Leavitt, Camelot dancer; Mrs. Duane Ausman, 1575 Summit ave., and Mrs. Wallace Boss. Hosts for the party were Harlan Boss and Gene Dawley, 475 Summit ave.

They're Talking About . . .

The giant-size stoneware soup tureen given to Alvin W. Boese (803 Lincoln Av., St. Paul, a Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co. executive who cooks for pleasure) as a birthday gift. The tureen, 11 inches by 16 inches, was made by Iowa potters, Nan and James McKinnell of the Iowa State University faculty. Boese will use it for his famous after-theater suppers.

Mrs. Martin Kozberg (5145 Logan Av. S.) and her first meeting with Guthrie actor George Grizzard—on camera at the "Password" TV game in New York City. (Another interesting guest was actor Cliff Robertson, who is playing JFK in a new film).

Jerry Perl's delight in the news from New York that actress Agnes Moorehead is wearing a made-in-Minneapolis rain cape (in red and turquoise blue) by his Great Six Co. She walked into Macy's and bought it.

The Easter egg for the woman who has everything—decorated with gold braid, sequins, velvet ribbon and gems for $100 at New York's branch of the famous Danish jewelry firm, Georg Jensen.
