FIRE!

The average daily destruction of property by the United States is about $300,000—an enormous sum on the altar of the Fire Fiend, and much greater in relation to wealth than in any other country on the globe.

CAUSES OF FIRES.

[illegible]

The only protection against loss by fire, at present, is good insurance in a company of established character and reputation. Experienced, Strong. Always Reliable, like the two giants composing the General Rules Respecting Promisory Notes.

A Promisory Note is a promise in writing to pay a specified sum of money, at a time therein stated, to one or more persons therein named; or it may be made payable to one or more persons, his or their order, or to bearer, or to the cashier of any incorporated company or institution, or to his order as cashier. When payable to bearer, or to the order of the original holder, the note is called a Negotiable Note. The phrase, "for value received", is usually inserted, though not essential. The only effect of the words, "without defalcation", is to prevent the maker of the note from bringing in an off-set or claim for credit. When a note is made payable on demand, it is called a "Demand Note." A Joint Note is one signed by two or more persons who can each become liable for the same.

If the holder of a Negotiable Note payable to order, wishes to dispose of it, or transfer it to another party, he must indorse the note. This indorsement can be general, or it can be made in favor of some particular person, or his order. If the holder of the note wishes to dispose of it, or transfer it to another party, without being liable for the payment thereof, he does so by adding the words "without recourse" immediately after his indorsement.

The indorser on a Negotiable Note is entitled to receive the earliest notice practicable, in the manner prescribed by law, of the non-payment of the note by the maker; otherwise, the indorser cannot be legally held responsible. An indorser has a right of action against all whose names were previously on a note indorsed by him.

When a note is payable so many months after date, calendar months are understood, or their nearest approach. For example, a two-months note dated December 31, falls due February 28th, or on the 29th if it be leap year. When days are specified in the note, they are counted exactly in determining the due-day.

In most of the states, three days' grace is allowed on all time notes, after the time for payment expires; but interest must be allowed for said three days in addition to the time specified in the note. Notes bear interest only when so stated therein; but all notes bear interest after maturity. In some states, notes due on Sunday or a legal holiday, must be paid the day previous; in other states, on the next succeeding secular day.

Notes given by minors are void; also notes dated on Sunday or a legal holiday, or if obtained by fraud, or if given by intoxicated persons. Altering a note, in any manner, by the holder, makes it void.
