DHS Issues Annual Report Describing Characteristics of December 2005 MFIP and DWP Cases and Eligible Adults

TOPIC

The report, Characteristics of December 2005 Minnesota Family Assistance Programs: Cases and Eligible Adults, describes characteristics of eligible adults and active cases receiving family public assistance through either the Minnesota Family Investment Program (MFIP) or the Diversionary Work Program (DWP) in December 2005. There is information on the demographics of the eligible adult caregivers; family composition, residence, and challenges; and economic status of paid cases provided by state, county, and region.

PURPOSE

This is the ninth in a series of annual reports providing a snapshot of the universe of cases and participants in Minnesota's public assistance programs for families.

BACKGROUND

This is the ninth in a series of annual reports providing a snapshot of the universe of cases and participants in Minnesota's public assistance programs for families. The first caseload characteristics report described eligible participants and paid cases in December 1997, the month before the statewide program changed from Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) to the Minnesota Family Investment Program (MFIP). Subsequent reports described MFIP participants and cases in December of each year. The 2004 report added data on the Diversionary Work Program (DWP) which enrolled its first cases in July 2004.

PURPOSE OF THE REPORT

This report describes characteristics of eligible adults and active cases receiving family public assistance through either MFIP or DWP in December 2005. There is information on the demographics of the eligible adult caregivers; family composition, residence, and challenges; and economic status of paid cases is provided by state, county, and region.

- Demographic characteristics include age, gender, education, marital status, race/ethnicity, and citizenship.
- Family variables include the relationship of adult caregivers to children, number of adult caregivers, married caregivers, reasons for ineligibility of adult caregivers, number of minor children (eligible, ineligible, and total), age of youngest child, region of residence, and indicators of family violence, severe mental health diagnosis (all caregivers), and chemical dependency diagnosis (all caregivers).
- Economic variables include welfare use, months counted toward the 60-month MFIP time limit, months since the start of DWP eligibility, MFIP extensions, cases new to welfare and to Minnesota, cash grants, MFIP food portion, Food Support, work, earned income, earnings budgeted against the grant, work hours, wages reported to the Unemployment Insurance system, sanctions, housing subsidy, SSI, deductions to the MFIP grant, family cap, and child support.

Input from readers is invited, both reactions to this report and suggestions for indicators in future reports. Feedback, questions or comments on this report series should be forwarded to Leslie Crichton at (651) 431-3940 or leslie.crichton@state.mn.us.

Findings that parallel this report for the traditional racial/ethnic groups (American Indian, Asian, black, Hispanic, and white) and the major subgroups in Minnesota among blacks (African Americans, Somali immigrants, and non-Somali African immigrants) and Asians (Asian Americans, Hmong immigrants, and other Asian immigrants), will follow as part of the Department of Human Services series on Welfare Reform Outcomes of Racial/Ethnic and Immigrant Groups in Minnesota.
