Mrs. L C Goodenow,

St. Paul, Minn.,

My dear Mrs. Goodenow;

Your letter to Dr. McLaren relative to obtaining a list of the nurses who were in service has been given to me for a reply.

I am enclosing a list of the accredited schools of nursing in Minnesota. If you will write to the superintendents of the respective schools, I am sure they will be able to give you the names of their graduates who saw service, as most, if not all, schools kept an "Honor Roll".

Wishing you every success, I am,

Sincerely,

Dora M. Cornelisen - sec'y

ANNOUNCEMENT

School of Nursing

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA

A Greater School of Nursing of The University of Minnesota has been established by the association with it, in the interests of nursing education, of the Charles T. Miller Hospital, of St. Paul, the Minneapolis General Hospital, and the Northern Pacific Beneficial Association Hospital. This means a combination, for the better and more complete training of nurses, of a teaching hospital and dispensary service devoted to medical and nursing education; a large endowed hospital in which private patients are cared for; a great public hospital where the acutely sick, emergency cases, and contagious diseases are available for the study and practice of nursing; and a fraternal hospital in which the ill and the injured among the employes and the families of employes of an extensive railway system are treated.

The students of the School of Nursing are eligible to all the privileges of University women students. They will receive the benefit of rotation services in these several institutions, under the supervision of the School of Nursing, the staff of which will direct their entire training. The Board of Regents will grant degrees to all graduating students.

A class of students will be entered at the opening of each quarter. A high school diploma is a prerequisite to admission. A preliminary course of three months is conducted at the University, during which accepted students will be housed and boarded in University or Hospital dormitories. Tuition fees approximating $40. cover the preliminary course. No tuition fees are required thereafter.

Application for admission to the summer quarter, commencing June 20th, should be made at once. Address Miss Louise M. Powell, Superintendent, School of Nursing, University Hospital, University of Minnesota, who will provide application blanks and instructions for registration. Information may also be obtained of the Superintendent of Nursing of either of the associated hospitals.
