On behalf of the City of Saint Paul I'd like to congratulate the companies, the board of directors, and the property managers of University Enterprise Laboratories on the 10-year anniversary of the facility. Since its founding in 2005, the UEL has played an important role in the Saint Paul business community, currently providing 280 high-paying professional jobs at 35 small businesses—a place where life science companies can both get started and grow to maturity.

UEL has meant more to the city than that, however. It has become a destination for investors, researchers, potential business partners and policy makers. It's a case study for anyone interested in learning how a facility such as this can become a both a magnet for innovation and a supportive community for innovators. We are proud to have been an enthusiastic supporter of the UEL and wish it many years of future success.

Sincerely,

Christopher B. Coleman
Mayor
City of Saint Paul
