St. Paul Press, Nov.15, 1871, p.4, col.1: Oak Lake. "A gentleman who returned last evening from a business tour along the N.P. R.R. says times are extremely lively at Morehead....This rising town has absorbed all the population of Oak Lake and the other posts which enjoyed an ephemeral prosperity while the road was building. In fact ~~at~~ Oak Lake, which a few weeks ago was an extremely popular town, is almost deserted.

Upham,29: Osage Township. First settled 1879. Organized May 4, 1891. United in township government with Carsonville until May 4, 1891 when it was separately organized, deriving its name from Osage, the county seat of Mitchell Co., Iowa. It is also a geographic name in Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas, and Oklahoma; but originally it was adopted from the Osage tribe of Indians, "the most important southern Siouan tribe of the western division" (Hodge, Handbook Am. Indians)

Highway Dept. List: Shell.

McCauley Map, Becker 5: Shell Lake. Wet. Meandered.

Upham, 29, 30: Shell Lake. The source of Shell River. An English name, derived probably from the shells found along the shore of the lake. The Ojibway name means, as translated by Gilfillan, "the lake lying near the mountain," having reference to the portage thence across the water divide to Height of Land Lake.

Minneapolis Times-Tribune, Apr.22, 1941: Shoreham "village" on Lakes Sally and Melissa . . . had ceased to exist today. The "village" legally folded up Monday when Judge J. B. Himsl of St. Cloud, in Becker County district court, dismissed a writ of mandamus which sought to compel the county board of commissioners to show cause why they had rejected a petition for a special election to establish a village in the area. In rejecting the petition, the board held that imported residents of the "village" were not legal residents. Application for the writ was dismissed on motion of the plaintiff.
