Upham, 82: Chaska Township. First settled 1853. Organized May 11, 1858. This was the name generally given in a Sioux family, to the first-born, if a son. This word is pronounced by the Sioux, and by Rigg's Dictionary with the English sound of ch (as in charm), and with the long vowel sound in the last syllable, as if spelled Kay; but common usage of the white people has given erroneously the French pronunciation (ch as in charade), with the last syllable short, like Alaska.

GEN LOC St. Valentine at Smithtown bay, Lake Minnetonka to Chaska.

Description & Name Origin The canal project of the Chaska Company was the boldest speculation of that audacious company and although it never went any further than a survey, it is worthy of mention. The purpose was to connect the village of St. Valentine at Smithtown bay, Lake Minnetonka, with Chaska by a canal, not for purposes of transportation but to make over an outlet for the lake to the Minnesota river, and utilize the fall of water obtained for mill purposes. Hon. Edward Rice, Albert Fuller and others were owners by purchase of the town site, St. Valentine, which they sold to the Shaska company for $13,000 to be paid in stock of that company. The survey was commenced in December, 1856, and ended February, 1857, under the charge of Booke, engineer, and Sellar, assistant, with the requisite helpers. The survey showed Minnetonka lake 126 feet higher than the Minnesota river at Shaska and the length of the proposed canal six and three-fourth miles. The Shaska, Minnetonka & Liverpool canal was the modest name assumed.

I have been thinking about you a great deal lately and wondering how you are getting on. I hope you are well and happy. I have been very busy lately but I will try to write to you more often.
 I am still in the same place and things are about the same here. I have not heard from you for some time and I would like to hear from you soon. I am sure you are doing well. I will be glad to hear from you whenever you have a chance. I am always your affectionate friend.

Description & Name Origin This county, established February 20, 1855, was named for Captain Jonathan Carver, explorer and author, who was born in Stillwater, now Canterbury, Conn., in 1732, and died in London, England, January 31, 1780. He commanded a company in the French war, and in 1763, when the treaty of peace was declared, he resolved to explore the newly acquired possessions of Great Britain in the Northwest. In 1766 he traveled from Boston to the Upper Mississippi river, and spent the ensuing winter with the Sioux on the Minnesota river in the vicinity of New Ulm. On his return, according to statements published after his death, he negotiated a treaty, May 1, 1767, at Carver's cave, in the east edge of the present city of St. Paul, by which the Sioux granted to him a large tract of land on the east side of the Mississippi. Carver continued his explorations by a canoe journey along the north and east coast of Lake Superior. He returned to Boston in October, 1768, soon sailed to England, and spent the remainder of his life in London.

Carver's "Travels Through the Interior Parts of North America," a volume of 543 pages, with two maps, was published in London in 1778, and new editions were issued the next year in London and in Dublin. After the author's death, his friend, Dr. John C. Lettsom, contributed to the third London edition, in 1781, a biographic account of Captain Carver, in 22 pages, including the first publication of the deed or grant of land obtained by Carver from the Sioux chiefs.

Several American editions of this work, with abridgement and changes, were published during the years 1784 to 1838; and translations of it into German, French and Dutch, were published respectively in 1780, 1784, and 1796.

The Minnesota river is noted on Carver's map of his Travels as "River St. Pierre, call'd by the Natives Wadapawmenesoter," this being one of the earliest records of the Sioux name of this river and state. At its north side, nearly opposite to the Site of New Ulm, three Sioux tepees are pictured, with the statement that "About here the Author Winter'd in 1766."

Numerous endeavors, made by heirs of Captain Carver and by others to whom their rights were assigned, for establishing their claims and ownership of the large tract deeded to him by the Sioux, have been related by Rev. John Mattocks in his address at the Carver Centenary celebration in 1867, published in Volume II of the Minnesota Historical Society Collections; by John Fletcher Williams in his "History of the City of St. Paul and of the County of Ramsey," forming volume IV in the same series, published in 1876; and most fully, with many documents submitted to the United States Congress, relating to the Carver claims, in an article by Daniel S. Durrie, to which Lyman C. Draper added important foot-notes, in volume VI, pages 220-270, of the Wisconsin Historical Society collections, published in 1872.

Between forty and forty-five years after Carver's death, the supposed rights of his heirs under the deed were denied and annulled in Congress by the Committees of Public Lands and on Private Land Claims. One of the grounds for this decision was that no citizens, but only the state, whether Great Britain, as in 1767, or the United States after the treaty of 1783, could so receive ownership of lands from the aborigines.
