WRITE FROM THIS END

Title, date, and so forth

The County Attorney moved for sentence upon R. N. Travis, convicted of the crime of manslaughter in the 2d degree, whereupon, the following proceedings were had:

R. N. Travis, the defendant, being duly sworn, testified as follows:

I am forty one year s old, and was born in Omaha , Nebraska. I am a married man, have one daughter living, my present residence is St. Paul. I have lived in Minnesota about 18 years. I have never been convicted of any crime before. I have not exactly a trade, I have always worked at team work, and, in fact, the majority of my time I have spent in business for some time. I have no profession of any kind. I have nothing to say now why sentence should not be pronounced upon me.

By the Court: It is adjudged and determined that R. N. Travis is guilty of the crime of manslaughter in the 2d degree, and, as a punishment for such offence he pay a fine of $500.00 and costs amounting to $300.00, aggregating the sum of $800.00, in default of which he be committed to and confined in the State's prison at Stillwater, Minnesota, at hard labor, for a period of time to be determined by the Board of Parole of the State of Minnesota, not exceeding, however, the maximum penalty of 15 years; and the defendant is now remanded to the custody of the sheriff, who will execute the sentence so imposed. Upon the payment of such fine it is ordered that the defendant be released from custody and his bond exonerated.

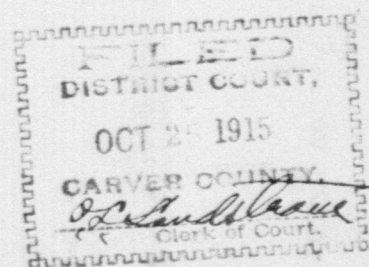

First:

The laws of this State provide that whenever a person driving or operating a motor vehicle on any public highway shall meet another person thus driving or operating a motor vehicle and they are moving in the same direction the person overtaking shall pass on the left side of the person overtaken and the person overtaken shall as soon as practicable turn to the right so as to give half of the traveled road to the other.

Second:

The laws of this State also provide that a person operating a motor vehicle on a public highway shall, when approaching an intersecting highway, or a curve or corner in a highway where the operator's view is obstructed, slow down and give a timely signal with his bell or horn or other device for signalling.

#206

the conditions and surroundings at the place where the injury occurred and what the defendant did, or should have done, under the circumstances.

And whether the acts which the defendant did or omitted to do amounted to negligence in such a degree as constituted culpable criminal negligence. Re. justs - 2 series as to kind of work.

Culpable negligence is criminal negligence, and is largely a matter of degree of negligence, and it has been said that culpable negligence is incapable of any precise definition. Whether it exists to such a degree as to involve criminal liability in this case is a question that must be left to a great extent to the good judgment and common sense of this jury; and the question of the culpable negligence of this defendant must be determined upon the evidence that you have heard here upon the trial of this case. You will bear in mind, Gentlemen of the Jury, that it is not every careless or negligent act, whereby death ensues, that constitutes criminal or culpable negligence. Something must appear other than the essentials necessary to impose civil liability for damages. In civil actions the test would be whether the person or persons complained of exercised such a degree of care and caution as an ordinarily prudent person would exercise under like or similar circumstances, whether such person did an act which an ordinarily ~~prudent~~ prudent person would not do under like or similar circumstances, or ~~the~~ omitting to do an act which an ordinarily prudent person would do under like or similar circumstances. In other words, ordinary negligence would be the absence of such care and caution as an ordinary person would exercise under like or similar circumstances. Now, Gentlemen, when negligence is made the basis of the charge of manslaughter, as in this case, against this defendant, for the death of Clive Meyer, before you would be warranted in finding him guilty of such charge you must find from the evidence, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the defendant committed some act of culpable or criminal negligence which resulted in the death of the child, that the defendant Travis exhibited gross lack of judgment, or inattention or wanton indifference or recklessness for the safety of other persons. In determining that question you must consider all of the evidence produced upon the trial of this cause, all
