Interesting Reports of the Commission Who Have Examined those at St. Peter and Rochester.

Forceful and forcible Argument in Behalf of the School for Imbeciles at Fairbault.

Gov. Pillsbury is in receipt of the report of the State commission of examiners of the hospitals for the insane, composed of Messrs. W. H. Seward, G. Weston Wood and C. H. Boardman, and they have prepared a document that is worthy the profoundest attention of all lovers of humanity as well as of the law-makers of the State of Minnesota.

THE HOSPITAL AT ST. PETER.

The commissioners make the following report of their visit to the hospital for the insane at St. Peter:

We have nothing to add to what has been said in our former reports with reference to the management of the hospital, its excellent condition continuing to bear witness to the efficiency and humanity of the superintendent and his staff. The hygiene of the institution is good at present, but we cannot forbear, in offering our last report (the term for which we were appointed will expire before the time for another visit), from again calling attention to the serious difficulties that must before long result from the lack of sufficient accommodations for the insane. There are at present in the hospitals at St. Peter and Rochester 325 male and 338 female inmates—a total of 663; and thirty-two are absent on furlough or "trial visits," most of whom are liable to be returned at any time. But without taking this latter class into account, since there are accommodations in the two hospitals suitable for only 584, there is now an excess of eighty-three. When the new wing of the hospital at Rochester is completed, which will scarcely be before next summer, owing to the lack of an appropriation, it will be filled at once by the surplus from St. Peter, which is found chiefly in the wards for women.

Although the evil as it now exists is serious, and results not only in inconvenience but at times in graver difficulties, it might perhaps be endured if the discharges kept pace with the admissions, or if the latter did not increase, so that the total number of inmates should remain a fixed quantity. But the admissions are increasing at a rate of from fifty to seventy annually, and it is easy to see that before long there will be an absolute and imperative necessity for making further provisions for these unfortunates; and as much time must necessarily be consumed in the selection of a proper location and the erection of suitable buildings, we would respectfully urge that immediate steps be taken for the solution of a problem whose neglect must entail serious consequences. We are in favor of the establishment of another hospital, which shall be constructed upon what is known as the cottage plan, not only because its adoption has proved in many instances highly satisfactory among those who are competent to pronounce upon its merits, but because it is comparatively inexpensive; as the isolated pavilions required can be built at a fraction of the cost of the institutions now owned by the State.

Since our visit to St. Peter, in March last, there have been admitted to the hospital 125; there have been nineteen deaths and two elopements. We have directed to be sent to the school for imbeciles at Fairbault, Mary Kavanagh, Even Olson and Ellen Olson.

THE HOSPITAL FOR INSANE AT ROCHESTER.

The commissioners, Messrs. Seward, Wood and Boardman, visited this institution on the 29th ultimo, and after commending its hygienic condition and general management, they say:

The State is to be congratulated that by the judicious expenditure of the appropriation for the new wing it has secured an excellent and well arranged building, at a price considerably less than is usually demanded for public works such as this. Great credit is due to Dr. Bowers and the trustees for the good judgment and economy with which the fund has been expended. It is to be regretted that several months must elapse before the introduction of heating apparatus and furniture renders the new building available for use, a delay which should have been avoided by making the appropriation necessary for these purposes.

Since our last visit on May 26, 1880, there have been sixteen admissions, three deaths and one elopement. There are now eighty-seven inmates in the hospital, and two are out on trial visits. The new wing when filled to its utmost capacity will accommodate 120 patients.

... certificate issued therefor, and that have been determined by any cause to be ascertained and determined by the county auditor, such property shall be included in the delinquent list of the present year, if such taxes shall remain unpaid and the same proceedings shall be had against such property, as for [taxes] property becoming delinquent this year, and judgment shall be rendered for the taxes with interest thereon, from the date it should have been sold, with all accruing penalties and costs.

Sec. 2. If there are personal taxes remaining unpaid in any county for any year or years prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, for which a judgment has not been rendered as provided by law, the county treasurer shall proceed to collect such taxes and make return of all that he may be unable to collect with the personal taxes now in his hands for collection.

Sec. 3. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage. Approved March 8, 1879.

Sec. 2. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage. Approved March 6, 1879.

Development and C. The I. of and Imbecile Youth -The I. of the Philanthropy at Home and Abroad
To the Editor of the Pioneer Press:

As this empire State of the West, with its vast future, has recently completed the circle of its cherities by the establishment of an institution for the training, development and care of its feeble-minded and imbecile youth, I think it may be interesting to the readers of the PIONEER PRESS to know somewhat fully of the history, progress and present status of this philanthropy in our own country and in Europe.

Latest but not least in the beneficent march of humanity, what higher proof could be given of the Divine impulse which controls our enlightened age than that this, the most needy and helpless class of all helpless ones, should receive the sheltering and protecting care of the State? The doctrine of the ancients was death to the feeble or deformed. The imperfect offspring of the Spartan mother was by law destroyed. In our better days it is specially cared for, protected, trained, and in many cases developed into the condition of normal manhood and womanhood.

About the close of the last century, Bonaterre, in France, a professor of natural history, had his attention called to a strange personage, who has passed into history as the "Wild Boy of the Aveyron." He was caught wild in the forest of Aveyron and brought to Paris. He was unused to ordinary food, selecting what he ate by the smell, lying flat on the ground to drink and immersing his chin in the water, fighting with his teeth, without articulate speech, often walking on all fours, tearing off his clothing and constantly trying to escape.

Prof. Bonaterre placed this strange boy under the care of Sicard, who had there recently succeeded the Abbé De L'Épée at the head of the institution for deaf mutes, in Paris.

He was seen by many of the thinkers of that time, and although Sicard soon tired of the endeavor to instruct him, he excited a lively interest, and his case was brought before the Academy for discussion.

Itard, physician of the deaf mute institution, declared him simply a savage—entirely untaught.

Pince, physician to the insane at Bicêtre, declared him an idiot.

Sicard, the teacher, having given up all attempts at instruction Itard the physician took up the work, which he followed on purely psychological grounds for one year, "endeavoring to endear him to social life," "to awaken his nervous sensibility," "to extend the sphere of his ideas by creating new wants," etc., etc., but at the end of that time he became convinced that there was something the matter with the boy besides savageness, and changed his method to a more strictly physiological basis, and strove to develop first his senses and afterwards his intellectual facilities and affections, thus adapting his efforts to the functional incapacities of his pupil.

That scientific body, the French Academy, declared officially that it "cannot see without astonishment how he could succeed so far as he did" in the development of his pupil, but Itard himself, who did not believe in the curability of idiocy, exclaimed: "Unfortunately! since my pains are lost and my efforts fruitless, take yourself back to your forests and primitive tastes; or, if your new wants make you dependent on society, suffer the penalty of being useless, and go to the Bicêtre, there to die in wretchedness."

Newly forty years later, when the materialistic doctrines of Condillac and his associates had given place to those of the gospel in the minds of the thoughtful educators of France, and its principles were applied to the elevation of the poor and suffering classes; other cases of idiocy were brought to the notice of Itard, but he, now an old man, declined special personal labors in their behalf, but declared that if a young man could be found who would undertake the work, he would give him the benefit of his counsel. A portion of the great hospital for the insane, the Bicêtre, was provided for a school, and the now honored Dr. Edward Seguin was placed in charge of it. His labors and his work are historic, and his writings are text-books for all who follow him. At about the same time, in 1839 I think, Dr. Guggenbueh, a young physician of Zurich, while climbing one of the mountains of Switzerland, came across a young Cretin kneeling before a crucifix erected by the roadside, who was repeating a prayer taught him by his mother.

The incident turned the doctor's thoughts in a new direction, and three years later, in 1842, he relinquished his medical practice and established a school for Cretins on the Abendurg.

In the same year Dr. Saegert at Berlin, opened a school, neither of these gentlemen knowing of the labors of the other, nor had either heard of the earlier school of Dr. Seguin, at Paris.

Dr. Kern established a school at Leipzig in 1846. In England, Sir S. Morton later gave his own mansion, Essex Hall, at Colchester, for an institution in 1848.

In 1842 Mr. George Sumner, of Boston, then in Paris, became interested in the labors of Dr. Seguin, and wrote home to the Gentlemen's Magazine accounts of the wonders he witnessed, which stimulated efforts on this side of the ocean.

That prince among educators, the Hon. Horace Mann, also reported his observations in Paris, and urged the importance of similar schools in this country. Two schools were established in Massachusetts in 1846, one in New York in 1851, and one in Pennsylvania in 1852. Connecticut, Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois and Iowa have since followed, while several other States patronize such schools temporarily, expecting soon to possess their own. Altogether, there are now in this country thirteen schools; in Canada, one; in Europe, fifty-six, and in Australia three.

With your permission I will speak, in a future article, of the character of this work and the present and future needs.

IMBECILE AND FEEBLE-MINDED.

What Imbecility is—Nature and Claims of the Idiots—Character of the Work for Their Benefit, etc.

To the Editor of the Pioneer Press:

You published a few weeks ago a brief historic account of the establishment of the early institutions for the training and education of the imbecile and feeble-minded. Will you grant me further space to speak of the character of the work? In order to a right understanding of this, we must know what imbecility is. When we speak of this class, many people have in mind, as a type of the class, some extremely low case of slaving idiocy, which they saw perhaps in youth, and the sight made such an impression that the memory of it has never been obliterated. To such the attempt at education seems hopeless, and the labor of proper care even, repulsive. But the condition of mental backwardness, or feeble-mindedness, varies from this lowest form up through all grades to a point but slightly below that of ordinary mentality.

Precise, exact and unexceptional definitions are difficult to make, but they need not be strictly formulated in order to a correct understanding of the nature and treatment of imbecility. Esquirol says: "It is not a disease; it is a condition in which the intellectual facilities have never developed themselves enough to enable the person to receive the instruction common to those of his age and station in life." The "Association of Medical Officers of American Institutions for Idiots and Feeble-Minded Persons," has made a declaration in regard to the nature and claims of idiots and imbeciles which I will quote:

1. Idiocy and imbecility are conditions in which there is a want of natural or harmonious development of the mental, active and moral powers of the individual affected, usually associated with some visible defect or infirmity of the physical organization and functional anomalies, expressed in various forms and degrees of disordered vital action, in defect or absence of one or more of the special senses, in regular or uncertain volition, in dullness, or absence of sensibility and perception.

2. Idiocy and imbecility are dependent generally on hereditary or pre-natal causes; occasionally on diseases or accidents of infancy; rarely, also, upon certain debilitating influences of childhood.

3. Tendencies to congenital cerebral disease of offspring are established through practices and vices which lower the morale, impair the strength, and vitiate the blood of ancestors and parents; hence the infirmity is avertible in a very large degree, or may be greatly diminished in any community, by increase of general knowledge, the practice of virtue, and the universal obedience to hygienic laws.

4. That the undeveloped or diseased conditions known as idiocy and imbecility are susceptible of development in the first instance, and of amelioration and improvement in the second, in a greater or less degree proportioned to the gravity of the infirmity in the individual cases.

5. That because of the peculiar derangements and inaptitudes of idiotic and feeble-minded youth, the method to be followed in their education and training "consists in the adaptation of the principles of physiology through physiological means and instruments, to the development of the dynamic, perceptive, reflective, and spontaneous functions of the children submitted to treatment." (Seguin.) Hence it follows:

a. That idiots and imbeciles should be treated distinctly from all other classes.

b. That they cannot with advantage be placed in ordinary schools with other children.

c. That they ought not to be associated with the insane in asylums.

d. That they should not be incarcerated in penal institutions.

e. That they should not be congregated with the pauper inmates of almshouses.

f. That in the great majority of instances they are more successfully treated in well-organized institutions than is possible at their homes.

Summing up these facts in relation to the nature of idiocy and imbecility, and in view of the experience of existing State and private institutions in this country and in Europe, we claim that it is humanity, economy and expediency for every State to make ample and good provision for all its dependent idiotic and feeble-minded children.

The foundation of all efforts at training and development rests upon the physiological fact that all mental backwardness or lack is based upon some physical imperfection. Physiological training is the proper term to apply to the kind of education needed by this class. The exercises of the play-room or gymnasium consist in efforts to improve physical strength; to promote coordination of muscles; to change the hesitating step and uncertain movements to certainty and decision; to fix the attention; to develop the will; to create a willingness and increase the power to do something.

In the school-room, the first labor is the training of the individual senses. Many feeble-minded children do not use their eyes because they could not train themselves, and have not been trained by others, to use them. Seeing, they do not see. Many are mute, but not because they are deaf; it is because that hearing, they do not hear. They had not sufficient mentality to acquire speech, as ordinary children do, and therefore in their dull, listless, vacant condition, they do not use their ears. Inert and helpless of their own volition, their sense of touch is worthless because they do not use their hands. So the first work of the school is the training of the organs of special sense, the creating of an ability to fix the attention, and afterwards by slow and careful steps, advance to the more strictly scholastic. For this the kindergarten, object-teaching, the word methods, etc., are used, care being exercised that no attempt is made to teach the child something he does not know by means of something else he does not know, as is, alas, too common in our ordinary public schools.

IMBECILES AND IDIOTS.

Minnesota's First Experiment in the Work of Improving the Condition of Children
With Vacant Minds.

Satisfactory Results Obtained in the School For Imbeciles at Faribault as Seen in the Report of Its Officers.

At the last session of the Minnesota legislature an act was passed under which an experimental school for imbeciles was established at Faribault, in connection with the State deaf and dumb institute at that place. The movement was the natural outgrowth of necessities which forced themselves upon public attention, for it was shown that the hospitals for the insane contained numbers of children who were idiotic or imbecile, and it required but a moment's reflection to satisfy every law-maker and humanitarian that such unfortunate children were utterly out of place among adult lunatics. In view of this fact and the further one that the full capacity of the institutions for treating the insane had already been reached, the State of Minnesota provided for transferring the juvenile idiots and imbeciles to a separate school, and now, after eighteen months of practical work, the officers of the institution make their first report, which will be read with interest by every intelligent citizen of the State.

WHAT THE DIRECTORS SAY.

Mr. T. B. Clement, president of the institution, and also one of the board of directors, in his report to the governor and State legislature, after a brief review of the events leading to the establishment of the experimental school for imbecile and feeble-minded children, says:

"The first want presenting itself was reliable information as to the special needs of this class of children, and the most approved methods of organizing and conducting an institution for their training. Fortunately for us and our enterprise, the late Dr. H. M. Knight, the founder and superintendent of the Connecticut school for imbeciles, visited our State in July 1879. He was a man of large brain and noble heart and interested himself zealously in our behalf. His long experience in this country and his personal examination of the principal schools of Europe for the feeble minded, fitted him to give him such aid as was most needed. He directed our preparations and opening of the school until his son, Dr. Geo. H. Knight, who had been brought up to the work, took charge, in September, 1879.

"In July, 1879, the first allotment of pupils from St. Peter, assigned to us by the medical commission, arrived. It consisted of nine boys and five girls. Since then eight have been added from St. Peter and Rochester. We think a visit to this school must dissipate the doubts of the most skeptical as to the wisdom and complete success of the experiment.

"Applications for the admission of new pupils have been numerous, proving beyond all question that there is a large and growing demand for the relief of this afflicted class. By the terms of the act under which we organized we have had no discretion as to the admission of pupils, and were obliged to receive those sent us by the commission, and we could receive no others. We asked the legislature to make some competent and adequate provision for the permanent establishment of this school, and the prosecution of the great work which lies before us."

THE MEDICAL COMMISSION, composed of Drs. W. H. Leonard, George W. Wood and C. H. Boardman, heartily approve of this scheme for educating feeble-minded children; but as their views on this subject, submitted to Gov. Pillsbury some weeks ago, have already appeared in full in the columns of the PIONEER PRESS, no abstract of their lengthy and exhaustive report is necessary at this time. The following is the

ACTING SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

To the Directors of the Minnesota School for Imbeciles:

Gentlemen: I herewith submit my report of the institution under my charge for the past eighteen months. There has been connected with the school twenty-five pupils. Our present number is twenty-one. We have had no severe sickness and no death. The school since its organization has been prosperous and successful.

Our advancement has been such as to add another link to the evidence which shows conclusively that this class of children are all capable of some improvement. It should be borne in mind that there are many degrees of imbecility, ranging from the point just below average intelligence, to that of almost entire mental deficiency. Therefore in many we find decided progress in school work. In others, the acquired ability to fix the attention shows progress as great according to their degree of mentality.

In all our methods of teaching physical training must take precedence. With the average child we find great physical lack. A general appearance of health does not indicate that condition in the feeble-minded, since it is a well-known fact that all cases of imbecility have their origin in physical imperfection or disease. Therefore, while we instruct these children, as far as possible, in reading, writing, geography, numbers, drawing, singing and dancing, we have to make the training of the special senses and physical education the foundation of all our work. It is the only way to arouse the dormant minds of such as these.

The record of the school-room work is as follows:

- Three (3) write letters home.
- Four (4) use writing books.
- Three (3) read in the primer.
- Eight (8) read cards.
- Three (3) can add small numbers
- Five (5) study geography.
- Seven (7) sing.
- Eight (8) join in light gymnastics.
- Four (4) read the dumb-bell chart
- Two (2) imitate them.
- Five (5) do fancy work.
- Ten (10) dance.
- Six (6) sew.
- Two (2) do worsted-work.
- Two (2) knit.
- Two (2) do housework.
- Three (3) boys work outside.
- Six (6) are mutts.
- Two (2) are semi-mutes.

In addition, all have learned valuable lessons of decency, order and cleanliness. In summing up results, I cannot do better than to quote the words of one of the pioneers in the work of training feeble minded youth: "The improvement effected in the appearance of idiotic children trained in our school can be promptly seen by an intelligent observer; but the moral results obtained from the workings of the establishment cannot be easily estimated and made clear to the common understanding. If, however, there were a measure to mete the value of improved bodily health, of gross animal appetites reduced to human moderation, of vicious and debasing practices broken up, and filthy habits exchanged for cleanly ones; if there were a currency to represent the price of intellect dawning out of the night of darkness, and moral affections, born out of a chaos of selfish desires; above all, if there were a standard by which to show the value of the happiness to parents, teachers and friends, in beholding the progress of our unfortunate pupils, and the moral advantage of a triumph over seemingly insuperable difficulties in the way of human improvement—if measures and standards such as these existed, so that the profits might be set forth in numbers, it would be found to far exceed the cost in money that has been incurred."

I cannot describe the ultimate aim of such an institution as this of which I write better than by calling attention to the resolutions passed by a committee of the Charity Organization society of England, which met to consider the best way to educate and care for idiots, imbeciles and harmless lunatics.

That committee was composed of the best authorities in England and Scotland, men renowned in their own countries for their medical and legal abilities, who considered the question of vital importance, and gave to it their keenest and most exhaustive consideration.

They state "that there is a recognized practical difference between acute, dangerous lunacy, and imbecility which is not attended with danger either to the patient or to other persons, and the two classes of cases require distinct modes of treatment!" In considering the question: "How far are they capable of improvement?" They concluded "that a small proportion may be made self-supporting; that a further, larger proportion may be trained to some useful work, and that as a general thing the habits of the remainder can be improved so as to make their lives happier to themselves and less burdensome to others."

In regard to the general principles of treatment, the committee says:

- "1. That idiots and imbeciles should be treated distinctly from other classes.
- "2. That they ought not to be associated with lunatics in asylums.
- "3. That they ought not, unless in exceptional cases, to be associated with paupers in the almshouses.
- "4. That the distinctive treatment suited to idiots and imbeciles ought to be applied collectively, especially in the earlier stages of education.
- "5. That idiots and imbeciles cannot with advantage be placed in ordinary schools with other children.
- "6. That the improvement of idiots and imbeciles would not be promoted by boarding them out, but in certain cases, boarding out, under proper supervision, is not unprofitable to harmless lunatics.
- "7. That the education of idiots and imbeciles should be based on physical considerations.
- "8. That the education of idiots and imbeciles should commence at the earliest age at which they can dispense with a mother's care, and the subsequent stages should depend upon the capacity developed by them.
- "9. That idiots and imbeciles should have a thorough industrial training, so as to enable them, as far as practicable, to support themselves, or at least to contribute toward their support, when circumstances render it necessary; and
- "10. That idiots and imbeciles of all classes should, as far as may be prudently done, be also encouraged to cultivate any literary, scientific, artistic, or mechanical faculty that they may happen to possess, or be otherwise furnished with employment, so as to promote their self-respect, and to make them feel that they are of some use to the world, or, at any rate, to occupy them pleasantly."

It has been an underlying principle of the American nation from its infancy, that it is the duty of each State to provide for the education of all its children. Admitting this fact, it legitimately follows that it is the duty of this State to provide for the training of this unfortunate class, which, if left to itself, rapidly degenerates and becomes in many instances, dangerous to a degree far beyond that possible to those afflicted with the milder forms of insanity.

And when we consider that reliable statistics in other States have proved that this class is as numerous, and a necessity for restraining care as urgent as in the case of the insane, and that they have been as capable of improvement, in their way, as the deaf and dumb and the blind, and this, too, when the population of the United States was far below its present number, and the tide of emigrants from which this class is largely recruited, at least in the West, had hardly reached beyond the borders of Minnesota; and when we also consider that under proper influences many of this class do attain to intelligence, usefulness and self-respecting, self-supporting manhood and womanhood, we feel justified in presenting an earnest appeal, in their behalf, which we are sure an enlightened and liberal legislature will not set aside. Respectfully submitted,

G. H. KNIGHT, Act. Supt.

Your committee appointed to investigate the claim of Emil Bruce for extra pay for work and material on the Custodial building, beg leave to report -

Heating.

In our opinion the facts found

1st. That the Gov. had vetoed the item in the appropriation of 1893 for heating the new building which fact was known to all the bidders and the specifications modified accordingly:

2nd. The fact that the expense for heating accrued after the time for the completion of the building had expired.

3rd. That he declared in board meeting when the matter was discussed that he would pay for the heating -

4th. That he waived again his claim in his final settlement with our accounting officer - leaves Mr. Bruce without any claim whatever, either legal or equitable to be re-imursed for heating. If it should be discovered however, that he has been charged more for heating than it really cost, he should in equity be repaid, this however, Mr. Parshall is satisfied is not the fact.

Stairs.

We admit that there is ambiguity in the words occurring in the 3rd amendment to the Specifications, "Grouting in Basement and Basement finish to be omitted" but we find that Mr. Bruce an expert contractor with copy of the specifications in his possession voluntarily ordered the stairs to be built and shipped and then without the agreement named in the contract had them put up in the building - That he did not claim pay for them at the time of his settlement with Mr. Parshall and that the Board never heard or knew that he regarded them outside of the contract until they received on their demand, a copy of the items of his claim presented to the Legislature at its present session - That for these reasons he is now estopped from questioning the finality of his settlement with Mr. Parshall our accounting agent, and that his entire claim considering the lenity with which the Board has treated him in the matter of time and is without merit.

Dated April 9th 1895.

The board of trustees has made an effort to restore as many as possible of the abler class of inmates to self-support. Their action in this respect has called forth some criticism; but it is unquestionably both wise and kind. There is a tendency for those who have once become dependent to relinquish all efforts at self-support, and it is not kindness to encourage this disposition in those who can maintain themselves. Many of these men can maintain themselves in summer, if they are allowed to reside in the Home during the winter.

THE INSTITUTE FOR DEFECTIVES AT FARIBAULT.

The school for the deaf opened Wednesday, September 11th. The attendance is slightly less than that of a year ago; the number enrolled being only 201, as against 211 at the same date last year. The decrease is in the attendance of boys; it is probably due to the anticipated opening of a day-school for the deaf in Minneapolis, in connection with the public schools.

There have been several changes in the teaching force. Mr. D. F. Bangs has been appointed to the superintendency of the North Dakota school, and Mr. W. O. Connor, Jr., a son of the principal of the Georgia school for the deaf, has been appointed as a teacher at Faribault. A new carpenter and cabinet shop has been built, but has not yet been equipped on account of the difficulty of disposing of the product. The industrial problem is a serious one. It is very difficult, under existing conditions, to furnish these pupils with a working trade, which will enable them to earn a living. Fortunately, a large number of these boys are farmers' sons. Farming is an industry for which the deaf are especially adapted.

The school for the blind will open October 2d, the opening of the school having been postponed in order to complete the new wing. The new wing is sixty by forty feet. It will furnish accommodations for forty boys, together with one additional schoolroom, a music classroom, and a gymnasium. This addition will increase the capacity of the school to eighty pupils instead of sixty, and will relieve the overcrowding which has been an occasion of anxiety in the past. It is to be regretted that the new wing is not fireproof. The new buildings for the feeble-minded children have fireproof staircases and a slow-burning construction. It would seem as if equal precautions were demanded for the blind.

A new street is being graded from the school for the blind to the bridge on Front street. This road will reduce the distance to the city from the school for the blind and the school for feeble-minded more than a third of a mile, and will furnish a much better grade than the present road. This improvement was greatly needed. It is being made at the joint expense of the state and the city of Faribault.

At the school for the feeble-minded the new custodial building for boys is being pushed rapidly forward. The contract for this building was not let until July, but it is expected that the building will be enclosed before winter, and will be ready for pupils in July, 1896. The general plan of this building is nearly the same as that of the corresponding building for girls. It will be two stories high, with fireproof staircases, slow-burning construction, and a thorough system of ventilation. The building will accommodate 150 boys, with all the necessary officers and employes, and the contract price is $48,000, which is about $320 per bed.

The school for the feeble-minded has acquired a valuable tract of land, through the appropriation made by the last legislature. The school has now about 350 acres, which will afford opportunity for the advantageous employment of the older boys, and also for the development of the "colony plan" of caring for these unfortunate children. It is proposed to erect a building for epileptic boys on the newly acquired land, at a distance of about three-quarters of a mile from the main building. It is exceedingly desirable that this unfortunate class of inmates, who are neither feeble-minded nor insane, should be segregated, for the sake of their comfort, happiness and remedial treatment.

With the completion of this new building, the capacity of the school will be 600; but, although Minnesota is doing more, proportionately, for this class of unfortunates than any other state in the Union, the pressure will not be relieved. There are new applications enough on file to fill the new building when it is completed, and many of these cases are pitifully urgent. The state is now caring for 2,700 insane patients, and there are probably 2,000 feeble-minded persons in the state, of whom 450 are in the Faribault institution, and perhaps 100 or 150 in the hospitals for insane. The necessity for institutional care for the young women of this class is now distinctly recognized, both from the standpoint of humanity and economy. There is a considerable portion of the young men of this class that ought to receive permanent care, in order to keep them out of the ranks of tramps and petty criminals, since they have not sufficient strength of character to enable them to stand alone.

THE STATE PUBLIC SCHOOL.

The state school for dependent children has been much overcrowded; the number May 31, 1895, was 221. Under these conditions it was impossible to care for the children properly, and it became necessary to decline to receive children temporarily. The number August 31st was reduced to 170. The work of placing children, and supervising them in their homes, goes steadily forward. This work of supervision is second only in importance to the original selection of the homes. Even with the most scrupulous care, mistakes will sometimes be made. A home which is adapted to one child may not be adapted to another, owing to the difference in dispositions, training, etc. The work has been somewhat retarded by the illness of Miss Choate, the assistant agent.

THE STATE TRAINING SCHOOL.

The name of the Minnesota State Reform School was changed by the legislature of 1895 to the "State Training School." This is an admirable name, the only objection to it being that it does not correspond to the name of any similar institution. The legislature of 1895 amended the law, so as to authorize the board of managers to place children in homes, and established a state agency.

Miss Grace Johnston of St. Paul has been appointed as state agent. She has had a long experience and a close acquaintance with the boys of this class, and it is believed that a better appointment could not have been made. It will be Miss Johnston's duty, on the one hand, to investigate the homes

About the Lundberg Girl

make it a special case -

Minnesota Institute for Special Education

Faribault, Minn. Jan - 12th 1897
To the Legislative Committee on Claims.

Mr James Leche of Minneapolis - Contractor and builder - was one of thirteen competitors for the wood iron + stone work of Geo. E Skinner Hall, one of the custodial buildings of the Feeble Minded department of the Minnesota Institute for Defectives at Faribault, in 1895 - The bids ranged from his bid $48,200.⁰⁰ the lowest to $71,500.⁰⁰ the highest, Mr Leche's bid was $6,900.⁰⁰ less than the next lowest.

He finished his job without delay and gave us a good building - was straight and fair in all his dealings with us. He has rendered to us a detailed statement of the cost to him of labor and material which so far as we have verified it we believe to be true, amounting to $51,030.⁵⁷ thus suffering a loss of $2,930.⁵⁷ besides the loss of over a year's work of himself.

Fairbault, Minn., _____ 189__

We understand that he expects to apply to the Legislature for an appropriation to reimburse him for this loss.

The Board of Directors of this Institute have never recommended any such appropriation although there have been several cases of loss in our building contracts, believing that such a course of relief (adopted as a rule) would do away with all of the supposed & intended benefits of the "competitive" system, but there are some features of this case that have awakened our sympathies for Mr. Leck and we desire to say that we shall oppose no reasonable legislation for his relief, within the limits of the difference between the two lowest bids.

Unanimously Approved by the Board of Directors at regular session January 12th 1897
