

Akana Ittatoba and CEA Connect to Support Local Indigenous Enterprises

25th September 2024

For Immediate Release

Akana Ittatoba, a leading Native American equipment and logistics company dedicated to fostering economic opportunities and community development for First Nations communities, is proud to be collaborating with Construction Equipment Australia (CEA), a prominent player in the heavy equipment sector.

Through this relationship, CEA and Akana Ittatoba will work to create tangible, long-lasting opportunities for Indigenous communities across the nation by supporting job creation, skills development, and economic empowerment.

"We are thrilled to be working with CEA, a leading supplier of capital goods equipment to the Australian market" said Chelsea Harris, General Manager of Akana Ittatoba. "Their commitment to supporting the local Indigenous communities sets a powerful example within their industry, and we look forward to achieving real outcomes for First Nations communities through this collaboration."

CEA's support is a significant milestone in providing access to state-of-the-art machinery and equipment, the partnership is designed to bolster the economic capacity of First Nations peoples within the industry, giving them the tools needed to build a self-sufficient and thriving future.

"CEA is proud to be working with Akana Ittatoba to provide essential equipment to local Indigenous communities. While the relationship is in its infancy, we believe by collaborating on local projects we can provide specialised assistance that will aid wider community initiatives and support a framework that promotes economic opportunities", said CEA CEO Hylton Taylor.

About Akana Ittatoba

Akana Ittatoba is a Native American organisation focused on supporting the development and empowerment of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples through economic opportunities, business partnerships, and community initiatives. With a mission to advance Indigenous self-determination, Akana Ittatoba drives collaboration across industries to create lasting positive impacts.

About CEA

Construction Equipment Australia (CEA) is a leading provider of premium construction and agricultural equipment. CEA is committed to driving positive change through industry innovation, community partnerships, and a strong focus on sustainability and inclusivity.

For media inquiries, please contact:

Chelsea Harris

General Manager

Akana Ittatoba

Phone: +61 499 917 836

Email: chelsea@akanaittatoba.com.au