

Eligibility and Discretionary Rights Policy

At Married For A Purpose, we believe that marriage coaching is a sacred responsibility and a position of influence, trust, and moral leadership. For this reason, we reserve the right to determine who is eligible to receive training, certification, or representation under our name.

Eligibility Criteria

To be considered for certification as a marriage coach with Married For A Purpose, applicants must demonstrate:

- A lifestyle consistent with biblical values and personal integrity.
- A healthy, committed marriage marked by mutual respect and emotional safety.
- A willingness to be teachable, accountable, and aligned with our mission and methods.
- A history and present reputation that will not bring harm to those they serve or discredit the organization.

While we do not require a mandatory background check for all applicants, we reserve the right to inquire further, request references, or decline an applicant at our sole discretion for any reason that may reflect on the safety, credibility, or values of the organization.

Discretionary Rights

Married For A Purpose retains full and final authority to:

- Decline certification or training to any applicant at any stage of the process.
- Disqualify any individual who has a history of criminal activity, unresolved legal matters, or behavior inconsistent with the role of a marriage coach.
- Revoke certification if, at any point, a coach's actions or associations pose a risk to the couples they serve or the integrity of the organization.

Certification is a privilege, not a right. We approach every applicant with grace and without prejudice, but also with a deep commitment to the safety of the couples we serve and the long-term credibility of our mission.