

RENEE MARIE

Identity-Led Leadership for High-Achieving Women

ABOUT RENEE MARIE

Renee Marie is a leadership speaker, mentor, and movement builder devoted to helping women lead from truth rather than performance.

With an early background as an aspiring singer and actress, Renee developed a deep understanding of presence, expression, and what it means to be truly seen—both on stage and in life. That foundation, combined with decades of leadership and entrepreneurship, informs her ability to command rooms while guiding others to do the same without self-betrayal.

Her mission was forged through profound personal transformation, including the loss of her brother to suicide—a moment that reshaped her understanding of success, safety, and leadership. That loss awakened a lifelong devotion to mental health, wholeness, and the belief that no one should live disconnected from their own greatness.

After building a multi-six-figure business, Renee reached a pivotal moment of identity evolution—outgrowing the structures she had created as her nervous system, leadership capacity, and sense of self expanded. Rather than force herself to fit what once worked, she chose to rebuild from alignment, embodiment, and truth.

Today, Renee speaks to visionary women, founders, and leaders who are done performing for approval and ready to lead from their essence. Through identity-led frameworks and aligned strategy rooted in each individual's unique blueprint, she guides audiences to uncover the throughline of their lives, dismantle identity blocks, and embody a presence that commands rooms without self-betrayal.

Renee doesn't teach leadership as a concept—she facilitates remembrance. The result is leaders who feel grounded, visible, and fully aligned with the impact they are here to make.

THE THROUGH-LINE OF YOUR GENIUS

How Visionary Women Reclaim Their Truth and Lead From Who They've Always Been

This keynote invites women to uncover the throughline of their lives—the recurring gifts, roles, and moments of aliveness that reveal who they are beneath conditioning, performance, and expectation. When leaders lose connection to this inner truth, they often find themselves over-proving, over-performing, and building lives or businesses that look successful on the outside but feel disconnected on the inside.

Drawing from her own journey through reinvention, loss, and remembrance, Renee guides audiences back to their unique genius—not to become someone new, but to reclaim who they've always been. Anchored in this truth, leaders are able to show up with clarity, integrity, and embodied power. This is the foundation of sustainable leadership, meaningful visibility, and impact that doesn't come at the cost of self-betrayal.

Audiences Walk Away With:

- A clear way to identify the throughline of their unique genius and leadership identity
- Awareness of the patterns, roles, and expectations that dilute their power
- A deeper sense of self-trust, presence, and embodied leadership they can lead from immediately

THE ICONIC WOMAN BLUEPRINT

Identity-Led Leadership for High-Achieving, Visionary Women

The Iconic Woman Blueprint is a leadership framework for high-achieving, visionary women who are successful on the outside, yet feel the quiet tension of outgrowing the way they've been leading, building, or expressing themselves.

In this keynote, Renee introduces a four-part blueprint that brings leadership back into alignment—starting with heart-led mission, moving through identity and nervous system capacity, and culminating in aligned expression and leadership presence. Rather than pushing harder or forcing strategies that don't fit, audiences learn how to lead from their unique blueprint—where clarity replaces pressure, visibility feels natural, and success becomes sustainable.

This keynote bridges depth and practicality, showing women how to translate truth into leadership, presence, and strategy that actually fits who they are now.

What Audiences Leave With:

- A clear understanding of identity-led leadership and why strategy alone eventually breaks down
- Insight into how nervous system safety supports clarity, confidence, and long-term expansion
- Awareness of how aligned expression impacts visibility, brand, and leadership presence
- A grounded framework for building a life and business that honors ambition and fulfillment

VISIBILITY WITHOUT SELF-BETRAYAL

How High-Achieving Women Become Seen Without Performing, Pushing, or Burning Out

In a culture that equates visibility with constant output, perfection, and performance, many high-achieving women find themselves visible—but disconnected, exhausted, and self-abandoning in the process. This keynote reframes visibility as an identity and nervous-system issue, not a content or confidence problem.

Drawing from her own evolution—from over-performing to embodied leadership—Renee shows audiences how sustainable visibility comes from regulation, self-trust, and aligned expression. When women feel safe being seen as who they truly are, visibility stops feeling draining and starts becoming magnetic.

This talk invites leaders to release the pressure to “show up as someone else” and instead cultivate a presence that feels grounded, natural, and powerful—on stage, online, and in leadership.

Audiences Walk Away With:

- A new understanding of why visibility often triggers burnout, anxiety, or inconsistency
- Awareness of the performance patterns that create self-betrayal in leadership and business
- Insight into how nervous system safety supports confident, sustainable visibility
- A grounded approach to being seen that feels aligned, embodied, and authentic

THE DIAMOND STANDARD OF LEADERSHIP

Why the Most Powerful Leaders Move Differently—and Rise Further

In a culture obsessed with speed, scale, and constant expansion, many leaders confuse movement with mastery. This keynote challenges hustle-based leadership and introduces a new paradigm: leadership built on capacity, refinement, and discernment.

Drawing from her work with high-achieving women and her own evolution as a leader, Renee explores what it means to lead at the diamond standard—where decisions are precise, growth is intentional, and expansion is sustainable. This is not about doing less for the sake of rest, but about operating at a level where every move is calibrated, embodied, and aligned.

This keynote invites leaders to release urgency as a badge of honor and step into a standard where depth, regulation, and self-trust become the true advantage.

Audiences Walk Away With:

- A reframe of “slow” as strategic refinement—not stagnation
- Insight into how nervous system capacity determines leadership longevity
- Awareness of where urgency and over-expansion erode power and clarity
- A new standard for decision-making rooted in precision, restraint, and self-trust
