All too rarely do you meet someone who lives life to the fullest and speaks from her own experiences to inspire her audience. We are pleased to welcome Pamela Meister, a remote work expert, today. Pam is dedicated to helping us reimagine work to find our joy, and maximize our time, impact, and our profit.

Her work has focused on providing business and lifestyle strategies to entrepreneurs and remote professionals to improve their quality of life professionally and personally.

Pam teaches people how to work within their zone of genius, leverage individual strengths to bolster teams, and achieve incredible results with less stress, in less time, and with more flexibility and enjoyment.

She is the founder/CEO of Organwise, her consulting firm, and The Zone, a virtual coworking community, open 24/7, which was born during the pandemic at the request of her coaching clients to provide a space where people could overcome isolation, boost their productivity, and expand their professional network just by showing up and taking care of the business that they needed to do each day.

Pam also offers free access to The Coffee Chat Club to connect entrepreneurs and remote professionals with each other and simplify global networking.

She has been honored to speak to a wide variety of audiences and has found her calling in helping others recognize the potential they can realize if they are willing to ditch the "this is how I've always done things" mindset and reimagine work.

Pam lives in Maryland with her three children - ages 12, 9, and one, and her husband, whom she adores. Pam believes that when we all operate from our zone of genius and lift each other up we achieve our individual results while also making a broader impact.

Please join me in welcoming, Pam Meister!

Motivational Speaker

Pamela Meister is a believer in following joy. Following her joy has led her away from working in jobs she didn't love, with bosses she didn't admire, in locations that didn't work for her. Following her joy has led her to a year in Brazil with her young family. Following her joy has led her into entrepreneurship, working with people she believes in, and helping them find the zone where their genius meets their joy.

Pamela Meister lives at that intersection. Pam's genius is business and lifestyle strategy. Pam has managed people, run political campaigns, raised money, built CRMs, written policy, advocated for organizations, and more. Her experience extends across the public, for-profit, and nonprofit sectors with extensive experience at all levels of government and holding executive leadership roles.

Through each experience and opportunity, Pam has found that she can be happy doing many 'jobs' as long as she can put her family first. Pam wants to go on field trips with her children, be present in their daily lives, hang out with her husband, and be able to travel the world without having to give up her income when opportunities present. That is where her joy comes from.

Pam believes that we can all live a life we love, doing more of what makes us happy, and still earn the income we need to live. She works with her clients to help them focus on their zone of genius.

Pam is creative, passionate, and heart-centered in her approach to leading her clients toward the strategies that will help them achieve their individual goals. She offers personalized consulting, facilitates group coaching and mastermind programs, speaks publicly, and runs workshops for groups of various sizes.

Pamela Meister uses every single one of her 525,600 minutes each year to live a life she loves. As founder of Organwise, LLC, The Zone Community, and The Coffee Chat Club, Pam helps others do the same.
