Deborah Cooper is a single mother, international speaker, business mentor and the first person in New Zealand to become a Level II Certified Demartini Method® Facilitator. Deborah specialises in taking uninspired and underperforming teams through a process that transforms how teams communicate and ultimately profits with productivity dramatically increasing.

With a corporate background Deborah found it challenging to stay inspired and felt she had lost direction. Balancing her professional and personal life was frustrating. She discovered Dr John Demartini and learnt she wasn't open to what was around her. Her purpose became unlocked - to assist people to master their lives.

Within 10 days Deborah was overseas studying with Dr Demartini. Upon returning Deborah and her boss discussed how they could incorporate her knowledge within the business. However, within three days her boss passed away suddenly. She was made redundant and was involved in a horrific accident that left her in a wheelchair for nine weeks. To top it off, her five year relationship collapsed.

During her recovery time Deborah applied the principles she had learnt with Dr Demartini and made the realisation that no challenge is too big.

Subsequently, in 2007 Deborah launched Universal Connections, which was recently rebranded to DebzCooper.Com. She works with clients through issues in every situation imaginable.

Deborah says, "The work I do is based on universal laws and The Demartini Method®. It was developed by Dr Demartini and is the culmination of more than 40 years of studies in numerous disciplines. It's a procedure that neutralises an emotional charge, balances your mental and physical reactions, opens your heart and clears your mind."

Resolving emotional issues allows you to increase your enthusiasm for life as well as increasing your vitality and successes, and enhancing relationships and fulfilment across your life.

This work is thorough and the tools Deborah uses give an instant fix and you see the blessings in your crisis.

Once your perception has been shifted, your story dissolves allowing your mind to focus on things more inspiring.

This work has no boundaries and can be used in all areas. Deborah offers workplace visits to "keep the team inspired or to find the 'right fit' employee for the business." She finds that her specialty in this area is also with women and entrepreneurs to assist them define a balance between keeping the family happy and the business productive.

Deborah not only works with businesses. She says, "I'm currently working with a girl who, three weeks ago, tried to end her life. What we've achieved in only three sessions is incredible. She has been inspired to get out of bed every day. She's no longer afraid of dealing with her family and friends or pulling the blinds open to face what's outside.

"I'm also working with a 10-year-old who has been bullied at school, another woman who was drinking four bottles of wine each night and a gentleman from Australia who is addicted to marijuana - no two days are ever the same."

"Any area that you are disempowered, someone else will take over," Deborah says. "The key in your life is to be empowered in all areas. I know we all have challenges in life and it was my challenge to fall into that black hole and get myself out of it. My challenge taught me the principles I live by today."

Deborah works closely with Dr John Demartini and is the New Zealand host for The Demartini Institute in bringing Dr John Demartini to New Zealand and she also runs his Demartini Method™ Training Program for The Demartini Institute in Sydney, Australia.

"I have been working with Deborah through significant blocks in my life. I wondered how I was going to succeed and make money.

Deb helped me see where my wealth is within my life and how to best make use of it to bring me what I truly want for my life. She also helped me realise how I am able to solve my own problems, which has been such a major change in mindset for me. As a consequence, I have gone on to writing a book, with three more on the way and continue to be inspired by my own ability and capacity to create change and help others.

I would recommend Deb to anyone. She is down to earth, sharp, dedicated, committed and focused on helping you achieve what you want. My thanks and gratitude goes to her for all the hard work she's done with me. My life would not be going in the direction it is if it wasn't for her guidance, insight and honesty."
