GO AND DO

1 NEPHI 1-5

The Book of Mormon commences with the story of a genuine family grappling with real challenges around 600 BC. Despite the ancient setting, the experiences of this family may resonate with contemporary families. Dwelling in a world marked by wickedness, they received a divine promise: if they followed the Lord, He would guide them to safety. Their journey unfolded with both uplifting and challenging moments, witnessing miracles alongside family conflicts. This scripture uniquely delves into the intricate dynamics of a family striving to live the gospel—parents striving to instill faith, children contemplating their beliefs, and siblings navigating jealousy and discord, at times extending forgiveness. In the imperfections of this family's journey, there lies a compelling power in their examples of faith.
