MEET COURTLAND

With over 15,000 hours logged, Courtland Warren is an authentic and relevant thought leader and master facilitator in large group awareness training. On stage, he looms as an intriguing combination of power, humor and empathy. Courtland's certitude stems from his stated purpose, "to make new the thoughts of people about what they are capable of being".

Born and raised in Idabel, Oklahoma, he saw education as a path to experiencing more of the world. With this view, Courtland has blazed a trail from his neighborhood Main St., to Johannesburg, South Africa; London, U.K.; and across North America leveraging intelligence, charisma and voice.

No matter the size of the audience Courtland knows each person listens and hears as an individual and has an uncanny ability to connect.

Courtland studied organizational behavior and graduated from Oklahoma State University.

After a short stint in the oil and gas industry, he was inspired by the need for diversity and inclusion in Corporate America and has added value to industry titans Coca-Cola, UPS, GE, Williams, Kimberly Clark and Chick-fil-A. 20 years ago, Courtland decided to "hang a shingle" as a transformational speaker and workshop facilitator sharing the stage with Les Brown, Bob Proctor, Lisa Nichols, John Asaraf, Mel Robbins, Deepak Chopra and more.

Today Courtland is a pertinent contributor to empowering people to raise their resilience quotient in order to live a meaningful life.
