Meet Debby Hallie

During the time she worked as an interior& imago stylist she learned that we unconsciously communicate through colors and shapes. To be more specific, the interior of a person's house reveals his/her inner self. And I could say the same of what a person is wearing.

And what's even more interesting; the contrasts between light and dark of non colors (black-medium grey-white) will shape how your presence is perceived in terms of authority, equality, or accessibility.

High contrast implies authority
Middle contrast implies equality
Low contrast implies accessibility
