Jaime is a single mom that knows the complexities of single parenting. She became a single mon of 4 babies (5 and younger) while still in her 20s with no education that could bring any real income.

After putting herself through nursing school, she got a prestigious job at a top 10 hospital and later became an executive-level consultant for hospitals.

Though this may sound impressive she had as many colossal failures as success. She dealt with poverty, imposter syndrome, faced attempted suicide of one of her kids, lingering emotional issues for herself and her children, additional failed marriages, and depression combined with a sense of lost identity.

She tried anything and everything possible to "fix" her broken parts, only to find nothing worked. When the pain became too unbearable, she surrendered to God and asked Him to meet her in her mess. And He did.

It is her passion to teach as many single moms as possible everything she learned through her journey from defeat to feeling whole, loved, and full of joy through her organization Rooted in Christ.
