

Speak Honest Journal Prompts

How can you practice pausing and observing your emotions in everyday situations, even when you're not feeling triggered?

What emotions do you find the hardest to label, and how can you get more specific when naming them?

What patterns have you started noticing in your emotional responses, and how can you prepare to respond differently next time?