

Speak Honest Journal Prompts

What emotions come up for you when you think about being ghosted? Have you processed those feelings, or do they still linger?

How has ghosting affected the way you see yourself or your relationships? Do you find yourself questioning your worth after being ghosted?

How can you begin to shift your mindset and see ghosting as a reflection of the other person's behavior, not your value?