Benefits of PTD Light Therapy

Light Therapy provides the user a myriad of benefits that include:

Fat Loss

Enhances metabolism and cell regeneration by boosting ATP production which converts food into energy.

Relieves Pain

Increases the catalase activity of cellular mitochondria. Promotes protein solidification of diseased tissues and the formation of new squamous epithelial cells.

Improves Circulation

PTD light therapy provides a warming effect on the skin and mucous membranes, dilating blood vessels in deeper tissues. It improves blood circulation and purifies the blood, helping to prevent or relieve cardiovascular and cerebrovascular diseases such as myocardial infarction, cerebral infarction, coronary heart disease, hypertension, hyperlipidemia, and hyperglycemia.

Treats Inflammation

Promotes local blood circulation and enhances the phagocytic activity of cells and macrophages, helping to control infections. It aids in reducing chronic inflammation, benefiting conditions like neurodermatitis, eczema, and chronic lymphadenitis, as well as osteoarthritis from various causes, including age-related osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis.

Promotes Scar Healing

Improves blood circulation, promotes tissue regeneration, and supports wound repair, helping to relieve pain, reduce swelling, encourage granulation tissue growth, and shorten healing time. It also reduces postoperative adhesions, softens scars, and minimizes scar contracture, making it effective for skin ulcers, trauma-infected wounds, and chronic wounds.

Repair Skin Tissue

Lightens pigmentation, smooths wrinkles, and improves skin elasticity. It reduces the appearance of pores, eliminates acne, fades freckles and postpartum stretch marks, locks in moisture, and alleviates allergic symptoms and sunburn.

Improves Immunity

PTD light therapy increases mitochondrial catalase activity and promotes glycogen content, protein synthesis, and ATP decomposition. This enhances cell vitality and boosts the body's self-repair and regeneration abilities while also increasing the phagocytic activity of white blood cells, improving immunity and disease resistance.
