

Terms of Service

By engaging in education services with HEADSPACE B4 HABITS™, you agree to the following terms:

Professional Relationship: The strategy, performance and education sessions are designed to help you achieve your stated goals and objectives. While I will provide the necessary perspective on the foundational health concepts for your patients, the responsibility for taking action by regularly and routinely reinforcing these ideas in the office and achieving those results lies with you, the Client.

Confidentiality: All information shared during strategy, performance and education sessions will be kept strictly confidential, except as required by law or with your explicit consent.

Payment: Payment for strategy, performance and education services is due according to the agreed-upon terms. Failure to make timely payments may result in the suspension of all sessions.

Cancellation and Rescheduling: If you need to cancel or reschedule a strategy, performance or education session, please provide at least a 48-hour notice. Cancellations made within this notice period will be rescheduled.

Liability: While I will strive to provide valuable guidance, educational expertise, trustworthiness, transparency, patience, and professional insights, the results depend on your actions and efforts. I am not liable for any outcomes or decisions made by you during or after the session engagement.

Termination: Either party may terminate the coaching relationship with a 72-hour written notice.

Intellectual Property: All materials, resources, and content provided by HEADSPACE B4 HABITS™ are protected by intellectual property rights and may not be copied, distributed, or shared without prior permission.

Governing Law: This Agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of California.

Sovereignty: I acknowledge the considerable time and expense you invested in educational settings to gain your chiropractic license and the ongoing time and expense to continue to develop your craft. I further acknowledge the considerable time and effort you have taken to build your practice and your reputation, both in the community and in your patients who trust and appreciate you. Furthermore, I recognize the time and expense associated with acquiring new patients. With that said, I pledge to refrain – under any circumstances – from trying to lure or otherwise entice any and all of your patients away from your practice for any reason. My goal is to withdraw from day-to-day adjusting of patients and transition to educational services solely. I am not interested in taking your patients. Should I breach this trust, with proper evidence to show, you will be due an immediate and complete refund of any and all monies paid for the strategy, performance and educational services.

By participating in strategy, performance and education sessions, you acknowledge that you have read, understood, and agreed to these terms.

Last Updated: OCT 2024

Dr. Harry Heeder | Chiropractor

Headspace B4 Habits™

Contact: info@mail.newpatientclass.com